News Blackout To Veil Trip To Korea War

Nothing To Clear Until Gen. Leaves

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Defense Department announced today an official news black-out will be clamped around President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower's forthcoming trip to the Korean War zone.

The announcement said that for security reasons no news of the general's presence or activities in the far Pacific will be cleared until after he leaves Korea.

No Published Schedule

In addition, the department said there will be no published schedule of the date of Eisenhower's departure from this country, his arrival in Korea or his departure en route back to the United States.

Similar precautions were taken to safeguard the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt on trips during World War II.

Fears have been expressed by some that Eisenhower might become a target of enemy attack if details of his projected trip were disclosed in advance.

Secretary of Defense Lovett said Eisenhower has approved the black-out arrangements.

Lovett appealed to the nation's press, radio, television and newsreels to co-operate in carrying out the restrictions.

The department gave no inkling of when Eisenhower might depart, but reports from the general's headquarters in New York said plans for the trip were apparently moving ahead. The Air Force presumably is handling physical arrangements.

Confers With Ramey

Eisenhower conferred yesterday with Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, Air Force operations officer, and Ramey later had a private talk with Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty.

Eisenhower also conferred for 35 minutes yesterday with Lewis K. Gough, national commander of the American Legion, who submitted a 10-point plan for ending the Korean conflict. Gough recently returned from Korea.

Gough's plan calls for expanding United Nations military operations to the Chinese Mainland and bombing Red bases in Manchuria.

Duke Lunches With Elizabeth

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP) — The Duke of Windsor had lunch today with his favorite niece, Queen Elizabeth II, and her husband, then left tonight by train for Paris.

The lunch was a very special one—a quiet family get-together at Buckingham Palace to mark the fifth wedding anniversary of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. Also present were Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

The Duke of Windsor arrived Monday for a visit with his mother, the aging Queen Mary. He has already taken tea with his sister-in-law, Queen Mother Elizabeth.

To many Britons all this family activity adds up to one thing — a reconciliation is just around the corner.

And, according to rumors in court circles, there's an odds on chance that both the Duke and his American-born Duchess, for whom he threw over the British throne in 1936, will get invitations for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth next June 2.

Senate Labor Group Reveals Racial Study

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — A Senate labor subcommittee made public tonight a study of the economic status of Negroes in the United States and Chairman Humphrey (D-Minn) said these two major conclusions could be drawn from it:

1. "In almost every significant economic and social characteristic which can be measured—including life expectancy, education, employment and income—our Negro citizens, as a group, are less well off than our white citizens."

2. "However, in almost every instance, the status and well being of both groups have improved and the differences between them narrowed in recent years."

Legislation Is Needed

The study was prepared by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics in response to a request from the Senate labor—management subcommittee during its hearing earlier this year on anti-discrimination legislation.

In a statement accompanying a summary of the report, Humphrey said "the evidence is clear that legislation by the Congress is in order to provide equal opportunity in employment, adequate housing, fuller education and improved health facilities for all Americans."

In a summary of the report, the subcommittee said:

The highest proportion of Negro workers continues to be found in the lower paying and less skilled occupations, such as service workers and laborers.

However, the shift of Negroes into better paying and more skilled jobs, accellerated during the war years, has in general been maintained.

In 1950 the Negro wage and salary worker earned an average of about $1,300, or 52 per cent of the average for white workers, while in 1939 the average income for Negro wage and salary workers was about $400—less than 40 per cent of the average for White wage earners.

Average Has Increased

The summary noted that since 1939 the average for Negro workers has increased relatively more than for White.

During the 1940-1950 decade, when World War II opened up many job opportunities, there was a marked shift of the Negro population from Southern to Northern, central and western states.

Turning to education, the report said that in 1950 Negroes aged 25 or over had completed an average of seven years of school, almost three years less than the average for White.

Discover Prehistoric Relics In Israel

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 20 (AP)—A French archeologist has discovered relics of prehistoric man in Israel believed to antedate the old testament times of Abraham, the Vatican radio said tonight.

The broadcast said the Frenchman, a Dr. Perrot, had made the discoveries while working for the Academy of Inscriptions and Literature in the Beersheba area. Abraham is believed to have lived in Beersheba, the city of seven wells in the Negev desert, between 1950 and 1850 B. C.

The objects found were described as dating from the Bronze Age, about 3,000 B. C.

Eden Reveals Stand After Talk With Ike

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP) — Britain today threw its support to an Indian plan designed to solve the prisoner of war issue in Korea. The United States also believes the plan is basically satisfactory, informed sources said, but may insist upon certain changes.

Britain made known her approval — with some questions — when Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, spoke soon after he conferred with President-elect Eisenhower.

Both the United States and French delegations were reported to agree with Eden's stand, but officially the U. S. delegation merely called the British declaration "constructive." Russian bloc sources said it was "too early" to react.

Speaks 12 Minutes

Eden spoke for 12 minutes to the U. N. Political Committee. He brought into the open Britain's position which had been stated in several meetings of a subcommittee of Western delegations studying Korean resolutions. He did not refer to or comment on the talk with Eisenhower.

There had been reports that the United States had insisted in private talks with Western delegations on having the Indian resolution spell out in detail provisions for repatriation of prisoners of war and eventual disposition of those still in camps 90 days after an armistice. Apparently these difficulties were solved for, after Eden's speech, informed sources said the U. S. position was almost identical with that of Britain.

Eden, speaking slowly and with great emphasis, said the Indian resolution, presented by V. K. Krishna Menon, should not be viewed too legalistically.

"This resolution is, in my view, a timely and constructive attempt to resolve this deadlock," Eden said. "Progress at Panmunjom has been slow but it represents a remarkable achievement. All but one issue that of prisoners had been settled. Meanwhile the casualties are mounting steadily.

"We have been right in insisting on principles but we should not view this document as something exact. Let us view it rather for what it might achieve. Does it bring us nearer agreement on the outstanding issues? I think it does. I pray this committee will agree on it."

French Spokesman Agrees

A French spokesman said after Eden spoke that his government took the same view of the Menon resolution. It had been reported that France would accept the Indian proposals with or without amendments.

The Political Committee convened as soon as Eden arrived from the Eisenhower talks. Eden recalled at the outset that he had brought up in his opening speech to the General Assembly four principles which must be satisfied in any solution. They were:

1. Every prisoner of war has the right to be released upon an armistice.

2. Every prisoner has the right to be repatriated.

3. Each side must furnish facilities for repatriation.

4. Neither side had the right to use force for detention or repatriation.

Truman Thinks U. S. Is Unified On World Policy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — President Truman today pronounced America unified "in its policy toward the rest of the world."

It was against a background of Democratic defeat in the election and the historic conference at the White House Tuesday with President-elect Eisenhower that the Chief Executive made his appraisal.

Truman told a news conference—his first in two months — he was "very happy" that Eisenhower is supporting the American-United Nations position against repatriation of Korean war prisoners against their will.

Talked Of Repatriation

Pulling aside the curtains for a bare glimpse of what went on at his meeting with the man who will succeed him next Jan. 20, Truman said the repatriation issue was "one of the main things about which we talked." In answer to a question, he said the Iranian problem also was discussed.

The talk with Eisenhower was principally, but not altogether, devoted to foreign relations, the President said.

He declared incidentally that if he had it to do over, he still would call the U. N. intervention in Korea a police action and he doesn't care who challenges the expression. It was a police action of the U. N., to stop aggression, and nothing else, he said.

Sometime around Dec. 1, the President told a questioner, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the defeated Democratic presidential candidate, is coming to Washington and he will see the governor.

He made it clear once more that he still considers Stevenson head of the party and said he will ask nothing of him — merely tell the governor he will coooperate in reorganizing the party.

Worked Out Arrangements

Out of that meeting came a joint statement that he and Eisenhower had worked out arrangements for exchange of information and for cooperation they said "will be of great value to the stability of our country and to the favorable progress of international affairs."

Nothing was said at the time about Eisenhower's views on Korean war prisoners. But in New York yesterday, Sen. Wiley (R-Wis), conferred with Eisenhower and said afterward the general is "completely dedicated to the principles of the U. N. and re-emphasized his agreement with the principle of no forcible repatriation of Communist prisoners." Wiley is slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the new Congress.

Three Representatives Of Press To Travel With Ike To Korea

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) —James C. Hagerty, press secretary for President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower, announced today that only three representative of news media will travel with the general on his trip to Korea.

Hagerty said that he recommended one correspondent, a still photographer and a newsreel man. He said there were only three places left on the general's plane.

He said he has had more than 100 applications for places for correspondents.

Hagerty said he recommended that various services providing news and picture coverage arrange to choose the three individual representatives.

Cabinet Appointees

Allies Unleash Rocket Barrage On Chinese Reds

SEOUL, Friday, Nov. 21 (AP)—A great rocket barrage and a furious air bombardment scourged Communist lines in Central Korea Thursday, but still the Chinese attacked and fighting flickered and flared on Sniper Ridge early today.

The air wave also blew hot. Sable jets knocked down five MIGs and damaged two more out of Red fighter parties which tried to balk a huge Allied fire raid on a Communist troop concentration area south of the Manchurian border.

One of the biggest air raids of the 37-day-old battle for the Kumhwa ridges was thrown against Chinese field guns, bunkers and troop concentration Thursday afternoon.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. Air Force chief of staff, watched from a forward bunker as Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers snarled over and dumped their deadly loads on the Red positions.

A total of 576 rockets smashed and exploded within a few seconds among Communist troops and supplies north of Sniper Ridge. Half the rockets had fuses timed to explode a few feet above ground, a devastation weapon against troops in the open.

Nevertheless, the Communists struck at 8:20 p. m. with two companies, possibly 300 or 400 men, in the biggest attack on Sniper Ridge in four days.

One company hit Pinpoint Hill, the crest of Sniper Ridge. The other attacked Little Finger Ridge, eastern spur of Sniper.

The only other action of size on the 155-mile front was an Eighth Army raid on an enemy hill east of the Pukham River on the Eastern Front. The Army reported the raiders killed or wounded 85 Communist troops before withdrawing.

In the air battles, Capt. Paul E. Jones, Sabre jet pilot from Aragon, Ga., shot down two of the MIGs within two minutes Thursday.

Panaro River Inundates Valley

ROME, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Panaro River raged through its dikes at four places today, flooding thousands of acres of rich Po Valley farmland.

The angry waters spilled out at Camposanto and near San Felice, in the area north of Modena.

About 250 miles to the northeast, near Udine, the Noncello River broke through dikes, causing more local floods.

Elsewhere, Europe shivered in a cold snap.

Snow fell again in Paris piling a fresh layer on yesterday's three inches. In Eastern France roads were blocked to a depth of 12 inches.

Fails To Follow Own Advice; Is Killed In Holdup

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — Samuel Cohen, a 64-year-old Bronx grocer, read a newspaper story about a woman who fought off holdup men. He told a friend today she was "foolish."

Cohen said if anybody ever pointed a gun at him "they could have everything I've got."

A few hours later, Cohen was found lying in his grocery of bullet wounds. The cash register had been rifled. His last words were:

"I was shot. Holdup."

GOP To Keep Commies Out

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP) — The House Un-American Activities Committee will do its utmost to keep Communists out of the new Republican administration, Rep. Harold H. Velde (R-Ill) said today.

The committee also will continue weeding out "pinks and fellow travelers already established in some executive departments," he said. "We plan to work closely with the attorney general and the FBI."

"That will take up much of our time when we resume operations in January," he explained to The Associated Press when reached by telephone at the Miami Beach hotel where he is vacationing.

Velde is the ranking Republican on the committee and is expected to become chairman after the Republicans take over.

"I think one of the most important activities of our committee is to make certain we don't get any Communists in the new administration," Velde said.

"They'll make every effort to infiltrate," he continued. "They want power. That means the party in power."

Velde said the committee intended to continue its investigation into Communistic infiltration into labor unions. "We've already had hearings in several cities, including Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh," he said.

State Police Plan Safety Lectures

ABERDEEN, Md., Nov. 20 (AP) — Maryland State Police will give highway safety lectures at the Army Proving Ground here next month in a program designed to minimize the number of Christmas Holiday traffic accidents involving military personnel.

About 5,000 soldiers will hear the lectures delivered Dec. 13 by State Police Corp. J. A. McIsaac and Trooper 1-c J. F. White.

Bierut Named New Premier Of Red Poland

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 20 (AP)—Boleslaw Bierut today stepped down from the presidency of Poland under this Communist-ruled country's new constitution, and became its Premier.

The new Parliament, chosen recently in the one-slate national elections dominated by the United Workers Communist party, selected Bierut unanimously for the premiership.

Under the new constitution, the post of president of the Polish People's Republic no longer exists. A State Council is the highest organ of the state, similar to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet in the USSR. To the chairmanship of the council Parliament elected Alexander Zawadski, a former vice premier. He now occupies a position in Poland similar to that of N. M. Shvernik, chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet.

The announcement of the shift made no mention of Josef Cyrankiewicz, who was Premier up to the elections which set up this new form of "people's government" for Poland.

It seemed likely that Cyrankiewicz would be transferred to other duties.

The change in structure of the Polish government shapes it into the pattern of the Soviet government, in line with similar movies in Communist-ruled Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. Of the Soviet European satellites, only Czechoslovakia now remains to fall into line with this pattern.

52 Hurt When Train, Bus Hit

HOUSTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — A streamliner train and a crowded city bus collided here today, injuring 52 people. The bus driver was charged with aggravated assault by motor vehicle.

Injuries to 17 people were serious enough to have the victims admitted to hospitals after receiving emergency treatment.

The bus driver, Robert Leemon Loe, 35, was released under $400 bond after the charge was filed.

Loe, in a written statement, said the 45 passenger bus was so crowded with its approximately 75 occupants that he had to stand up while checking to see if the rail crossing was clear.

Dulles Named As Head Of State Dept.

Wilson Defense Boss, McKay Interior Sec'y

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower named his secretaries of state, defense and the interior today in a swift series of cabinet-making moves before he takes off secretly for Korea.

The first three appointments in the new GOP administration which will take over the reins of government on Jan. 20 went to:

John Foster Dulles, 64, Republican foreign affairs expert, as secretary of state succeeding Dean Acheson.

Charles E. Wilson of Detroit, 62, president of General Motors, as secretary of defense succeeding Robert Lovett.

Orderly Transfer

Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon, 59, as secretary of the interior succeeding Oscar Chapman.

With these three appointments, Eisenhower made his first step toward forming the top echelon of his regime and carrying out an "orderly transfer" of authority from Democrats to Republicans. This was in line with the agreement reached between him and President Truman in their White House conference Tuesday.

Eisenhower's selection of Dulles, Wilson and McKay followed close on the heels of a conference between Dulles and the general and a report that Wilson had been selected for the key defense job.

The brief announcement was made by Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, at the general's Commodore Hotel headquarters.

The big surprise was the name of McKay, who had not been regarded generally as being among the front-runners for the job.

Here are brief thumbnail sketches of the three new secretaries:

Dulles — son of a Presbyterian minister. His grandfather, John Watson Foster, was secretary of state under President Benjamin Harrison. He got his first diplomatic appointment from President Wilson at the age of 29—to negotiate with Latin American countries over the wartime safety of the Panama Canal. He was named by President Roosevelt as an advisor in the 1945 San Francisco Conference that adopted the United Nations charter. He also served as Republican adviser to three Democratic secretaries of state, was the architect of the Japanese Peace Treaty, and advised Eisenhower on foreign policy during his campaign.

Wilson Is GM Head

Wilson — he is not to be confused with the Charles E. Wilson of General Electric who was government war mobilizer and who split with President Truman over the administration's handling of the steel strike during the past year. Wilson took over the presidency of the vast General Motors organization in 1941 after having been a vice president for 10 years. Some years ago he had difficulties with labor unions. But in recent years, GM's Wilson had become recognized as a leader in obtaining agreements on long-term working contracts, cost-of-living pay arrangements and wage boosts based on increased production.

McKay — he is a veteran of the first world war. He ran an automobile agency in Salem, Ore., for

Polish Youth Escapes Reds To Meet Father In London

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—A wide-eyed Polish boy who bluffed his way through the iron curtain arrived tonight on the last leg of his long journey to find the father he cannot even remember.

Myczyslav Tomkiewicz, 13, fair-haired and undersized, managed a thin smile as he stepped out of a plane from Berlin. He had put behind the hunger and fear that have been his companions for most of his life.

The father, Ludwig Tomkiewicz, a former officer in the anti-Soviet army of Poland's wartime Gen. Anders, works at a textile mill now in Blackburn, northern England. Father and son had been apart since the boy was a few months old. The father was so overcome by emotion over the prospective meeting that he was unable to come to London.

The boy was rushed through customs and placed in care of a woman who will take him to Blackburn.

When war separated the family, the boy, his mother and grandmother were sent to a collective farm in Soviet Siberia for six years. This was punishment for the father's wartime career with the anti-Soviet Poles.

Through an interpreter, Myczyslav said about all he can remember of his early years was living in a cold Siberian clay hut shared with the farm animals. His grandmother died there in 1944.

At first the boy thought his father was dead. Then one day he heard he was in England, and Myczyslav started trying to come here.

He sold his pet rabbits and collected eight pounds of bread and a map. Then, by riding trains and walking, he got from southwestern Poland to Berlin in five days.

Myczyslav said he had slipped through the Russian-German-Polish controls chiefly by answering in Russian the questions any guards asked him. He still speaks in a childish treble.

The British consulate in Berlin found the boy in a children's home and arranged for him to come to England.

Danish Plane Blazes Trail From California Over Pole

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 29 (AP)—Twentieth century Vikings, winging their American-built plane across the polar icecap, blazed a dramatic new era of commerce in a California-Europe flight ending here tonight.

Thirteen crewmen of the Scandinavian Air Lines plane "Arild Viking" brought their 22 passengers to a landing in a soft Danish drizzle at Kastrup Airport — just 28 hours and seven minutes after leaving Los Angeles.

They had spent 23 hours, 38 minutes flying the 5,852 miles. Four hours, 29 minutes were spent on the ground at Edmonton, Alberta, and the U. S. Air Force base at Thule, Greenland, getting gas for their DC6B.

"Just a wonderful pleasure cruise," said the Danish chief pilot, Capt. Povl Jensen, after he set the plane down at 9:47 p. m., (3:47 p. m., EST).

The flight was intended to blaze a direct air travel from sunny California to Europe, with the bleak and frigid polar regions as the gateway. It is 1,000 miles shorter than by way of New York. Scheduled service will be started by spring if both the United States and Canadian government approve.

En route, the plane crossed the magnetic north pole.

Tired but enthusiastic, the passengers and crew were all but overwhelmed by a large crowd gathered on the floodlighted apron here. Greenland girls in colorful native costumes hurried up with bouquets of flowers. United States, Canadian, Swedish, Norwegian and Danish flags decorated the walls of the airport's main hall.

The big Douglas airliner cruised through temperatures 31 degrees below zero after leaving Greenland, but everyone was comfortable inside the cabin.

Adm. King Reveals Conflict With Late Secretary Forrestal

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Fleet Adm. Ernest J. King, top boss of America's Navy in World War II, discloses now some battles and skirmishes that weren't fought at sea.

In memoirs to be published tomorrow by W. W. Norton and Company King tells of extended conflict with the late James P. Forrestal, then secretary of the Navy; of disagreement with President Roosevelt; and submits his version of the controversies over Pearl Harbor, antisubmarine warfare and armed forces unification.

Written Impersonally

The book, written impersonally in the third persons in collaboration with Comdr. Walter Muir Whitehill, USNR, just about completes the publication of war narratives by the ranking military commanders of the United States and England.

Commenting on behind-the-scenes problems in the Navy Department, the memoirs report:

"At times Mr. Forrestal seemed bent on harassing King in some ways, to which King's response was to tell the secretary the truth as he saw it."

Disagreement between the men reached a peak over King's successor as chief of naval operations after the war ended. Forrestal indicated no preference for Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, wartime commander in the Facific.

"King endeavored to force his (Forrestal's) hand by writing . . . a letter to the President via the secretary of the Navy, asking to be relieved by Fleet Adm. Nimitz, and passing the letter to Secretary Forrstal for transmission to President Truman," the book recounts. "When the secretary refused to endorse the letter . . . King went to the White House in person and discussed the matter with Mr. Truman, who agreed without hesitation that Nimitz should have the post."

Subsequently, King adds, Forrestal "was sufficiently irritated" to speed up the time of change of command and to have Nimitz's tenure cut from four to two years.

Clash Over Stark

The admiral and secretary also clashed over the removal of Adm. Harold R. Stark from command in Europe after a postwar Pearl Harbor investigation, and over Forrestal's rejection of recommendations by a flag officers' selection board for a number of promotions.

Concerning investigation into the attack on Pearl Harbor, King says he felt the commission headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts "had not reached the heart of the matter but had merely produced scapegoats to satisfy the popular demand for fixing the responsibility. . . . It had seemed to him that Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Gen. Walter Short had been sacrificed to political expediency."

In 1941 Stark was chief of naval

Deposed Czech Head Confesses In Purge Trial

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 20 (AP)—Rudolf Slansky, deposed secretary general of the Czechoslovak Communist party, confessed today at the purge trial of 14 former party leaders in Prague that he plotted murder, treason, sabotage and anti-Soviet activities for the past 25 years.

Slansky, 51, long a power in international communism, and former Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis, one of the exiled "London group" of Communists in World War II, were prize defendants in the trial which may be a prelude to a purge rivaling the Moscow bloodletting of the mid-1930s. No Western correspondents are in Prague. The proceedings before the five-man purge court were broadcast by Prague radio.

The trial has strong anti-Jewish overtones. Eleven of the 14 accused of treason, spying and sabotage are Jewish. Slansky—accused among other things of "Trotskyite Zionism"—even dragged into his three-hour confession the name of Ana Pauker, deposed Communist first lady of Romania, also Jewish. He said he supported the "anti-Communist" activities of Mrs. Pauker, once Romania's foreign minister and friend to Stalin. Romanian Communists purged her earlier this year.

It seemed clear in the broadcasts from Prague that international communism intended to make the trial the biggest propaganda show in years.

Only a few hours after it opened, Prague radio reported workers "were demanding the extreme penalty" for the 14, which in Czechoslovakia means death by hanging.

Domestically, the trial not only smeared the government of the late President Eduard Benes, which was overthrown in the Red coup of Feb. 25, 1948, but apparently whipped up anti-Semitism in a search for scapegoats for lagging Czechoslovak production.

It seemed likely there would be more trials, not only in Czechoslovakia but in other Communist countries of East Europe. The use of Mrs. Pauker's name was an indication.

Dulles Named

many years where he was mayor. He served as a state senator and became governor of his state four years ago. He was elected to serve the unexpired term of Earl Snell who was killed in a plane crash. McKay has been active in the study of resources development in the Northwest as a member of the Columbia Basin Inter-Agency Committee. He insisted during the campaign that a Republican administration would not call a halt to construction of multi-purpose dams and resources development.

The three appointees were expected to go to Washington soon and begin familiarizing themselves with the duties they are to assume.

Spurned Judgeship

Phone Slugs Foil Mobster

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (AP)—With $1,800 in his pocket, Leonard C. Moceri, longtime Mafia mobster, dropped a slug in a telephone coin box and brought about his own jailing today on a 20-year-old Toledo, O., murder charge.

Moceri, 45, was identified by Capt. J. E. Hamilton of the Los Angeles police intelligence unit as "the nation's most wanted trigger man" and a possible suspect in the 1947 Bugsy Siegel murder and other Hollywood slayings.

Moceri, a dapper, deadpan type, is under indictment for four gangland slayings in Toledo from 1931 to 1933. Prosecutor Joel S. Rhinefort said he will take steps to return Moceri there for trial.

He was collared by two telephone company agents as he stepped out of a Hollywood phone booth and into his late model Cadillac. The agents said he had used a handful of two-bit slugs to make a call to Las Vegas, Nev.

The agents said he then offered them $100 apiece to "forget the whole thing." They turned him over to police who booked him on petty theft. He gave his name as John Baker, and was released on $500 bond.

A fingerprint check, however, showed the man was Moceri—also known as Leonardo Parisi and Leo (Lips) Licavoli. He was quickly followed and re-arrested.

Britain Plans War Memorial Chapel For American Dead

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — A nationwide hunt began today to locate the next-of-kin of American military personnel killed in World War II operations launched from the British Isles.

Col. John Jacob Astor, chairman of the Times, London, came to this country to do the job.

His objective is to learn the present addresses of the closest relatives of 28,000 American dead in order to include them in gestures of British homage.

"We have only one way to find them," he told a news conference. "That is by getting a message into the homes in the hope that the families will get in touch with us."

The project is connected with the building of an American memorial chapel in London's massive St. Paul's Cathedral.

Approximately two million Britons contributed to a fund for the chapel in tribute to "American service and sacrifice in common defense of the world's liberty," and in memory of the 28,000.

They are the men and women of U. S. arms who died in actions moving out from British bases, or who are buried in British soil.

In addition to the chapel, still under construction, the Times (London) and British Lord Dulverton have financed the publication of a book, "Britain's Homage to 28,000 American Dead," for distribution to kin of these war casualties.

Astor said the appeal for the addresses will be made by press, radio and television.

The defense department, he said, was unable to supply the information, partly because lack of a filing breakdown of the names, and because many of the relatives have moved in the last seven years.

The book, printed on high-gloss paper and heavily illustrated with photographs, tells the story of the American fighting men's war years in Britain.

Its dedication:

"A book in remembrance of those who lived and died in Britain's midst in the second world war and all soldiers, sailors and airmen of the United States of America in their war-time comradeship with the British people."

Astor asked that nearest kin of those who died in operations from Britain send the name of the deceased, his unit, and their own name, address and relationship to him at this address:

"The Times, London, Inc., 45 East 51st Street, New York 22, N. Y."

Seeks Owner Of Hagerstown Ring

SALISBURY, Nov. 20 (AP) — Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, retired former commander of the 29th division, is trying to determine the owner of a Hagerstown High School class ring.

Woodcock found the ring on his property. It is dated 1933 and bears the initials "M.E.L."

The general said he is unable even to guess how a Hagerstown class ring happened to turn up 180 miles and across Chesapeake Bay from home base.

Adm. King Reveals operations and after Pearl Harbor was transferred to duties in London.

"It appeared that this assignment had been made originally because the President wished, for political reasons, to have Stark out of Washington. King has never been able to understand why political blame for Pearl Harbor should have been attached to Stark when no suggestion of blame was ever attributed to Gen. George C. Marshall, who held the comparable post of chief of staff for the Army."

As another part of his story King discloses that in 1944, about the time of Roosevelt's nomination for a fourth term, the President's personal aide, Adm. William D. Leahy, "had come to King's office one day and said the President would like to have King cease using the customary term commander in chief, both in respect to the United States fleet and the Pacific and Atlantic fleets. King says he felt that the President was seeking to emphasize his own role as commander in chief of all armed forces.

King told Leahy that he would drop use of the title only if Roosevelt issued an order or a request, "but Leahy said that the President did not wish to issue a definite order, but simply would like to have it done. That was the last that King heard of that particular matter."

Concerning unification of the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Forces into a single Department of Defense, King confines his comment to a terse: "King was always very cool to the suggestion."

Adm. King Adds His Version To World War II Inside Story

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, top boss of America's Navy in World War II, discloses now some battles and skirmishes that weren't fought at sea.

In memoirs published this week King tells of extended conflict with the late James P. Forrestal, then secretary of the Navy; of disagreement with President Roosevelt; and submits his version of the controversies over Pearl Harbor, anti-submarine warfare and armed forces unification.

The book, written impersonally in the third person in collaboration with Cmdr. Walter Muir Whitehill (USNR), just about completes the publication of war narratives by the ranking military commanders of the United States and England.

"The record of the war is vast," King explains, "and final judgment upon it is not for this generation . . . a sincere attempt to fill some of the gaps in the official records and to reconstruct events as they seemed at the time may have some value as a record for the future."

Commenting on behind-the-scenes problems in the Navy Department, the memoirs report:

"At times Mr. Forrestal seemed bent on harassing King in some ways, to which King's response was to tell the secretary the truth as he saw it."

Disagreement between the men reached a peak over King's successor as chief of naval operations after the war ended. Forrestal indicated a preference for Admiral Richard S. Edwards. King wanted Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, wartime commander in the Pacific.

"King endeavored to force his (Forrestal's) hand by writing . . . a letter to the President via the secretary of the Navy, asking to be relieved by Fleet Admiral Nimitz, and passing the letter to Secretary Forrestal for transmission to President Truman," the book recounts. "When the secretary refused to endorse the letter . . . King went to the White House in person and discussed the matter with Mr. Truman, who agreed without hesitation that Nimitz should have the post."

Subsequently, King adds, Forrestal "was sufficiently irritated" to speed up the time of change of command and to have Nimitz's tenure cut from four to two years.

The admiral and secretary also clashed over the removal of Admiral Harold R. Stark from command in Europe after a postwar Pearl Harbor investigation, and over Forrestal's rejection of recommendations by a flag officers' selection board for a number of promotions.

Concerning investigation into the attack on Pearl Harbor, King says he felt the commission headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts "had not reached the heart of the matter, but had merely produced scapegoats to satisfy the popular demand for fixing the responsibility . . . It had seemed to him that Admiral (Husband E.) Kimmel and General (Walter) Short had been sacrificed to political expediency."

In 1941 Stark was chief of naval operations and after Pearl Harbor was transferred to duties in London.

"It appeared that this assignment had been made originally because the President wished, for political reasons, to have Stark out of Washington. King has never been able to understand why political blame for Pearl Harbor should have been attached to Stark when no suggestion of blame was ever attributed to (General George C.) Marshall, who held the comparable post of chief of staff for the Army."

As another part of his story King discloses that in 1944, about the time of Roosevelt's nomination for a fourth term, the President's personal aide, Admiral William D. Leahy, "had come to King's office one day and said the President would like to have King cease using the customary term commander in chief, both in respect to the United States Fleet and the Pacific and Atlantic Fleets. King says he felt that the President was seeking to emphasize his own role as commander in chief of all armed forces.

King told Leahy that he would drop use of the title only if Roosevelt issued an order or a request, "but Leahy said that the President did not wish to issue a definite order, but simply would like to have it done. That was the last that King heard of that particular matter."

Concerning unification of the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force into a single Department of Defense, King confines his comment to a terse: "King was always very cool to the suggestion."

The memoirs also devote considerable space to King's role in the various wartime conferences which Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and later, Marshall Joseph Stalin attended.

Following the Yalta meeting, King discloses, he was given a private train with James F. Byrnes, then secretary of state. After dinner, the book says: "The Soviet vice admiral handed King a very lengthy document wherein the United States promised to give numerous ships, material and supplies to the Soviet Union. King looked over the list. He did not have the authority to approve it, and would not have done so under those circumstances if he had. Consequently he simply remarked that he would take the list back to Washington with him. . . The Soviet officers repeatedly attempted by persuasion, flattery and vodka to induce King to sign on the dotted line, but without success.

"The Soviet vice admiral, who had tried the vodka approach upon a man who was not drinking, seemed very grim and downcast, and King could not help feeling sorry for him, as he had suspicion that the Russian was likely to be demoted for his failure."

A somewhat different incident was described by King in connection with the President's trip to the Cairo conference in November, 1943 aboard the battleship Iowa.

During antiaircraft practice fire by the flotilla en route, the Iowa suddenly veered sharply on its course and a general alarm was sounded.

"It developed" says the admiral in calm naval language, "that the screening destroyer on the starboard bow, engaged at drill, had accidentally discharged a live torpedo directly at Iowa which had, unfortunately but quite naturally, been used as the drill target. That it did not run hot and straight saved the United States Navy the embarrassment of having torpedoed their commander in chief and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"King wished to relieve the commanding officer of the destroyer at once, but, to his great amazement, the President told him to forget it. Consequently no steps were taken."

Set A Good Example

Many people in Allegany County this week no doubt have been puzzled by the frequent appearance of the letters S-A-G-E.

S-A-G-E happens to be the catchword for the fourth annual Allegany County Safety Week observance now drawing to a close.

The letters stand for Set A Good Example, and leaders of the safety campaign have been trying to stress this idea in their appeals to adults as well as to school children. S-A-G-E, a word in itself, means knowing or wise, and safety leaders believe that the sage person will set a good example.

As Inspector Richard Mansfield, retired Washington, D. C., police officer, put it when he was in Cumberland earlier this week, much of the emphasis on safety must be directed to children who will be the nation of tomorrow.

For that belief, concurred in by other safety workers, much of this year's effort as in the past was carried on in the schools.

Inspector Mansfield enlisted hundreds of school children in both the city and county in his "Carefullers" as he visited 10 schools in this section on Tuesday and Wednesday, and impressed upon the youngsters the need for them to obey safety precautions.

It is to be hoped that his program here is as successful as it is in Washington where his efforts have been credited with reducing by 75 per cent the number of children involved in accidents.

That working at safety does pay off was illustrated by Paul E. Burke, executive director of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. Speaking here Tuesday night, Burke said the City of Cumberland ranked first in the state from a safety standpoint in 1951, and Mansfield pointed out that Allegany County led all other Maryland counties for its safety record that same year.

Let's all make safety a full-time job.

Prisoners Of War Issue

When General Eisenhower gets to Korea, he will have to find some way out of the impasse over prisoners of war if his visit is to bear real fruit. This issue has long been the central stumbling block on the road to a truce that is, if the Communists will accept a truce on the same terms, and do not want the Korean War to drag out indefinitely.

The United States says it is adamant against the involuntary return of all prisoners of war in connection with a truce. The U. S. delegation to UN declared on November 7 that it assumed Eisenhower to be in accord with this position. Prime Minister Churchill supported it on November 10, declaring: "It would be dishonor to send thousands of helpless prisoners of war back by force to be massacred," and "one thing never worth doing is to purchase peace at the price of dishonor."

The Chinese Communists say they are adamant against anything less than the repatriation of all prisoners of war. Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky vehemently supported this position before the UN General Assembly on the day Churchill spoke.

The Communists argue that the 1949 revision of the Geneva Convention, which the U. S. A. supported, calls for mutual and complete repatriation. They point out, further, that after World War II the Allies agreed to the return to the Soviet Union of all Russian prisoners of war in Germany.

However, Secretary of State Acheson cites 17 treaties signed by the Soviet government upholding the principle of no involuntary repatriation. General Harrison, chief UN negotiator, declared on October 8 that only "a short while ago" the Chinese had "clearly indicated" their willingness for an armistice if a "sufficiently large" number, not all, of the war prisoners were returned to them. And the Russians still hold German and Japanese World War II prisoners.

Exchange of prisoners on a one-for-one basis was one of the proposals by the UN General Assembly on December 14, 1950, for a cease-fire in Korea. The UN withdrew this proposal on February 27, 1952. The UN Command has offered to exchange 76,600 North Koreans and 7,400 Chinese, all of whom said they wanted to be repatriated, for the same number of prisoners held by the Chinese. The offer was not accepted.

Last September the UN Command released 13,000 of its Communist POW's, reclassifying them as South Korean civilians. The Chinese denounced this action as "unilateral disposal" of individuals named on POW lists.

On September 28, 1952, the UN proposed three alternatives: (1) Transfer all prisoners to a demilitarized area, let the Red Cross or a joint UN Communist commission check on each prisoner's attitude, then release him to the side of his choice. (2) Repatriate all prisoners who wanted repatriation, put the others in a neutral zone, then let them proceed unmolested to the side of their choice. (3) Release all prisoners in a neutral zone and let go where they wanted.

On October 3 the Communist negotiators rejected the proposals, and the negotiations were recessed indefinitely. On October 16 the Communists suggested new talks but still stood out for full involuntary repatriations; on October 20 General Clark replied that new talks on that basis were useless.

Variations of the UN proposal of September 28 have been advanced by several of the smaller nations, including Mexico. On November 11, Armistice Day, British Foreign Secretary Eden offered in the UN Assembly four principles: Every POW had the right to (1) be released on an armistice, (2) be repatriated speedily, (3) be given every facility for such repatriation, (4) not have force used in connection with his "disposal." Take it from there, General Ike.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

The War Against Tuberculosis

Since the turn of the century the mortality rate from tuberculosis has been reduced from 200 per 100,000 to approximately 20. There is reason to believe that the number of deaths will continue to decrease provided we do not become too optimistic and stop fighting the disease.

Waging a successful campaign against the tubercle bacillus requires eternal vigilance; in a short time, all the progress that has been achieved throughout the years would be for naught if we lowered our guard. This is particularly apropos now when we are less than half way through our attempt to wipe out the enemy.

The army of anti-tuberculosis fighters is steeped in tradition. The battle began with Rene T. Laennec, the 19th century French clinician, who developed the stethoscope. Little more than a half-century later Robert Koch, the German bacteriologist, became a five star general in this war with his discovery that a tiny, rod-shaped micro-organism was responsible for the malady. The tuberculin test also stemmed from his fertile brain and he was instrumental in setting up a school to train bateriological research workers. The Scot, Sir Robert Philip, who died in 1939 at the age of 82, was another member of the top brass because of his establishment of clinics and sanatoriums in Europe, whereas Dr. Edward L. Trudeau is the father of the sanatorium movement in the United States.

At present, the guiding force behind much of this work is the National Tuberculosis association. The Christmas seal drive has been responsible for part of the success of this organization and its affiliated agencies. The money has been used for many projects, including saving lives through education of the public, training technical personnel, and providing the equipment needed for early tuberculosis detection. In addition, funds are supplied to support sanatoriums, hospitals, and research. The Christmas seal associations thruout the country have promoted the idea of free sanatoriums and rehabilitation plans.

Thru public education, many age old misconceptions and fears about tuberculosis have been exploded. This explains why we no longer have a horror of "consumption" and have assumed a more sensible attitude toward its victims. Another vanished misconception is that the disease is hereditary. It "runs in families" because infection spreads from one member to another wherever there is close contact. Early detection serves a dual purpose. The sooner the disorder is detected the better the chances for cure and the less opportunity there is of spread to others.

We have learned also that tuberculosis can be treated in our own community. There is no need to follow the advice of Celsus, given 1,900 years ago, "As soon as man finds himself spitting and hacking on rising in the morning he should immediately take possession of a cow and go high up in the mountains and live on the fruit of the cow." The same can be said of damp sea air or dry desert air, as climate is the least important factor in treatment.

The diseased lung needs rest which it receives as a result of pneumothorax and other surgical procedures. Chemicals such as streptomycin and PAS are being used as well as the new anti-tuberculosis isoniazid products. These are some of the vast number of projects that Christmas seals help support.

Hydrogen Bomb Gives Eisenhower Bargaining Power For Peace; There Will Be Danger Of War As Long As There Is An Iron Curtain

WASHINGTON — Last Sunday, the day the hydrogen bomb explosion was announced, I happened to go to church. I say "happened" because a television program and a radio broadcast both coming on a Sunday ordinarily make it hard for me to go to church.

But the telecast is being switched to Wednesdays, so I surprised Mrs. P. by taking her to church, where I listened to Rev. John R. Anschutz preach a sermon on prayer. Knowing that the hydrogen bomb announcement was due to be made later that day or the next morning, I did quite a bit of thinking about prayer, and the fact that maybe if we had relied more on prayer and the things that go with prayer, we wouldn't be in the predicament of building bomb shelters and going underground for fear of explosions that could burn up our civilization.

Over at the Alexandria, Va., church where George Washington used to worship, Rev. O. V. T. Chamberlain chose as his closing hymn: "The day Thou gavest, Lord, is ended."

That expresses some thoughts of mine too.

That expressed some thoughts of mine too.

For the day the Lord gave us could very well be ended if we and the Russians ever get to trading hydrogen bomb blows across the Arctic.

Bombs vs. Ideas

On the other hand, I also figured that bombs never killed an idea, and our greatest natural resource is not plutonium or tritium, but our moral and spiritual strength.

Religion and communism cannot survive together. But one trouble is that religion has got to mean more than a refuge from ruthless force. It must be a pattern for life, not a ritual for one hour on Sunday.

Another trouble is that men of all faiths and of little faith have been seeking ideas to defeat communism, when right around the corner the best idea of all is being neglected — the Sermon on the Mount, given 2,000 years ago as a daily guide for living with each other.

The big trouble, of course, is to get that daily guide adopted not only here, but also behind an iron curtain where religion is barred and where we can't even mail a package.

I have been harping for so long that I guess people are tired of hearing me, about the fact that there will always be danger of war —no matter how many H-bombs we build or how many men we draft—along as we can't speak to the Russian people, can't mingle with them, can't co-operate with them in a free press, free radio, free church, free books, and free contact with the outside world.

As long as 12 men in the Kremlin can declare war with no Congress, no church, no press, or power of public opinion to put on the brakes, there will always be danger of war and the day Thou gavest, Lord, may be ended.

Breaking Iron Curtain.

I have tried in what feeble ways I could to show that the iron curtain was not as impenetrable as it's supposed to be. I once traveled along it from Turkey to Berlin showing up its loopholes; and in co-operation with the Crusade for Freedom I helped float 11,000,000 leaflets via balloons into Czechoslovakia and Poland.

These at best were puny efforts, though they showed, from the reaction on the other side of the iron curtain, how eagerly its people welcome contact with us.

Today, however, we have two opportunities which need not be puny. First we have a new and powerful hydrogen bomb, thereby giving us tremendous bargaining power to break down the artificial barriers preventing peace.

Second, we have a new President. He is a man of great prestige, known throughout the world and in Russia. And he has what Franklin Roosevelt had, a flair for dramatics the ability to win people, to capture their imagination. Whether you agree with him politically or not, Eisenhower is and can be an international salesman. And that's what's needed today in selling the world new instruments for peace.

It is always possible at the beginning of a new administration to form important, new and dynamic policies.

That's because outgoing leaders become jaded and get in a rut. Our present outgoing leaders have put across some milestones against communism for which historians will give them great credit—the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Pact.

But the sheen is off these policies now. They are shopworn and lackluster. They still form a firm foundation on which to build for prosperity and peace. And on them a new administration can build bigger things—if it has courage and imagination.

Seldom in history has a new President come into office when the peoples of the world had reached a lower ebb of despondency, when the danger of total war was potentially greater, and when there was placed in the new President's hands greater bargaining power—the hydrogen bomb.

In another year that bargaining power may be gone. The Kremlin by then may have the H-bomb. But until then a new leader with courage, imagination, conviction has a heaven-sent opportunity to reopen the Baruch plan for the control of atomic energy, and simultaneously open up the iron curtain to American truth, culture, and the American people.

If the latter can be done, the Korean War and all kindred problems will automatically solve themselves.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Wisdom About Korea

Senator Styles Bridges, addressing himself to the Korean question in the "American Mercury," profoundly remarks:

"In our republic one man is said to be as good as another. But it doesn't follow that one man is as wise as another; and what is needed is wisdom. . ."

It is so often said that every man is entitled to his opinion. Yet, what is his opinion worth when neither experience, scholarship nor wisdom supports it? The Korean War, costly in American life, is an example of the danger to a nation of swift action guided not by carefully prepared knowledge and applied wisdom, but by an emotional reflex to an immediate challenge. As long as our government was directed in its Far Eastern policies by Owen Lattimore, John P. Davies, Jr., Philip Jessup and similar persons prejudiced at the time of crisis in favor of Soviet Russia, we had to go wrong.

Senator Bridges wisely raises the question as to the fact of the war. It is a war. It is not a police action. It is an American war, not a United Nations disciplinary effort. He says of it:

"The Third World War is not in the future; we are in it now; we were in it even before the Second World War ended. The Third World War is the oldest of all wars; it's the determination of totalitarian conspiracy to destroy the revolutionary idea of free government and individual importance."

This is a correctly stated position from which there can be no factual retreat. And no one, Republican or Democrat, Truman, Eisenhower or Stevenson, has presented a program for ending this war. Perhaps there can be no end to it in the foreseeable future. Do we have the courage to face that fact? Do we have the fortitude to recognize that historical errors having been made by our politicians at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam, they cannot be corrected by wishful thinking and by Pollyannish platitudes?

How complicated our relations to the enemy are is evidenced by the fact that we have spent 16 months talking about how a truce might be achieved and during that prolonged period no truce has been approached and Americans have continued to be killed.

One of our major difficulties is that for most Americans Asia is a forbidden continent about which they know nothing. Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, Secretaries of State Hull, Byrnes, Stettinus, Marshall and Acheson were ignorant concerning Asia. The only one of these men who had spent any time on that continent was General George Marshall, first with the 15th Infantry in Tientsin and then as Mr. Roosevelt's ambassador to China. The only experts consulted from 1937 to 1952 were leftists, out of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Older China experts were ignored because their well-prepared experience conflicted with the opinions of those who, without knowledge reached conclusions which have proved to be wrong. Of this Senator Bridges says:

"China, the heart of Asia, was lost to the enemy. Whether it was lost by Roosevelt's listening to Hiss at Yalta; by Chiang's alleged intransigence; by Stilwell's petulence; by Marshall's somnolence; or by the chicanery and perhaps treachery of the Institute of Pacific Relations—all these we have debated with a good deal of light as well as heat. The fact now is that the heart of Asia was lost, and virtually every American, except those who support the cause of communism, now agrees with General MacArthur that this was a tragedy for which we shall be paying for generations . . ."

General Eisenhower has no vested interests in the mistakes made in Asia. He had no part of those mistakes. Except for the short period, November 10, 1945-1948, when he was chief-of-staff, no Asiatic matter came before him. Should John Foster Dulles be chosen secretary of State, our country will have a knowledgeable man of high character and an intimate relationship with the east of Asia. It would be a good appointment from this standpoint, the China problem will remain with the United States throughout this administration.

And what would be essential then would be to recognize the fact of war and to form firmer and tighter relations with our allies, South Korea, Formosa, Japan, and the Philippines. War requires sharp and positive thinking if loss of life is to be minimized. We have not had that concerning Asia, for two decades; it is essential now.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — During the recent Presidential campaign, when it was announced that General Eisenhower would visit Korea, the spokesmen for the Democratic party declared that the answer to the problem in the Far East was not to be found in Korea but in Moscow. It is beginning to appear that the answer may also be found in London and Washington.

The realistic truth is that the Allies are divided. They do not see eye to eye on the Far Eastern problem. Russia knows this and is alert enough to take advantage of the dissention among the countries supposedly allied in Korea.

The big question before the world is whether British isolationism, such as arose under Prime Minister Baldwin, and unwittingly helped to bring on World War II, will once more contribute factors that can leave the Allies helpless in the face of World War III.

It is just 17 years ago this month that Great Britain voted in the last election held there before the outbreak of World War II when the Conservative party won with a majority of about 250 seats in the House of Commons and Stanley Baldwin became prime minister.

Reviewer Cites Parallel

It so happens that a few days ago a reviewer in the "London Times," discussing a recently published biography of Stanley Baldwin, written by G. M. Young, gives a significant analysis of what was happening in those prewar years. He refers to a parallel in what is happening today.

The "London Times" reviewer says in part:

" 'War is a dreadful thing.' Here was the mainspring of Mr. Baldwin's—and the people's and the parties'—reluctance in those years. It was condemned by Mr. Churchill in 1932, when Mr. Baldwin had forecast that then ext war would wipe out European civilization, as 'fatalism and helplessness.'

"Mr. Baldwin was too much the mirror of his countrymen; no doubt in this case, an indictment can be drawn against a nation. Yet, in the end, the responsibility was his, not theirs. In that election 17 years ago he was given his majority and his chance, and history can judge the default. It is a defult that has a lasting lesson—as Mr. Baldwin himself knew—for all leaders of democracies.

"It is perilous indeed to make 'guilty men' of the thirties scapegoats for defects in the nation which, with the shock of war passed, have by no means gone. More than once since the war, in the life-and-death matters of national economics, has something very like the scenes of the thirties been re-enacted—the resolve reluctantly taken by ministers to press on with hard and harsh measures to regain national solvency and then that resolve weakened and dissipated by distaste of unpopularity and public complaint. The warning is for today."

No better description of the wavering policies of Great Britain today could be written. It will be asked why, with Prime Minister Churchill at the helm, the British are shrinking from the tasks of collective security. The answer is that the Labor party has almost equal strength in Great Britain with the Conservatives. The majority held by Mr. Churchill is narrow, while inside the Labor party is a pacifist and strongly isolationist group led by Aneurin Bevan which is also anti-American.

Sensing the divisions and dissentions inside Great Britain, Stalin has sent Gromyko, one of his ablest hatchet men, to London as ambassador.

Not Alert To Danger

The British themselves are not alert to the danger because today they speak of the far-off Korean war in very much the same terms as they used to talk about Czechoslovakia. The mere announcement that General Eisenhower would go to Korea brought caustic comments from the British press — undoubtedly a reflection of how some of the leaders in Great Britain feel today. They are apprehensive lest American money and manpower be used in the Far East which they think should be used in Europe. Yet they fail to realize that the Korean problem is not related to any single area, but is global in nature.

Perhaps the most discouraging phase of the matter is the assumption that the Korean War can be won only by putting more Allied manpower into it, or by fighting on an "all-out basis." The British, who usually have been ingenious in world diplomacy, are singularly unable today to see that the most important weapon that is needed in order to win the Korean War is a united front among the Allies, and to make those countermoves which are necessary in order to win the cold war.

This means a stricter economic blockade of Russia and her satellites, a stepped-up psychological-warfare program, and pressure upon Communist China through a naval inspection system which will prevent supplies from reaching the Chinese mainland through any merchant ships irrespective of nationality.

Many Moves Possible

In addition the British have never yielded on the subject of allowing Chiang Kai-shek and his Chinese Nationalists to fight their way back to power in China. While nobody in Washington feels that any American troops should be used on the mainland of China, there is a growing feeling here, that, if the Chinese Nationalists want to fight to regain their liberties, the United States Navy should be interposed between Formosa and China to prevent them from doing so.

There are many moves that can be made to bring about a successful ending of the Korean War, but not one of them can be successful if pacificism or the Stanley Baldwin type of reluctance dominates British councils.

The British have a habit of condemning American isolationism, little realizing that British isolationism may be at the bottom of most of the difficulties in the world today. Clearly, a meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and General Eisenhower after the latter has visited Korea would be a milestone on the road to British-American solidarity in world policy.

Europe And The H-Bomb

PARIS

A new Western strategy, depending much more heavily on strategic airpower and such new weapons as the hydrogen bomb, seems likely to emerge from the crisis that is now overtaking the Atlantic alliance.

Initially, at least, President-elect Eisenhower may well be reluctant to adopt this new strategy, since it involves drastic revision of his own plans for Western European defense. Yet he can hardly escape the central fact, already reported in this space. Our allies are no longer working towards the defense force of 98 ready and reserve divisions, as required by Eisenhower's former planning staff at SHAPE.

Under extreme budgetary pressure, our allies have lowered their targets. As a result, even continuing American aid plus recruitment of the Germans will not produce a force of much more than 65 divisions by 1954. Certain of our allies, most notably the British chiefs of staff, have therefore developed a new strategic concept, to rationalize, as it were, their own lowering of targets. This new Western defense concept comes in three parts.

First, the primary deterrents of Soviet aggression are to be America's strategic airpower and America's stock of atomic weapons, prospectively reinforced by the hydrogen bomb, the British atomic bomb and the small but growing strategic airpower of Britain.

Must Be Defended

Second, however, Western Europe, the great prize of Soviet aggressive ambition, the real key to the forward air bases which make our strategic airpower truly effective, is emphatically not to be left naked and undefended. There must be a tough, effective, "covering force" to discourage any attack on Europe.

Third, better plans must also be laid to help this covering force to "cut the enemy down to size" by right uses of the new weapons. The 98 division scheme for Western European defense was based on an intelligence estimate that the Kremlin could attack with 100 divisions across northern Europe, and send 75 more southwards against Italy, Yugoslavia and Greece. The new weapons should be used to prevent such large Soviet forces from being supplied, by severing their communications with the Russian homeland, as well as to destroy these attacking forces themselves.

On the surface, this looks like a scheme that will allow our hard-pressed allies to stabilize their rearmament at approximately the present levels; will allow us at home to stabilize our aid to Europe also; and will afford what is essential—a secure defense of the free world. In the end, the new concept will do all these things. At first, however, adoption of this new concept will force a temporary increase of American military investment, while simultaneously testing the Eisenhower administration's political and diplomatic skill to the utmost.

Budget-wise, what sticks out a mile is the vastly increased importance that the new defense concept will confer on America's offensive and defensive air power. As previously disclosed in this space, President-elect Eisenhower will find waiting for him at the White House deeply alarming studies of the air picture by the most capable American scientists and experts.

Cost Will Be Large

These studies indicate that improved Russian air defenses are beginning to neutralize our strategic air strength. If this is allowed to happen, our whole atomic stockpile will, in effect, be sterilized. These studies also indicate that the growth of Russia's strategic airpower and atomic stocks, combined with the weakness of our own air defenses, will open the United States to crippling surprise attack within about two years. These are fearful trends, which must be arrested at whatever cost. The cost of a "crash program" to avert these trends will certainly be large.

Meanwhile, any slackening of our military contributions to Europe will deprive Europe of its essential

Analysis Lists Breakdown Of Wages In City

The median salary for the 12,250 wage earners of Cumberland is $2,638, according to an analysis of 1950 figures by the Bureau of Census.

This means as many persons earn below $2,638 as receive above that amount—the median being the midway point but not the average.

The report shows also that there are 215 family heads or individuals in the city who earn $10,000 annually or more.

At the bottom of the ladder are 1,660 persons who get less than $500.

The breakdown is:

Less than $500—1,660.
$500 to $999—870.
$1,000 to $1,499—790.
$1,500 to $1,999—935.
$2,000 to $2,499—1,370.
$2,500 to $2,999—1,325.
$3,000 to $3,499—1,270.
$3,500 to $3,999—975.
$4,000 to $4,499—750.
$4,500 to $4,999—575.
$5,000 to $5,999—640.
$6,000 to $6,999—305.
$7,000 to $9,000—300.
$10,000 and over—215.

Five hundred forty wage earners would not report their salaries.

In the non-white class there were in 1950 330 wage earners.

Broken down their incomes were as follows:

Less than $500—30.
$500 to $999—30.
$1,000 to $1,499—20.
$1,500 to $1,999—50.
$2,000 to $2,499—50.
$2,500 to $2,999—50.
$3,000 to $3,499—10.
$3,500 to $3,999—5.
$4,000 to $4,499—5.
$6,000 to $6,999—10.

Five persons would not divulge their earnings.

Local Doctor First In Draft

Dr. George Murray Simons, LaVale, is the first Cumberland area physician to receive orders for induction into the armed forces under Selective Service regulations.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk coordinator of draft boards here, said Dr. Simons will report December 30 in Baltimore for military duty.

Following a pre-induction physical examination some time ago, Dr. Simons was placed in Priority 2—medical men educated at government expense and with less than 20 months of active service.

During World War II, Fahey said, doctors and dentists entered service under a procurement system not covered by Selective Service laws.

Born in Rainsburg, Pa., Dr. Simons came here with his parents at the age of one month. He attended public schools and was graduated from Pennsylvania Avenue High School. He entered the Army soon after graduating from the University of Maryland School of Medicine in September, 1944.

Dr. Simons served in the transport command on the Pacific Coast for about two years and was discharged with the rank of captain. He completed his internship at University Hospital, Baltimore, and also was assistant resident physician there.

Later Dr. Simons returned to Cumberland and served as resident physician at Memorial Hospital for six months, resigning August 1, 1948 to begin his private practice here.

CIO Convention Is Postponed

The state CIO convention originally scheduled for December 4, 5 and 6 has been postponed until December 11, 12 and 13, according to information received by William G. Rice, president of Local 26, United Rubber Workers of America.

Rice said state CIO officials decided to postpone the state session one week due to the change in dates for the national CIO convention as a result of the sudden death of Phillip Murray, national president. The national convention is slated for Atlantic City starting December 1. This convention had originally been set for this week in San Francisco.

Members of the state CIO executive board will meet at 10 a. m. on Wednesday, December 10, at the United Auto Workers Hall in Hagerstown, the convention city, to prepare for the agenda of the session. Harry Castle, a member of Local 26 is a state vice president and member of the executive board.

All sessions of the state CIO meeting will start at 8:30 a. m.

Delegates to the convention from Local 26 besides Castle are Rice, Ralph Beard, Gerald Young and Patrick Zembower.

New Celanese Plant Begins Work In Texas

Celanese Corporation of America's new plant at Pampa, Texas, which began operations last week was built at a cost of $17,000,000, according to R. W. KixMiller, general manager of the firm's chemical division.

The new unit will produce acetic acid and acetic anhydride through a process which was developed at the company's petroleum chemistry research center at Clarkwood, Tex.

Additional units to the plant will be constructed soon for the production of derivatives of acetic acid and acetic anhydride, it was stated. The plant also will increase the company's production capacity for methanol and acetone, it was pointed out.

Hibernians Unit Is Planned Here

Maryland and Baltimore officials of the Ancient Order of Hibernians announced yesterday a meeting will be held in Cumberland, Sunday, November 30, at St. Patrick's Social Center for the purpose of reactivating the organization here.

Letters announcing the meeting have been sent to a large number of Catholics of Irish birth or descent by Jere O. Hamill, state organizer.

The order is a Catholic national fraternal organization that had its beginning in Ireland hundreds of years ago during the English persecutions, and in his letter Mr. Hamill points out that in Maryland His Excellency Archbishop Keough is most anxious for the order to be expanded and strengthened.

"The Hibernians got their start in Maryland in your locality many years ago," the letter adds. "World War II brought about the discontinuation of activities throughout the state, except in Baltimore. Now it is our hope that the order will flourish again in Western Maryland."

Heads Dimes Drive

Stephen Pagenhardt, Oakland, has been named chairman of the 1953 March of Dimes campaign in Garrett County.

Allegany County chairman for the drive, which opens January 2 and continues through January 31, is Winfield C. Adam, general secretary of Central YMCA.

Pair Sentenced In Auto Theft

Two youths, including an AWOL airman, were given suspended sentences of one year in the Maryland Training School for Boys yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court after they pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile here.

The serviceman, John R. Welch, 17, Oldtown, and Robert Bennett, 15, city, also drew suspended 60-day jail terms for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

State Police said the pair will be taken to Baltimore later today to face larceny and breaking and entering charges in the theft of $266 from a home there.

Juvenile Court waived jurisdiction so the youths could be tried before Magistrate Donald W. Mason, who said Baltimore authorities had filed detainers against the pair. Welch has been absent without leave from Andrews Field, Washington, since November 11.

Both were apprehended Tuesday night on Baltimore Street by Officer Harry Iser shortly after they returned from Baltimore on a Blue Ridge bus.

State Trooper William F. Baker said his investigations showed the boys began their spree early Monday by stealing a car from a garage in the rear of a house at 325 Bedford Street.

The car was found abandoned on Oldtown Road at Evitts Creek, about one mile from the city limits.

Apparently the boys hitch-hiked to Baltimore and while there broke into a private residence in East Baltimore Monday afternoon.

Woman's Civic Club Names Appointments, Has Forum

New appointments of the Woman's Civic Club were announced by Mrs. Charles L. Kopp at the general meeting of the club yesterday in Emmanuel Episcopal parish house.

Featuring the program, outstanding educators of the state conducted a panel discussion on "What Are the Greatest Threats to Education Today?"

The appointments included Mrs. Albert Keight as Welfare Group chairman; Mrs. James Orr, Communications chairman; Mrs. William A. Douglas, Contact chairman for the Junior Woman's Civic Club; Mrs. J. Monro Sharer, Mrs. G. Lewis Spoerl and Mrs. Charles R. Nuzum, members of the Traveler's Aid Board.

Mrs. DeLisle Chaney invited members to join a ceramics class which is being taught at her home. Mrs. J. D. Stillwagon, chairman of the Art group, and Mrs. Chaney exhibited ceramic articles which have been made by a group of the civic club members this year.

New members were introduced by Mrs. William M. Somerville. They are Mrs. Frank Carpenter, Mrs. H. K. Gummel, Mrs. Jon S. Cranor, Mrs. Louis W. Lippold, Mrs. John L. Reed, Mrs. William H. Buckholtz, and Mrs. Fred Gates, Jr.

Mrs. David Sigel of the Americanism group led the members in the pledge of allegiance and the reading of the collect. The meeting concluded with the Choral groups presention of "One Little Candle," directed by Mrs. Robert Lord, with Mrs. William B. Ludman, at the piano.

Mrs. Lawrence Shafferman, chairman of the Education group, which is aiding in the development of the club's Americanism theme, introduced the panel members. Moderator was Dr. James E. Spitznas, director of curriculum; Paul Huffington, supervisor of education for Negro schools; Dr. Harold Reese, professor of Education, State Teachers College, Frostburg; and Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of Allegany county Junior High Schools.

Emphasizing that since "public education and popular government are inseparable, it is impossible to have the kind of government in which we believe without an enlightened citizenry". The panel indicated that among the current threats to education the following need consideration: large turnover of teachers; any effort to weaken the non-political organizational character of Maryland's schools; any force which prevents every child from receiving at least 12 years of effective public education; the trend toward overspecialization; efforts to decrease emphasis upon moral and spiritual values; salary inadequacies between education and industry resulting in loss of many capable teachers; military requirements; curtailment of academic freedom; public misinformed on basic issues; limited budgets making for inadequate building facilities; current efforts to include education in the "big smear".

Opti-Mrs To Hold Yule Dinner Party

A jingle party was planned and a Nominating committee voted upon at the meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club, Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Harold Naughton, MacDonald Terrace.

The business session consisted mostly of plans for the December meeting, which is featuring a jingle party for members. It is to be held at the Ali Ghan Country Club, December 5, beginning with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Members are also to bring food to fill a basket for a needy family. Mrs. Raymond Hinkle, Mrs. Walter Weires and Mrs. Francis Warnick were named members of the committee in charge of choosing a family to receive the gift.

Mrs. Earl Nonnenmann was voted chairman of the Nominating committee. Other members are Mrs. Sidney A. Staggers and Mrs. Byron Kight. The slate is to be ready for presentation at the January meeting.

Hostesses for the January meeting were selected. They will be Mrs. George Furstenberg, Mrs. William Chappell, Mrs. Harold Brooks and Mrs. Howard Douglas. The meeting will be January 21, but the place is to be selected next month.

Plans for a rummage sale also were discussed.

The social hour was in keeping with the Thanksgiving theme. Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Chappell and Mrs. Hinkle. Mrs. Nonnenmann received the special award. Fall flowers were used throughout the house and the refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of foilage, encircling fruit and candles, with brown, orange and red predominating. Mrs. Kight, Mrs. Wilbur Kinger and Mrs. Robert Collins were co-hostesses.

Mrs. Lyndon Gump was a guest. Other members present were Mrs. Harold Brook, Mrs. Carl Wigfield, Mrs. Ellis Batdorf, Mrs. Gurstenberg, Mrs. Wiers and Mrs. Bernard Whitacre.

HONORING CO-WORKER—Miss Mary Kiefer was honor guest of a group of co-workers for a dinner celebrating her completion of 40 years service in the boys department of Schwarzenbach Store. She was presented a corsage by the group. At the same time the birthdays of Miss Kiefer, Mrs. Loretta Cassen and Mrs. Catherine Dehart were observed. The party was held at Anton's earlier in the week. Shown left to right are Mrs. Dehart, Mrs. Cassen, Miss Kiefer, Mrs. Elizabeth Trenary and Miss Naomi Bonig.

It will be held December 17 at the Ali Ghan Country Club, beginning with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock. A committee was appointed to plan the entertainment. It consists of John Workmeister, Lewyn C. Davis and William Armbruster.

The group decided to postpone the stag party until after the first of the year.

Election is to be held in January also.

Twenty-two members attended.

Mrs. Lillian Niland, 407 Fifth Street, is improving at her home.

B'er Chayim Youth Group Sponsoring Dance Tomorrow

The B'er Chayim Youth Group is sponsoring its first activity tomorrow, when it is holding a dance. The group was organized last March and invited all young people interested to attend the dance.

It is being held in the vestry room of the temple, Union Street.

Music will be from 8 until 11:30 o'clock with the six piece Alleganians playing.

A floor show will be presented about 9:30, during intermission. It includes variety numbers with tap dancing by James Denmark and accordian numbers by Robert Hardman.

Edmund Goldman is president of the group and is being assisted by Mrs. Frank Kaplon, and Rabbi Samuel Umen, in arrangements.

Mt. Royal PTA Installs Officers

Mt. Royal Parent-Teacher Association installed new officers and reported on projects at the meeting Tuesday evening.

Van Roby spoke briefly regarding the YMCA activities for children and distributed courtesy cards, entitling the holders to use the facilities of the Y for one day.

Miss Ruth McColley, director of home economics for Allegany County, discussed "Nutritional Needs of the Active Child." She conducted a question and answer period at the conclusion of her talk.

It was announced that $201 was made at the recent Fall Festival and a large part of the proceeds were used to pay for the new piano for the school. The remainder was taken from the association's general fund and the piano now is completely paid.

A report also was made that the school faculty took as a project the selling of magazines and from it realized $234. This will be used for the extra expenses of the school. A silver dollar was awarded to Linda Cover and Michael Whitworth as weekly winners in the contest and a pen and pencil set to Elizabeth Morrow and Michael Whitworth for the entire contest.

During the evening programs were distributed. They list the meetings and activities for the coming year. The flag salute was led by Craif Lord and William Cremer gave the PTA prayer.

Mrs. Robert Lord, as president, resigned at the close of the meeting, as she is leaving town. She was presented with an orchid corsage by the faculty of the school.

Mrs. Lord installed the officers. They are Eric Gibbs, president; Robert Little Ebert, vice president; Mrs. Ellsworth Brewer, secretary; and Simon Rosenbaum II, treasurer.

The attendance award was won by Miss Grace Filer's room.

A Christmas entertainment will be presented by the children at the next meeting, December 19.

WED 50 YEARS—Mr. and Mrs. George A. Heavner, Baltimore Pike, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, earlier in the week, at an open house given by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Twigg, Mt. Pleasant Road. The former Miss Bessie Hyre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hyre, Moorefield, W. Va., became the bride of Mr. Heavner, Piedmont, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Heavner, Moorefield, November 19, 1902. The ceremony was performed at the Windsor Hotel, here, by a Methodist minister. The couple moved to Cumberland approximately 35 years ago. They are the parents of nine children and have 30 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Attends Meeting

Five local women attended the meeting of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs advisory council and board of directors, Tuesday in the Hotel Emerson, Baltimore.

They are Mrs. William A. Douglas, Mrs. Charles L. Kopp, Mrs. Raymond T. Bete, Mrs. Lloyd R. Meyers and Mrs. A. N. Golladay.

Workshops for club presidents were conducted by federation officers in the morning.

Mrs. Roy Whitlock, Legislation chairman of the General Federation, and Mrs. Hester Bell Provoson, head of the speech department of the University of Maryland, were the speakers for the afternoon session. They discussed parlementary procedure.

Girls Softball Team Celebrates Championship

The East Side Maids celebrated winning the championship of the Queen's Softball League, at a dinner recently at Clary Club. Each member of the team received a jacket with emblem in the teams' colors of green and gold; and a comb and brush set.

On behalf of the group Miss Helen Winebrenner presented a desk set to Darus Zehrbach, manager. The latter outlined the history of the team, which he said is the oldest girls' team in the area.

Receives Recognition

Mrs. Elizabeth Bete Garnett has received special recognition of scholastic excellence at the sixth Honors Convocation held at the University of Missouri, November 13, according to word received from the university by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond T. Bete.

Mrs. Garnet is a graduate of the class of 1952 in the College of Education at the University of Missouri. This year she has taken a position teaching second grade in Charleston, S. C., while her husband, a chemical engineer from the University of Missouri is serving as engineering officer with the Navy in the Mediterranean.

Campers Club Plans Dance

The Campers Club, boosters of Allegany High School, is sponsoring its first annual Thanksgiving dance November 28. A semi-formal affair it is being held at Clary Club. Music will be by Art Shaffer's Orchestra with dancing from 9 until 1 o'clock.

All Camper Club members of the 1953 season are eligible to attend, by presenting their membership cards. Reservations may be made by calling the Clary Club.

S. Lua Syckes is chairman of arrangements. He is being assisted by Dr. Harry Butler and Robert Barnard, Jr.

American Home Committee Entertains Jr. Woman's Club

The American Home committee of the Junior Woman's Civic Club is planning a special meeting in February, it announced at the special demonstration meeting held Wednesday evening. Mrs. James Weber and Mrs. John Wagoner are cochairmen of the committee.

Miss Reta McIntyre demonstrated ideas for parties during the holidays at the meeting held in the auditorium of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Besides showing how to make dressing, Miss McIntyre roasted a turkey, made hot and cold hors d' oeuvres, including a sail boat of dill pickle with bologna sail and topped with a tiny onion and lettuce roll filled with cream cheese and horseradish. She also demonstrated making open faced sandwiches, a sandwich loaf and mince meat pie.

A socal hour followed the demonstration and the food was served. Approximately 35 members attended.

Food and toys will be packed by the club at the meeting December 3 at the home of Mrs. William A. Douglas, LaVale. This is for the club's philanthropic project. A Christmas program is also planned for this meeting.

Methodist Youth Having Booth Festival Today

The Cumberland Sub-District Methodist Youth Fellowship is sponsoring a Booth Festival today in Centre Street Methodist Church. It will be from 4:30 until 9 o'clock.

"Building a Better World," is to be indicated in the canned food display, which is to be sent to the Strawbridge Home for Boys. Booths will be judged for carrying out the theme, originality and quality.

Rev. Charles B. Niner, superintendent of the school, is to be guest speaker. The program also includes selections by the Allegany Boys quartet. Miss Joan Bennett will lead the service. Miss Margaret Dye is presiding at the business session and Kent Smith is in charge of the entertainment.

Each member is asked to bring a box supper.

If you want to give a GIFT that is "different," distinctive and treasured, see our Christmas selection!

K Of C To Hold Annual Turkey In Straw Dance

The annual "Turkey in the Straw" dance of the Cumberland Council, Knights of Columbus will be held tonight at the home. Music will be played by Tommy Smithens and his Orchestra from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Prizes are being awarded throughout the evening for various events.

Old clothes will be appropriate attire, the committee announces. A. F. Hokamp and J. J. Loibel, Jr., are co-chairmen of arrangements. They are being assisted by John Aaron, DeSales McDade, T. E. Simons, Thomas Ford, Benjamin Hotchkiss, Jr., Jerry Deffenbaugh, Robert Barnhill, John Chapman, H. L. Green, Robert Daugherty, Sylvester Shircliffe, Clifton Kitzmiller, William Smith, Jr., Larry Geiger, Frank Kastner, Frank Loibel, Robert Frame, James Rickard, Leo Powers and Paul Stakem.

Jacqueline Taylor Heads Rawlings Senior 4-H

The Rawlings Senior 4-H Girls elected officers and decided upon having a Christmas party at the meeting recently at the home of Barbara Shepherd.

Jacqueline Taylor was elected president; Eva Hae Helmstetter, vice president; Nancy Mullen, secretary; Jean Barton, assistant secretary; Barbara Shepherd, treasurer; and Shirley Davis, assistant treasurer.

Jacqueline, Barbara and Shirley were appointed to plan the Christmas party and report at the meeting December 12, when a jingle party is being held. It will be at the home of Jacqueline.

It was decided to hold a bake sale and ask the Junior 4-H Club to assist.

Sorority Plans Party

Beta Sigma Phi City Council elected Miss Eleanor Albright secretary and donated the proceeds from a recent card party to the local hospitals at the meeting recently at the home of Mrs. LaVonne Young, Bedford Street.

Plans were discussed for a dance, and the Christmas party. The latter will be at the home of Mrs. Betty Frey, 902 Harding Avenue in conjunction with the next meeting.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Offhand I would suspect that the funiest part about living in Manhattan is watching the New Yorker's war with the elements.

We had the first snowfall of the season the other morning, which warmed my heart because I have predicted flatly (without recourse to woolly bears) a cold, snowy and early winter—and you would have died watching the reactions.

The reactions were: (1) What the devil is this? and (2) they can't do this to me.

I do not know why, but the New Yorker feels that soft breezes, blue sky, warm sun and generally superb weather are his due; when they appear he accepts them as normal and he pays no attention to them. The assumption is ridiculous, of course, because this is the hottest, coldest, windiest, dampest, climatically miserable city in the United States. When you add to this the general layer of dirt that covers anything, creating dirty heat, dirty cold, dirty wind and monstrously dirty snow, you can see why it is virtually impossible to look forward expectantly to any one day.

And yet—I stood outside a Sixth Avenue subway exit in midtown the other morning and watched the moles emerge . . . and they were enraged. They were baffled. You'd have thought they had been struck full in the faces by wet fishes.

Snow!

The New Yorker normally is a flexible soul. He deviates obligingly from a course when a policeman indicates a detour. He says "Oh, an accident" and continues on his way when he sees a truck run down and kill three pedestrians. He pays his endlessly mounting city taxes with a minimum of murmur.

But snow? In October? I saw at least three erstwhile subwayites stop as if lassoed, shoot dark looks skyward as if to ask the Almighty how come—and then open their morning papers again and look angrily at the weather report. The New Yorker is the most naive of men. He believes the weatherman.

Later, wandering through the concrete jungle, I was struck by the capricious appearance the snowflakes seem to take on as they whirled and skipped in and around the office buildings. Snow belongs falling on Ohio farmland or the cherry trees in upstate New York; falling quietly and dutifully on leaf and bough. There is a natural air about it when it follows this pattern, a dreamy and hypnotic quality, duly noted in story and song.

But somehow when it drifts in on the towers of Manhattan it becomes absurd. It drapes itself drunkenly over the still-flapping blue and white canvas signs spelling "Completely Air-conditioned." It plasters itself across the freshly-lipsticked face of an irritated stenographer hurrying to work. It rests awhile on the tabloids on the newsstands, softening the photographs of the latest axe murderer. It whooshes through the crosstown streets looking for bowler hats to paint with white streaks, and when you pause and look at it pelting down between the skyscrapers, its beauty is unbelievable and breathtakingly beautiful, instead of merely pretty as it is on the farmland.

The New Yorker is as flabbergasted by a summer storm as he is by the snow. The violent heat of the city in July can stun him, too, as can the frost or the wind. He never is awake when he mills his way into the subway in the morning, of course, and it is only when he emerges into the downtown streets that he comes alive and looks about him frantically and says "Here now—what's this?"

By mid-morning, that day, the fall had stopped. I was 17 floors high in the sky by then, an average height for a Manhattanite to be at 10:15 a. m., and I peered down into the streets below. It had been snowing for a couple of hours, hard and fast, but the teeming streets, full of buses and taxicabs and adventurous pedestrians, merely were greasy and dirty. On the rooftops around me, there wasn't a sign of a snowflake. As suddenly as it had come, it had gone. The city shrugged, lighted another cigaret and went about its business, triumphant over nature once again.

Capitol Rotunda Frieze Finally To Be Completed

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Work is underway today on completion of the famous frieze in the rotunda of the United States Capitol, 72 years after a tired old artist laid down his brush, his work unfinished.

Millions have gazed upon the blank space 58 feet above the rotunda floor as Capitol guides related the story of how Constantiono Brumidi died in 1878 at the age of 74, unable to complete his last great work.

Brumidi, described by his biographer, Myrtle Cheney Murdock, as the "Michelangelo of the United States Capitol," worked at beautifying the building for 25 years, beginning in 1855. For 20 years he carried with him a dream of depicting 15 scenes of American history, from the landing of Columbus to the Revolutionary war.

He was a tired, sick old man when he finally got the go-ahead to undertake the frieze. Seventy-two years of age, he climbed up the scaffolding high above the floor and worked until he had completed six of the 15 scenes he had planned.

Then, one day, he slipped from his painting platform and hung by his bare hands above the stone floor until he could be rescued. He never recovered from the shock and died shortly after, the frieze unfinished, a lonely old man.

Congress subsequently hired Philip Costaggini to complete the frieze. When Costaggini finished executing the Brumidi designs on the 300-foot frieze, he submitted two plans of his own to complete the space still remaining.

His plans were never approved, however, and in 1918 a third artist, Charles Ayer Whipple, was employed to accomplish the task, but again Congress failed to give its sanction.

In 1950, however, Congress voted to use the blank space to portray scenes from the Civil and Spanish-American wars and the birth of aviation in the United States.

Plymouth Townfolk Will Commemorate First Thanksgiving Of 330 Years Ago

By VIOLET RYDER GALE
Central Press Correspondent

PLYMOUTH, Mass.—Thanksgiving is the biggest day of the year in the historic town of Plymonth, for it was in Plymouth colony 330 years ago that the Pilgrim fathers humbly offered thanks to a kind Providence for blessings which today might be considered meager.

A spectacular celebration will be staged on that day commemorating the first Thanksgiving. This traditional observance in the historic landing place of the Pilgrims has been held each year for more years than any can remember.

Last year John A. Armstrong, representative to the Massachusetts legislature from Plymouth, introduced a bill that funds be granted by the commonwealth each year for the proper observance of Thanksgiving day in Plymouth. This was passed, and is now a law. Several thousand townspeople and hundreds of visitors gather yearly for this commemoration of the original Thanksgiving.

This year, the celebration will begin with the traditional and stirring "Pilgrims' Progress," a group of citizens dressed in the sober garb of our pioneer forefathers progressing slowly from Plymouth Rock down Leyden street to the town church, in the same earnest and reverent mood that was characteristic of their ancestors over three centuries ago. Nowhere else in the world can be seen this remarkable re-enacting of the drama of the founding of a great nation.

The pilgrimage to houses that date as far back as 1666 will be a feature of this year's celebration. These old dwellings include the famous Governor Winslow house restored and opened by the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Harlow house, built in 1678, partly of the material of the old fort on Burial hill, the Howland house (1666), the Sparrow house and many others.

Next, at Pilgrim Memorial hall will be shown in living, crystal-clear tableaus, the outstanding events of those first days of incredible hardship—the perilous departure of the Pilgrims from Delft Haven;' their safe arrival in the sheltered harbor of Plymouth; the signing of the Mayflower Compact two days after the ship came to anchor off Provincetown; making of the treaty with Massasoit that guaranteed safety to all, and return of the Mayflower to England, after "the hart of the winter was over."

Consternation is still expressed by Plymouth housewives at the 90 unexpected guests that appeared for that first Thanksgiving dinner. The talkative Squanto had been dispatched to invite Massasoit to the prayers and feast, and it was expected he would bring one or two tribesmen with him. When he arrived, however, he was accompanied by no less than 90 painted and feathered followers!

The feast included wild turkeys, venison, waterfowl, lobsters, clams and fish; corn and biscuit-cake and ground nuts. The wild fruit of the hot summer—gooseberries, strawberries, white and red grapes and plums—had been dried in Indian fashion, since there was no sugar for English jams and preserves. We know there were cranberries "aplentie," but historians declare that there could not have been enough sugar for cranberry sauce.

After a stern year in which all had known hungry moments, the Pilgrims were ready for a holiday. The "time conveniente" for a thanksgiving had come. Still sharp in their memory was the terrible drought which had lasted from May until the middle of July, threatening their very existence, when the patient settlers had set aside a day of public prayer.

TEACHERS RELIEF FUND ELECTION

The school teachers of Allegany County, Monday, November 17, by ballot, elected the following trustees who will administer the relief fund maintained by their contributions: William G. Fatkin, Luke School, president; Lula M. Blonskey, Penna. Avenue School, secretary-treasurer, and Lewyn C. Davis, Board of Education, associate. The "ex-officio" trustees of the fund are Kenneth R. Malcolm, president of the Board of Education and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools.

Many a diet is wrecked by the sandwich lunch! Here's a pattern menu to suit every requirement.

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

It wasn't a slim figure that the Earl of Sandwich had on his mind when he slipped a piece of meat between two slices of bread and made his great discovery! Next to snacking between meals, the sandwich lunch is the biggest stumbling block to reducers. One ham-and-cheese on white costs 350 of the precious 1200 calories allotted daily to serious weight shedders!

Variety in Diet

Not only are the 350 calories of this sandwich a serious outlay but they cut so mightily into your daily quota that you are apt to skip the variety of foods needed to guard your health and beauty while improving your figure. Furthermore, a wider variety helps to stem hunger and keep your appetite satisfied.

The luncheon menus below spend your gold mine of calories far more wisely. While each is low in count, all are high in nutritional value with special emphasis on the protein and vitamins so vital to reducers. Whether you buy your lunch, eat at home or take your lunch with you, there's a solution to your lunch problem below. Try the menu just as is and then use it as a pattern to vary your noonday repast. By substituting similar foods you can avoid monotony — another of the stumbling blocks that gets into the way of dieters.

Home Luncheon — clear chicken soup, 2 rye crisp, 4 slices of lean, cold meat, celery and carrot sticks, skim or buttermilk.

Lunch Counter Menu — 1 large or 2 small broiled hamburger patties, sliced tomato without dressing, cold slaw, milk or hot beverage.

Lunch Box Filler — In separate wax cups, place a portion of lettuce, hardboiled egg, celery and cottage cheese. At lunch time, place the hard-boiled egg and celery on the lettuce, top with cottage cheese and you have a freshly-mixed salad! For dessert, a pear or apple. Let your beverage be hot milk, tea or coffee carried in a thermos.

The next time a sandwich beckons, figure the cost to your figure!

YOUR BEAUTY DIET
No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same — YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a safe and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it contains require no extra planning or preparation! For the booklet, write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose 10c in coin to help cover cost, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How To Cut The Grocery Bill

SALMON BAKE . . . Make with non-fat dry milk.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Here are two recipes to add to your collection of nourishing low-cost dishes. The barley and frankfurter combination is a good one for a weekday lunch. The salmon bake, made with thrifty nonfat dry milk, is a fine supper dish; serve it with a tossed green salad and crusty rolls.

BARLEY AND FRANKFURTER DISH

Ingredients: ¼ cup fat, ¼ cup finely diced onion, ⅔ cup pearled barley, ½ pound frankfurters, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon marjoram, 3 cups hot water, one 12-ounce package quick-frozen green peas (thawed).

Method: Melt fat in skillet over moderate heat; add onion and barley. Cook until barley is lightly browned, stirring often. Cut frankfurters diagonally in ½-inch slices; add to skillet with kitchen bouquet, salt, pepper and marjoram. Stir well. Add hot water. Cover tightly and bring to boil. Lower heat and cook slowly until barley is almost tender, about 45 minutes. Stir in thawed peas. Continue cooking until barley is just tender, about 15 minutes longer. Add ¼ cup more water if liquid disappears before barley is cooked. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

SALMON BAKE

Ingredients: ½ cup chopped onion, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, one 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms (drained), 1½ cups water, ½ cup cup nonfat dry milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 3 drops tabasco sauce, one 7¾-ounce can (1 cup) salmon (drained and flaked on absorbent paper), ½ cup crumbed or finely diced fresh bread.

Method: Cook onion in butter over low heat until tender and golden. Add mushrooms and cook until heated through. Meanwhile pour water into top of double boiler. Mix nonfat dry milk, flour, salt and pepper; sprinkle over water and beat with rotary beater until just blended. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened.

with remaining dry ingredients. Add egg, fat, and onion. Toss together until well mixed. Season cavity of chicken with ½ teaspoon salt. Stuff chicken, skewer, brush skin with melted fat, and place on a rack, breast down, in open roasting pan. Roast at low temperature (325°F.) 3 to 3½ hours. Turn breast up after 2½ hours of roasting. Baste occasionally with melted fat. Yield: 6 servings.

Cherry Punch A La Mode

1 No. 2 can sweetened red cherries
1 quart milk
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Have all ingredients thoroughly chilled. Press cherries through a sieve and combine with the cherry juice. Mix milk and almond extract; add cherry puree, stirring constantly. Serve at once with a portion of ice cream floating in each glass. Serves 6.

Corn Bread Stuffing Is Thanksgiving Tradition!

Try corn bread stuffing this year in the Thanksgiving turkey or roast chicken and you'll be serving your family food that's truly traditional. Cooking with corn meal is one of America's oldest customs.

At Thanksgiving time, more than any other season of the year, we are mindful of our country's early settlers. Their struggles were legion, with survival depending in large measure on their food supply. While the men went in search of ...rd, game and fish, the early homemaker concerned herself with the precious corn friendly Indians had taught them to live by.

Today, it is an easy matter to select a fine turkey or roasting chicken at the local market and to mix up a batch of corn bread for stuffing the bird. Corn meal still is a staple food in the American kitchen, and today, as yesterday, good cooks herald corn bread stuffing as more than a tradition. They like its texture, its taste, and its resistance to sogginess.

Your Thanksgiving bird will be "well-dressed" with its corn bread stuffing.

Roast Chicken with Corn Bread Stuffing

½ cup chopped onion; ¾ cup bacon fat or melted butter; 6 cups stale corn bread; 1½ teaspoons salt; ¾ teaspoon poultry seasoning; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 1 egg, well-beaten; 3 to 4½ lb. young chicken, ready - to - cook weight, ½ teaspoon salt.

Brown onion in fat. Crumble corn bread coarsely and combine

BARLEY AND FRANKFURTER DISH . . . Thrifty and good.

Here's Quick "After Game" Snack Plan

After the football game your youngsters are sure to want to have friends in for a bite to eat. For such an occasion you'll want something quick and easy to prepare that's designed to satisfy hearty appetites.

A choice for just such an event might be barbecued chipped beef on cheese toasted buns. Serve this with french fries, a tossed salad, hot cider and doughnuts.

Here's how to prepare the combination. Grate American cheese on bun halves (you can do this in advance if you like). Then heat the chipped beef slowly in a rich barbecue sauce. In the meantime, melt the cheese under the broiler or in your oven. Serve the hot barbecued beef over the buns. Bring on the tossed salad. Pour the cider and your refreshments are ready.

Unsulphured Molasses Sweetens Quick, Spicy Sauce

BARBECUED spareribs and chicken are atune to brisk weather days. The spiciness of the meat sauce is just right for the heartier appetites of fall and winter. Unsulphured molasses in this sauce balances the tart flavor of tomato. See recipe elsewhere on this page.

NEWS—FD PG—with 2 col art ..

If you think barbecued meats are elaborate of preparation, you're in for a surprise. Our barbecue sauce is a sweet-spicy blend of unsulphured molasses, tomato sauce, vinegar mustard and onion. The ingredients, heated one minute, are ready to baste baked spareribs or broiled chicken. Molasses contributes to the sauce's distinctive flavor and rich reddish-brown color.

Molasses Barbecue Sauce

¼ cup unsulphured molasses
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil; boil one minute. YIELD: ⅔ cup.

Barbecued Spareribs

Have 3 pounds spareribs cut in serving pieces. Place in shallow pan. Roast in a moderate oven (350° F.) 1½ to 2 hours. Baste with Barbecue Sauce twice during last hour of roasting. YIELD: 6 servings.

Barbecued Chicken

Have a 1½ to 2-pound broiler cut in half. Place in shallow pan; skin side up. Brush with melted butter; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1½ hours; turn twice during baking. Baste with barbecue sauce during last hour of baking. YIELD: 2 servings.

Meat Care

Insure against meat spoilage by storing meat properly. Fresh meat should be unwrapped as soon as it comes from the market, then stored uncovered or loosely covered in a cold part of the refrigerator. Cooked meats should be covered tightly and stored in the refrigerator. Canned hams as well as all cured meats should be refrigerated.

Various Cranberry Uses

Sugar 'n spice, 'n everything nice with cranberries mean good eating now and later. Cranberries and spices combine in sauces for flavor appeal. To preserve this flavor goodness for year-round enjoyment, cranberry sauces are recommended for home-freezing. Now is the time to use your freezer to best advantage. Include bright red cranberries with spicy flavor in your favorite recipes for freezing. If you do not have a home-freezer, these recipes keep well in the refrigerator. Freeze. (Larger quantities may be obtained by doubling portions.)

Spicy Cranberry Sauce

(Makes about 1 quart)

4 cups fresh cranberries; 2 cups sugar; 1-½ cups water; 1 3-inch stick cinnamon; 3 whole cloves; 3 slices lemon, optional.

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook until berries pop—about 10 minutes. Cool. Remove spices. Pour into freezing container. Freeze. (Larger quantities may be obtained by doubling portions.)

Cranberry-Orange Sauce

(Makes about 1 quart)

4 cups fresh cranberries; 2 cups sugar; 1-½ cups water; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; 1 cup orange segments.

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook until berries pop—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool. Pour into freezing contianer. Freeze. (Larger quantities may be obtained by doubling portions.)

10 Minute Cranberry Sauce

4 cups fresh cranberries; 2 cups sugar; 1-½ cups water.

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook until berries pop—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool. Pour into freezing container. Freeze. (Larger quantities may be obtained by doubling portions.)

A good dessert with a tart flavor goes well these brisk autumn days when we match more substantial meals to bigger appetites. Here's one that is the perfect ending for a meal built around poultry or game:

Cranberry Torte

Pastry: 2 cups flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ cup shortening 3 tablespoons sugar; grated peel of one lemon; 1 egg; 2 tablespoons water.

Sift flour and baking powder into mixing bowl. Cut in shortening. Add sugar, lemon peel and egg which has been beaten with water. Knead dough until no trace of egg shows. Chill. Make filling: Combine ½ cup water, 1 cup sugar, and 2 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca in saucepan; bring to boil. Add 2 cups cranberries and cook until cranberries pop. Remove from heat, add juice of one lemon. Cool. Roll out 2-3 of pastry to ⅛-inch thickness. Line 9-inch pie plate. Roll out remaining dough; cut into ½-inch strips. Pour filling into pie shell; cover with lattice top made with strips; flute edge. Bake at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes, or until nicely browned. Serves 6 to 8.

If desired, substitute one 16-ounce can of whole cranberry sauce and juice of one lemon for filling. Mix well. Pour into pie shell, cover with lattice top and bake.

Pork Lover's Treat— Flavorful Pork Chops

Lil' Abner isn't the only person who thinks pork chops are the finest in good eating. Many of his fellow citizens also choose pork chops as their favorite meat.

Even if your budget demands a practice of thrift, you can still enjoy the fine flavor of pork chops. Center cut and end-cut pork chops give you a choice from which to select the chops best suited to your budget.

In this recipe you can use either center cut or end-cut pork chops. The sauce for braising the chops is a delectable mixture of crushed pineapple and catsup intriguingly seasoned with soy sauce. It's especially good for topping cooked rice to serve with the chops.

HAWAIIAN PORK CHOPS—Exotic flavor and simple preparation make this pork chop dish one you'll want to serve often. The chops are cooked to juicy tenderness in a blend of crushed pineapple, brown sugar, vinegar and soy sauce. For an attractive platter, nestle the chops on a bed of rice and garnish with butter-browned pineapple slices.

Hawaiian Pork Chops

4 pork chops
¼ cup vinegar
½ cup catsup
1 9-oz. can crushed pineapple
1 tablespoon soy sauce
3 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked rice

Trim a little fat from edge of pork chops and fry out in a heavy skillet. Remove pieces. Flour chops and brown in the hot fat. Combine remaining ingredients. Spoon fat from skillet and pour catsup mixture over and around chops. Cover and cook over low heat 1¼ hours or until very tender. Spoon sauce over chops once or twice during needed. Serve chops and sauce with cooking and add a little water as cooked rice, 4 servings.

An example of how pork chops can be given a different treatment is this recipe for preparing chops in the Creole manner with a tasty tomato sauce.

New Orleans Pork Chops

4 pork chops
Flour, salt, pepper
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 bay leaf
3 whole cloves

Trim a little fat from chops and fry out in a heavy skillet. Remove pieces. Flour chops and brown in the hot fat. Sprinkle both sides with salt and pepper. To tomatoes add onion, Worcestershire sauce, bay leaf, cloves and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over chops. Cover and cook slowly for 1 hour, adding more water as needed. Remove meat, spoon off excess fat and thicken liquid, if necessary, with a flour and water paste. Serve chops and sauce with cooked spaghetti or noodles.

Chop Sauces And Seasonings

Pork chops can be prepared in a variety of interesting ways. A touch of seasoning, a different braising liquid, or a bread dressing tucked inside—any of these make them special dishes.

Here are some suggestions to help you achieve variety in your pork chop cookery:

1. Spread browned chops with cranberry jelly or fresh cranberries ground and thinned with honey. Season with ground cloves and nutmeg, add a little water and cook, covered, until tender.

2. Sprinkle chops generously with paprika; season with salt and pepper. Brown in hot fat; sprinkle with caraway seed. Add a little water and cook, covered, until tender.

3. Other sauces and seasonings for braising pork chops are these: thin barbecue sauce; apple cider with a dash of curry powder; tomato soup thinned with water and seasoned with a little Tobasco sauce.

Serving Stew

Vary your stew serving. Serve it over hot fluffy rice, split squares of corn bread or hot biscuits. Or give it a meat pie topping of pastry, biscuit dough or mashed potatoes.

Beware---Freezing Stuffed Turkey Not Recommended

Can you stuff your Thanksgiving turkey several weeks ahead and freeze it? That question about freezing a stuffed bird involves several problems as far as safety and quality of the roasted bird is concerned.

Miss Janet Coblentz, University of Maryland Extension nutritionist, says convenience in food preparation should surely be given consideration, but safety should never be sacrificed for easier methods. She points out that a stuffed turkey can freeze too slowly for safety. The slower the freezing, the greater the possibility of harmful bacteria growth.

Then, thawing an 18 pound stuffed turkey in the refrigerator takes about four days. This method is probably safe, but four days' storage in the refrigerator could be an inconvenience.

Thawing at room temperature takes from 19 to 24 hours. The bird thaws more quickly than the dressing, and thawing may be continued too long, allowing a greater tendency for bacterial growth.

Thawing time of frozen stuffed turkeys in the oven takes from 3½ to 5¼ hours. This amount of time, added to the regular roasting time, keeps the turkey in the oven overlong. The turkey meat will be drier than that of pre-thawed birds.

Miss Coblentz advises that you stuff your turkey just before roasting. You can save time on roasting day by preparing the dry ingredients the day before and storing them in the cupboard. Prepare and refrigerate the moist ingredients. Then, on roasting day, in 15 or 20 minutes, all the stuffing ingredients may be combined and stuffed into the bird.

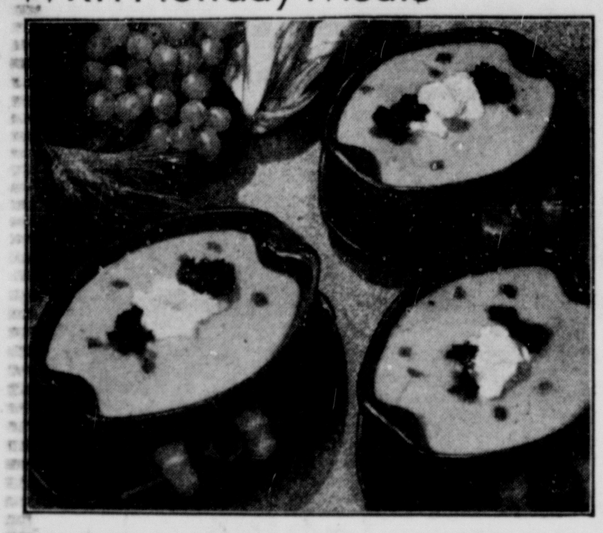
Mushroom Soup Goes With Holiday Meals



TRADITIONAL to the holiday season is creamy mushroom soup. Use this condensed soup with a garnish of salted whipped cream and parsley. Good to nibble with it are carrot curls and olives—on kabob sticks.

A creamy soup with nuggets of mushrooms has long been a Thanksgiving dinner tradition.

With condensed cream of mushroom soup, you're all set to serve the soup course without effort. And during the busy season anead, you'll often have occasion to use this many-purpose soup. It's grand as extra gravy to have with the holiday bird or with baked potatoes; and use it too as the sauce in creamed turkey and other after-holiday dishes.

For your Thanksgiving feast, enjoy soup just as it comes from the can. Or try it in one of these taste-intriguing soup combinations.

Mushroom Consomme Soup: Blend together a can each of condensed cream of mushroom soup and consomme; stir in ½ soup can of water. Heat and serve with a puff of whipped cream on top. Makes 4 servings.

Mushroom Chicken Soup With Sherry: Combine 1 can each of condensed cream of mushroom soup and cream of chicken soup; stir in 1 soup can of water and 1 of milk; add 2 or 3 teaspoons of sherry as desired. Makes 4 servings.

Mushroom Soup Garnishes: Try any of the following as a festive garnish for cream of mushroom soup:

Blue cheese (crumbled); nutmeg; Onion salt; Curry powder.

Sausage Comes To Lunch, Dinner, Too

They're small, but sausage links can do big things for your menus. Of course, they've long been a breakfast meat, but let them work for you at lunch and dinner, too.

For instance, here's a dinner dish that has wide appeal—Spicy Sausages. Here's all you do. Place the sausages in a frying-pan with 2 or 3 tablespoons of water. Cover them and simmer for about 15 minutes. Then remove the cover and lightly brown them. (This is the method for cooking all pork sausage.) Cut the links in thirds, then combine them in a casserole with kidney beans, thinly sliced unpeeled apple, a little brown sugar, sliced onion and tomato juice. Season with salt, pepper and a touch of chili powder. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 45 minutes.

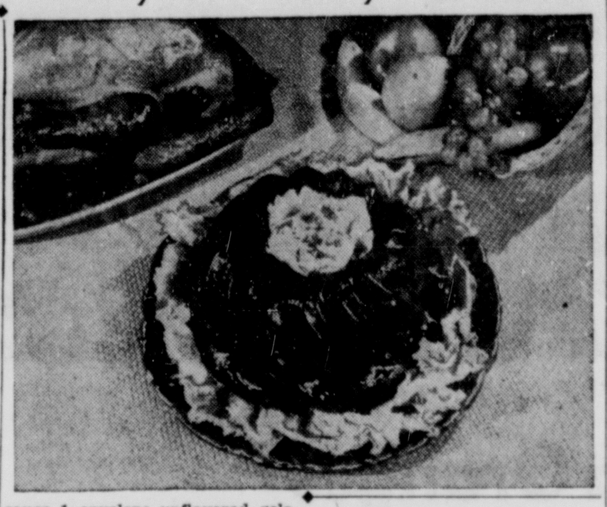
Browned sausages, also, give a hearty touch to a navy bean or a green lima bean casserole. They are equally as tasty when browned, then placed over scalloped potatoes.

For another mealtime surprise, join sausages and potatoes in this different way. Wash and bake medium sized potatoes, then make a hole through them lengthwise big enough to hold a sausage link. With the sausage through the potato, bake it in a 425° F. oven until the potato is done. Baste it frequently with the sausage drippings. For another version, cut large baked potatoes in half lengthwise. Scoop them out and mash with a small amount of hot milk. Pile the potato back into the shells and top with cooked sausages. Reheat in a moderate oven until the potatoes are lightly browned.

Stew Nests

For a real time-saver that your family is sure to enjoy build your dinner around canned beef stew. Heat the stew thoroughly and serve it in clever whipped potato nests.

Thanksgiving Turkey Cranberry Partners



Let Dad carve the turkey while the family help themselves to a beautiful cranberry salad mold. One big shimmering cranberry salad to serve the whole table is a festive sight, and while it's being served, tension at Dad's place is being eased.

It takes only minutes to make festive cranberry salad molds for the Thanksgiving dinner. These salads can be made the day before and tucked away in the refrigerator until turkey mealtime. Spoon the cranberry mixture into a giant-sized mold or individual ones. The following recipes will serve 6 but can easily be doubled or tripled if more guests are expected. As a matter of fact, the wise hostess will double her salad needs, so there'll be some cranberry salad ready to serve when the turkey makes its second appearance.

Cranberry Chutney Mold

1 pound can whole cranberry sauce; ½ cup raisins; ½ unpeeled cored apple, chopped; ½ cup finely chopped celery; 1 teaspoon powdered ginger; 2 teaspoons lemon juice; 1 envelope unflavored gelatine; ¼ cup cold water.

Combine first 6 ingredients. Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water. Let stand 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water until gelatine dissolves. Stir into cranberry mixture. Spoon into mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve in lettuce cups. Serves 4 to 6.

Cranberry Pear Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine; ¼ cup cold water; 1 pound can whole or jellied cranberry sauce; 1 or 2 fresh pears, cored, peeled, and diced; ½ lemon, put through food chopper, rind and all; 1 teaspoon powdered ginger.

Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water and let stand 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water until gelatine dissolves. If jellied cranberry sauce is used, crush with a fork. Stir dissolved gelatine into cranberry sauce. Add other ingredients. Chill until firm in salad mold. Serves 4 to 6.

Cranberry Molds

1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce 1 envelope unflavored gelatine; ¼ cup cold water; ¼ teaspoon salt; ½ cup dates, chopped; 1-3 cup nuts, chopped; 1-3 cup apples diced.

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water. Let stand 2 minutes. Place custard cup with gelatine in pan of boiling water and heat until dissolved. Add dissolved gelaine to crushed cranberry sauce and stir until smooth. Chill gelatine until partially set; then fold in salt, dates, nuts, and apples. Turn mixture into six individual molds to finish setting. When firm, unmold on salad greens and garnish with curled celery and olives. Serves 6.

Turkey Gumbo

4 tablespoons butter
½ cup diced onion
½ cup diced green celery
½ cup diced green pepper
5 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
4 cups milk, scalded
2 chicken boullon cubes
2 cups diced, cooked turkey
2 cups sliced, cooked okra
1 cup cooked tomatoes
Cooked rice

Melt butter, add onions, celery, and green pepper. Cook over low heat, until tender. Add flour and seasonings; blend. Dissolve bouillon cubes in hot milk and add to butter mixture. Cook until sauce boils and thickens, add turkey and okra and heat through. Heat tomatoes. Partly fill hot soup bowls with cooked fluffy rice and pour gumbo over rice. Add a spoonful of hot tomatoes. Serves 6.

Maple Ice Cream Surprises

6 rusks
¾ cup sirup
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Lemon pecan sauce

Dip, or coat each rusk in maple sirup. Place on cold dessert plates and top each with vanilla ice cream. Garnish with whole pecans and serve with Lemon Pecan Sauce. Serves 6.

FRUIT CAKE

Spices and fruit and flavorful Domino Sugar make a wonderful fruit cake. Try this tested Domino recipe—and see why Domino is America's favorite sugar!

1 lb. candied pineapple
½ lb. candied cherries
¼ lb. candied citron
⅛ lb. candied lemon peel
⅛ lb. candied orange peel
1 lb. golden raisins
½ lb. seeded raisins
¼ lb. currants
½ cup grape juice
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. mace ½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. baking soda
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour 5 eggs
¼ lb. blanched almonds 1 tbsp. milk
¼ lb. chopped walnuts or pecans
¼ lb. butter
1 cup Domino Extra Fine Granulated Sugar
1 cup Domino Old Fashioned Brown Sugar
1 tsp. almond flavoring

Dice candied fruit. Remove stems and seeds from raisins and currants. Soak fruits for several hours in grape juice. (Save some cherries, citron and nuts to garnish cake about ½ hr. before it's finished baking.) Line 10" tube pan with brown paper, keeping paper 1" above top of pan. Grease well. Sift 1½ cups flour with spices and soda. Combine ½ cup flour with fruits. Add nuts. Cream butter with Domino Extra Fine Granulated Sugar and Domino Old Fashioned Brown Sugar till fluffy. Beat eggs; add with milk and flavoring to creamed mixture; mix well. Add the flour-spice mixture; mix well. Pour batter over fruits and nuts; mix thoroughly. Pour into pan. Bake in slow oven, 275°F., 3½ hrs. Let stand 30 min. in pan. Turn out upside down on cake rack. Remove paper. When cake is cold, store in covered container. Yields 5½-lb. cake. Choral Society Lists Program For PTA Concert

The Cumberland Choral Society will present a concert Monday at 8 p. m. in Mt. Savage School for the benefit of its Parent-Teacher Association.

Jack E. Platt, director, announced the program will be as follows:

"The Heavens Are Telling" from "The Creation," with soloists Elsie Brinkman, Mary Robb and Robert Moreland, and from "The Messiah," "And the Glory of The Lord" and "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs."

The second part will be three spirituals "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See," Kenneth McGraw, soloist; "A'Rockin' All Night," Clarence Thompson, soloist, and "Jacob's Ladder," Joan Nichols, soloist.

The third part of the program will have Harold Hanson, baritone, singing two selections, "Shadrack" and "De Glory Road."

The choral society will then sing selections from "Song of Norway" and "Peace Must Come Like A Troubador," Lois Stine, soloist.

The next portion will be varied, —songs by Nelson Zapf, "I Want To Be Happy" and "Way Back Home;" "The Gandy Dancers," Cumberland Choristers; dance by Bobby Willison; selection by the Fort Hill Boys' Quartet, and acrobatics by Bobby and Norney Willison.

Marilyn Ashbaugh will sing ballads, and the program will close with "Give Us Faith For Today" and "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

Survey Shows City As Heavy Food Market Center In Area

Cumberland has become an important food shopping center for the residents of the tri-state area, according to the current copyrighted survey by Sales Management.

Expenditures in 1951 in the butcher shops, grocery stores and other food vending establishments in Cumberland were equivalent to $1,275 per family when divided arithmetically among the local population.

This represented 25 per cent of all the money spent in the city's retail stores in the year.

The food stores in Cumberland did business in the amount of $14,830,000 in 1951, a gain over the $13,791,000 of the previous year.

If all the food purchased in local stores was consumed in Cumberland it would represent an expenditure per family of $1,275 per year. However, some of it goes into Allegany County outside of Cumberland and to nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania points.

The national per family average is $815; for the South Atlantic states it is $700 and for Maryland the figure is $875.

But even though all the food purchased here may not be consumed in Cumberland, the Sales Management figures prove Cumberland's importance as a retail food outlet.

Healthy conditions were also found in Cumberland in the other classes of retail business covered by the survey. The local sales of cars and parts, farm machinery, boats and the like came to $9,474,000, accounting for 16 per cent of each retail dollar.

Places selling general merchandise, including variety and department stores, had sales of $7,670,000, amounting to another 13 per cent.

The stores handling furniture, household supplies and radio equipment had a sales volume of $3,977,000, or nearly seven per cent.

Drug store operations came to $1,947,000, equal to three per cent of all local retail business.

The total retail volume attained by the local stores was $59,786,000 for the year. This was well ahead of the 1950 figure, $57,543,000.

Russians Fear But Keep Eyes On U. S. Embassy

BY ROBERT J. GUERINK
Written for Central Press

There's one house in Moscow few Russians dare walk by without averting their eyes and speeding up their steps. It's Spaso House, where the American ambassador lives while in the Soviet capital.

The Russian police always have had their eyes on this mansion — and their ears inside it. American diplomats have been warned in whispers that there are only two places where they can talk without being overheard: out in the open yard, or in a room where a few raps on wood with a lead pencil might (with good luck!) break the electrical circuit of hidden microphones.

Some alert Yankee embassy secretaries once found a mike in an elevator shaft just a layer of plaster away from the ambassador's desk, and rigged up a trap to nab the culprit. They strung a lot of almost invisible threads around the mechanism and hooked them up to an alarm. However, the Red police saw through it; one morning the mike and threads were gone, for the unknown spy had simply switched off the house current making the alarm useless.

In 19 years, the police have left the place alone just once. That was when the Nazis were moving on Moscow and the city was being abandoned. Looters were in the streets, and for once in their lives the American inhabitants of Spaso House desperately wanted police protection! They finally dug up a guard someplace and promised him plenty of good United States food if he'd stand at the gate and watch.

Brushes between Americans and Russians at Spaso House haven't always been grim. When our first ambassador, William Bullitt, brought his furniture into the building he was careful to include a stout heavy safe with the office equipment.

Some Russian laborers tugged the thing right into the doorway, looked at the dim Moscow sky, and told an attache: "Time to quit!" It mattered little that the ambassador was having guests that evening — nobody could make workers in the Socialist Paradise do any tugging overtime!

On another occasion, a Russian cop marched up to the door with a nasty gash over his eye and a busted soda bottle in his hand. That bottle had come from a window in the ambassador's bedroom — what was the big idea?

American diplomats scurried all over the house to find out what had happened, and finally ran into a chauffeur who calmly explained it all. The bottle had slashed a darn good tire, and it made him so mad he'd tossed the bottle over a wall. If it hit a cop — well, we all take our chances.

Yet it could be said that an American ambassador saved some of the top Red Army generals from being snuffed out in a minute. The pride of Spaso House was its huge chandelier — a monstrous thing plated a 16th of an inch with gold, and having many foot-long chrystals weighing 25 pounds apiece.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith had been after the Russians to remodel the house itself (many rooms were heated with oil stoves), but when the Reds refused, he took the job himself.

EQUIPPED for combat or entertainment, an unidentified U. S. Marine lands in Korea. (International)

He found that the chandelier was just about ready to crash down; its rusty wires might snap the next time a Red Army marshall stomped a heavy boot on the floor below. Smith avoided an earth-shaking international crisis by making sure the chandelier was fastened securely to the ceiling the next time any Russians came in.

However, as the years have passed, fewer and fewer Russians have been seen around Spaso House, for now it's supposed to be a cesspool of American "capitalist contamination."

Russians are afraid to talk to Americans the way one big-shot Red officer did when he asked the American ambassador's daughter, "Wouldn't you like to be free as the Russian women are free?" Her answer was a flat no, and she gave him plenty of reasons why. We'll never know if the officer was impressed — he was shot soon afterward.

Russian diplomat Andrei Gromyko once tried to pass off Spaso House as a flophouse by appearing there at a Fourth of July party in a battered brown suit, insulting his American hosts further with the unshaved stubble on his face.

A compliment of sorts was paid to the Americans when a desperate satellite Czech ambassador confided to an embassy official that he'd dropped in to pick up a good American cigar — could he be fixed up with a couple?

It was no joke when the Russians slammed the door of the old mansion on George Kennan, our present ambassador to the Soviet Union, saying he was an "ecstatic liar" and barring him from ever entering Russia again.

Spaso House, however, is no place for jokes. At an international conference in Moscow during World War II, a party was held there when Ernest Bevin, British foreign minister, sent Soviet Foreign Commissar Viacheslov Molotov into a gale of laughter with an "irreverent" joke about Lenin. Despite his boss' guffaws, the young Communist interpreter who had passed on the joke turned severely on Bevin and brought the atmosphere of Spaso House back to normal.

"In the Soviet Union," he said grimly, "we do not joke about Lenin!"

Duties Of The Veepee

In case of a 48 to 48 vote in the Senate the balance of pow-wow is up to the Veepee.

He then is constitutionalized to cast his vote. Bue he cannot call out the militia if they don't count it.

If the vote comes out even he can make it odder.

In times of tranquility and other relapses he shall not be quartered in any ranch type bungalow without consent of the holder of the second mortgage. But in cases of extraordinary peril and emergency he can become a fourth hand at bridge.

In the event of an enemy action with atomic weapons he shall be empowered to run as fast as anybody else.

At no time during their administration can the President call upon the Veepee for a transfusion.

His laundry bag shall be exempt from search and seizure at any time the White House towels don't figure 12 to the dozen. He cannot be forced to attend amateur theatricals or any other cruel and unusual punishment.

When asked by the hostess to dance he can demand a trial by jury.

If there are any squeaking chains about your house, just rub the links with soap to stop the creaking.

Former Local Airman Killed In Auto Accident In Alaska

A 29-year-old former Cumberland serviceman, Stanley Leroy Kerns, was fatally hurt Sunday in an automobile accident in Seward, Alaska, where he had been employed as a longshoreman.

His mother, Mrs. Eva (Beiderman) Kerns Langley of Apartment 4-E, Jane Frazier Village, Mapleside, has received word of his death in a telegram from the victim's wife, Mrs. Frances (George) Kerns.

Details of the mishap were not given, but Mrs. Kerns said a letter would follow. The victim had lived in Alaska since 1949 when he was discharged from the U. S. Air Force with the rating of master sergeant.

Born December 4, 1922 in Cumberland, Kerns attended John Humbird Elementary School and Pennsylvania Avenue High School. At the age of 17 he entered the Army on July 10, 1940 and was sent to Hawaii from Fort Slocum, N. Y., with an infantry outfit in November of that year.

Kerns was stationed at Hickam Field, Honolulu, when Pearl Harbor was attacked December 7, 1941 by Japan. He escaped injury when the field was bombed.

In the summer of 1942, Kerns was transferred from the infantry to the Air Force and received training as a tail gunner on a B-29 Superfortress at a South Pacific base. He took part in raids on Saipan, Guam and the Mariannas during three years of actual combat duty.

Kerns returned to the United States in 1945 and was employed by the B&O Railroad for six months. He enlisted in the Air Force and was sent to Germany for two years. In 1947 he was transferred to Anchorage, Alaska, after a 30-day leave at home.

While at Anchorage, Kerns married and worked as a bartender. Besides his mother and widow, he leaves three brothers, Robert Kerns, also of Seward; Staff Sgt. Gilmore Kerns, with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., and Richard Kerns, St. Louis, and three sisters, Phyllis Langley, Washington; Eva and Jacqueline Langley, at home. His father was the late George Kerns.

Mrs. Langley said burial will be in Alaska.

STANLEY L. KERNS

Former Cumberland

Gene joined the Air Force in February of 1942 after taking an aviation cadet refresher course sponsored here by the Elks.

Prisoner Of War

A navigator in the Air Force, Gene was captured by the Germans in 1943 after his plane was shot down over Germany. He was a prisoner of the Nazis from September 1943 until May 1945 when he was released by American occupation troops.

Returning to the United States, Gene was discharged on Christmas Eve, 1945.

He then attended Bullis Preparatory School, Silver Spring, from January to April of 1946 and entered Massachusetts Institute of Technology in June of that year. Receiving his bachelor of science degree in general engineering at the institute, the former Cumberlander returned to Richmond, where he has worked with Experimental, Inc., since August, 1950.

Gene is married to the former Virginia Frazee, a Missouri girl who teaches music in Richmond schools.

A full-grown camel can carry a load up to 1,500 pounds.

Society Makes Donations

A donation of $500 for the church mortgage was made; and a donation sent to the Brewster Hospital, Jacksonville by the Zion WSCS at the meeting recently.

Plans were formulated for a Christmas party December 29 at the church, and the next meeting December 5, also at the church. Mrs. Rachael Iames presided and Mrs. Jane Mertens read the Scripture. Mrs. Louise Beck accompanied the group singing. Reports were given by Mrs. Louise Sansom and Mrs. Lora Twigg. Rev. Gordon Hall showed a film.

Bride-Elect Honored

Mrs. David Dively and Mrs. Richard Walsh entertained with a miscellaneous shower and pre-nuptial party in complement to Miss Zella Y. Fletcher. It was held recently at the home of the former, Bowman's Addition.

Miss Fletcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yonker, Little Orleans, is the fiancee of Harvey Minnick, Chicago.

A blue and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations and the shower umbrella concealing the gifts. Thirty three guests attended.

Equity Suits Filed

Three equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Betty Whitten vs. Jimmy Junior Whitten, Juanita Marie Canan vs. Edwin T. Canan and Betty Lou Morgan vs. James E. Morgan.

BANNED from television in Mexico City because her shows were regarded as too sexy, actress-dancer Yolanda Montes arrives in New York City to show her Dagmar-type figure on American television screens and in night clubs. Known as Tongalele, she also is slated for a screen test. (International)

Cities Advised To Seek Advice On Zoning Plans

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 20 (AP) —The director of the Maryland Planning Commission told municipal officials today that towns should not go into the zoning and planning business unless they know what they were doing.

1. Alvin Pasarew said he realized he was invading hostile territory in making the statement to the opening session of the Maryland League of Municipalities convention, which he addressed.

He indirectly criticized Hagerstown's own efforts toward solving its zoning problems, especially regarding the long-standing shopping center fight.

He suggested that cities who want to get into the zoning business should employ full-time persons who know the technical end of the zoning business.

A proper zoning and planning program in a city, he added, depends on (1) an alert mayor and city council, (2) a nonpartisan planning commission made up of high-caliber members of the community and (3) a professional zoning staff.

Expert Help Needed

Pasarew said it was a gross mistake for a municipality to go to federal or state agencies and ask them to develop a plan for community improvement. Such planning, he added, should be done by qualified persons who know the community intimately.

Ralph VanDerwerker of the U. S. Public Health Service warned cities or towns against permitting raw garbage to be fed to hogs.

That is the program presently in effect in Hagerstown.

VanDerwerker said that because of the danger of livestock diseases from this procedure, he predicted that states soon would require all garbage to be cooked before it was fed to swine.

The best method of disposing of municipal garbage, he said, was the "land fill" method-burying the waste under unused land.

About 80 Maryland municipalities are represented at the league's fifth annual convention, which will continue through Saturday noon. Mayor Herman L. Mills of Hagerstown is league president.

Gov. McKeldin is scheduled to address the league tomorrow.

Five Cumberland officials will attend Friday's sessions. They are Mayor Roy Eves, Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan, City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson.

Census Takers Count Fish For Army Engineers

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Central Press Correspondent

PORTLAND, Ore.—It's a cinch bet that Mrs. Ruby M. Warren won't count fish to put herself to sleep. That's what she does all day.

Chinook, blue-back and steelhead salmon float by in front of her eyes all day long. So does an occasional sturgeon and other scrap fish. However, Mrs. Warren's job is to count salmon.

She and five other women have what some might call a monotonous job for the United States Army Engineers, at big Bonneville dam, some 40 miles up the Columbia river from Portland.

They are fish counters. Each year from early spring until late fall, they take turns perching on top of what is called a fish-ladder, to count fish. A fishladder in reality is a series of wide, water-covered steps, which allows the salmon to get around a dam.

As any high school biologist knows, a salmon operates on a four-year cycle. Eggs are laid at the headwaters and tributaries of an ocean-emptying stream. The fingerlings go to sea and at the end of four years, if they have successfully evaded the fishermen's nets and hooks, they return upstream to spawn and die.

Army engineers maintain a counting station at Bonneville dam, first of a series of hydro-electric projects across the mighty Columbia, to try to prove to wildlife adherents that dams don't necessarily ruin fish life.

Four regular counters and two alternates work shifts from 4 a. m. until noon and from noon to 8 p. m., with 15-minute periods out for "eye rest."

To get such a job, they must pass test for distinguishing fish under the surface of water, such as silhouet, shape of tail, or shape in general. For example, a salmon's chief means of locomotion is its tail. Other fish go forward by wiggling.

Occasionally, the counter gets a salmon in her lap. A salmon can leap four times its length, and for that reason, wire netting nearly shoulder high is on both sides of the fish ladder.

On the counting board are little tabulators to run up the score. Millions of salmon have gone by the counters since tabulating first began in 1938. More than 180,000 bluebacks will be counted in one season. Chinooks will hit nearly 120,000 in the spring (record spring run was 133,000 in 1947).

Having the salmon counted doesn't make the case of dam-building Army engineers always easy. Commercial fishing interests always make strong protestation whenever a new dam is proposed. So do the Indians.

Today, there's a bitter controversy between the Indians and federal government. One Indian chief has gone into federal court here demanding $20,000 damages for loss of his fishing rights. He hinted other suits will follow.

Away back in 1855 a treaty was drawn between the federal government and several Indian tribes, including the Yakimas, giving them perpetual rights to fishing in their accustomed manner at traditional fishing grounds. One such place is Celilo Falls, on the banks of the Columbia above The Dalles, Ore.

Now the government is in the preliminary stages of constructing a $350 million hydro-electric dam at The Dalles. The lake to be created behind the dam will engulf the Celilo Falls fishing grounds.

Awhile back, the Yakimas held a tribal council and determined if their Celilo Falls fishing rights were abolished, to demand $80 million from the government.

So it's up to the Army's engineers to prove that dams don't destroy salmon fishing. Even if the Indians are granted rights at other locations, there will be plenty of fish. The wide-eyed fish counters will give the engineers the proof.

covering force. And we must launch a program to relieve the French in Indo-China, if we wish the French to vote for the German divisions which are also absolutely vital to the Eupropean covering force.

The short-range political and diplomatic problems are equally repellent. Within the American armed forces, adoption of the new Western defense concept will surely touch off a major row—the first to protest probably being Generals Ridgway and Gruenther. Among the allies, very definitely including the Germans, the reduction of Europe's defenses to a mere covering force will arouse still more bitter protests. These protests can hardly be stilled, and sensible Western defense plans cannot possibly be made, unless we somewhat relax our present policy of total atomic secrecy. You cannot convince Europeans that a covering force will be good enough, you cannot make sound Allied plans for strengthening this covering force with the new weapons, if any mention of atomic bombs is strictly forbidden in inter-Allied discussions. We must at least be ready to disclose to our allies, not how the bombs are made, but what the bombs will accomplish; not how many we have, but whether enough will be available for the European planners. There are many other problems that might be mentioned.

Yet it is just as wrong to overemphasize the difficulties involved in realizing the new Western defense concept, as it would be to pretend that there will be no difficulties at all. The main point is simple. This concept, if adopted and fully realized, will eventually give the Western world as secure a defense as can be built in these times, at an eventual cost which America and the other Western allies can reasonably and permanently bear. This is the great hope.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

A Bride Can Do No Wrong

The sun shines brightest during a honeymoon, whether it be political or romantic. The first months in the White House are always the easiest, and the same is true of a bride and groom. A friend of mine married a beautiful young girl a few years ago and, being proud of his new arm decoration, especially as he was about 26 years older, she could do no wrong.

John Wheeler

Before the ceremony, he had been living in a bachelor apartment, consisting of a bathroom, a kitchenette, and one large room, in which different corners were used for living, eating, and sleeping. He had the telephone number changed to avoid the risk of any of his old feminine friends calling, and they moved in happily. She decided to give him a surprise party on his birthday and made the preparations carefully to conceal her plans.

She invited several of his old cronies, ordered sufficient spirits for the occasion, and a large mess of hors d'oeuvres from a caterer. Then she arranged to borrow a man servant from one of his pals. The canapes came early, and she unpacked them, spreading them out on trays.

"He'll see these," she said to her helper. "I'll hide them in the bathtub and pull the shower curtain."

At the last minute, she discovered she had forgotten a corkscrew or something and went out to get it. Her husband came home early and decided to take a bath. Without pulling back the curtain or looking in the tub, he turned on the shower full force, and promptly drowned approximately $25 worth of hors d'oeuvres. The bride arrived about the same time, heard the water running and screamed, but too late. Donning a bathrobe, he put his arms around her, and said,

"That's all right, honey. We'll get some more."

A year later, he would probably have remarked,

"That's a hell of a place to hide the dainties."

A new set arrived about a half hour after the first guests by which time several didn't care much whether they had an olive and an anchovy or not.

We were talking about Sugar Ray Robinson switching from a prize fighter to a night-club entertainer.

"Remember Young Griffo?" asked Ernest Cuneo. "He was an old-time boxer who could dance with the best of them. When in training, he frequently kept himself in shape by bending his elbow in saloons. He had a couple of tricks which would attract the attention of customers and get him free helpings at the bar. He could catch a fly in motion between his thumb and index finger. Either he was very fast or there were sluggish flies in those days—perhaps barflies.

"Then he would put a handkerchief down on the floor, stand on it, shove his hands in his pants pockets, and bet customers no one could hit him in the head. He accomplished this by ducking and weaving without moving his feet. He could last about 15 minutes, taking on all comers, including pros, but, after that, he would cool out."

In speaking of the Eisenhower landslide, the old-time political reporter recalled when Roosevelt ran against Landon in 1936.

"Tammany had New York City organized down to the last man and woman in some districts," he said. "In fact, if you didn't vote right, it didn't count. A local Republican candidate got only one ballot in his ward. Expressing his surprise, he remarked,

On The Line

by Bob Considine

MEXICO CITY—(INS)—A Mexican stuck his head in the open window of Ambassador William O'Dwyer's car the other day, as it nuzzled through the mobs seeking entrance to the bullfights, and cordially shouted, "Ojala que se quede usted aqui siempre!"

Bill, hatless and sitting on the jump seat of the limousine, bowed and expressed thanks in his best University of Salamanca manner. The man had expressed the hope that O'Dwyer would stay in Mexico forever.

On the same day Armando Camacho, who writes a column named "A Mexican Point of View," wrote:

"The immediate effect in Mexico of General Eisenhower's sweeping victory will, no doubt, be a change of ambassadors. Most Mexicans will regret to see William O'Dwyer leave the embassy. We are only entitled to guage him by the manner in which he has performed his job here. He has been the first American ambassador to break the ice. He deserves the gratitude of his countrymen.

"There was only one other American diplomat who attained equal popularity in Latin-America. We refer to the late William Miller Collier, Ambassador to Chile in the early twenties. A marble bust to the memory of that illustrious American is to be found in the Avenida de las Delicias, Santiago's equivalent to Mexico City's Paseo de la Reforma."

This suggests that the Hon. Bill, the Bohola (County Mayo) boy who made good as a cop, judge, mayor and general in New York, where his name has been linked with a variety of hoodlums and unseemly practices, may get his first permanent recognition from a country which has known him but briefly.

But though O'Dwyer's Mexican tour has been a short one, it has been active.

"I keep wondering what some of my predecessors did when they were there," he told us. "Sloane and I visited over in La Paz in Lower California recently and a delegation of the town's elders came out to say that I was the first North American ambassador they had ever seen.

"That's happened in a lot of places. I was talking to a farmer in Pueblo not long ago and was admiring his pair of mules. He was pleased by the interest I showed. He told me he got them from Missouri and they were the two best ambassadors we had ever sent to Mexico."

O'Dwyer believes there are three reasons why relations between the U. S. and Mexico, though splendid, have been short of ideal:

1.—Mexico's memory of U. S. territorial expansion (of long ago) which absorbed about half of Mexico's territory. ("Suppose," said Bill, "some power had grabbed all of our country from the Atlantic to the Mississippi—Wouldn't that fact be hard to forget?")

2.—The U. S. business practice, disappearing to some extent, of investing in Mexico, selling the Mexican-produced goods to Mexicans, and taking all the money back to the U. S.

3.—Remnants of power politics. ("We all but demanded that Mexico agree to phases of the mutual security pact, at a time when she was involved in a presidential campaign," Bill said.)

In a talk we had the other day with O'Dwyer I asked him again about his own future. Visibly touched, he said he wished he were ten years younger. "I'd go back (to New York) and fight this thing, if I were," he said. "This character annihilation has been terrible.

"I've told everything there is to tell," he said. "Everything."

Mineral County Farmers Offered 14 Practices

Must Get Approval Before December 31

KEYSER—Mineral County farmers who seek assistance in carrying out 1953 agricultural conservation practices should apply immediately as they must be approved before December 31, according to Thomas Bosley of the Production and Marketing Administration.

In further discussing the matter, he said:

"In connection with the 1953 Agricultural Conservation program in this county, the committeemen, in all parts of the county, are visiting farms for the purpose of discussing with the farmers, their most needed conservation practices for which assistance can be given under provisions of the 1953 program. Farmers who have not already signed to participate in the program and are interested in doing so, should see their committeemen to get necessary information concerning their farm at once."

Bosley said that the 14 conservation practices for Mineral County for 1953, are:

The use of liming material whereever a soil test shows a need; use of phosphate and potash on grasslands that a soil test shows to be properly limed; seeding winter cover crops of crimson clover annual ryegrass and hairy vetch; developing contour cropping on sloping land; constructing diversion ditches to prevent erosion; constructing open drainage ditches to reclaim or improve wet land.

Also, installing tile drainage ditches to reclaim or improve wet land; constructing dams or ponds to provide adequate water for livestock and to provide better distribution of grazing on farms; constructing permanent storage facilities to utilize water from springs for livestock; improving pasture by reseeding with recommended grasses and applying necessary lime and fertilizers; planting approved species of forest trees and shrubs for windbreaks, erosion control and forestry purposes; improving existing stand of forest trees by thinning and removable of undesirable trees, and sub-soiling shale land to improve the land and provide water retention.

Information concerning the 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program in Mineral County can be had, Bosley said, by contacting the PMA office, Soil Conservation office or the County Agent's Office.

Flintstone FFA Teams Win Prizes At Cumberland Fair

Judging teams representing the Flintstone Chapter, Future Farmers of America, continued their winning streak this year when they won two first prizes at the Cumberland Fair.

The Flintstone FFA youths won first place in FFA Dairy Judging and a first in FFA Livestock Judging.

Officers are Richard Puffenberger, president; Dwight Morris, vice president; Norman Smith, secretary; Arnold Smith, treasurer; Delmer Yonker, sentinel; James Hartsock, reporter, and Kenneth Malone, advisor.

The FFA club is one of the major activities of the school located in Flintstone, where most of the people are either full-time farmers or raise their own food if they have another occupation.

All of the FFA boys are enrolled in Vocational Agriculture courses at Flintstone.

Purposes of the course is to develop competent rural leadership, create and nurture a love of country life, develop character, train for useful citizenship, foster patriotism, improve scholarship, develop skills necessary to good farm production, improve farm homes and their surrounds and practice conservation so the land will be left in good condition for future generations.

Activities of the FFA boys include seven hours of daily class work, judging and selection of good livestock, attendance at leadership training meetings, summer state conferences and National FFA week in Kansas City and community service.

The motto of the club is:

"Learning to do
Doing to learn
Earning to live
Living to serve."

Each FFA boy must carry a home project on his home farm. The project is supervised by the vocational agriculture instructor on-the-farm, and the youths must apply good business principles in the project.

Kenneth Malone, a graduate of the Agricultural Education School of West Virginia University, is instructor of vocational agriculture and FFA club advisor.

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Bernice Kohout, wife of J. A. Kohout, science professor at State Teachers College, opened a professional home portrait studio Monday.

Mrs. Kohout graduated from the American School of Photography, Chicago, in 1945 where she specialized in portrait photography. She has operated a studio in South Carolina and Tennessee and has been associated with studios in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Washington.

Her services will include baby and child portraits, family portraits, weddings, ivory and porcelain miniatures, copy and restoration of old photographs. Samples of her portraits will be on display in various store windows in Frostburg.

Scouters Will Meet In Keyser

KEYSER—Scouting is going to be fully discussed at two meetings to be held under the auspices of Cumberland Council, Boy Scouts of America, on November 25 and December 11, which will be of special benefit to Scouters of the New Creek District.

Both meetings will be held in Potomac State School's Science Hall, Keyser, each of those evenings, starting at 7:30 o'clock. Notices were recently sent to New Creek Scouters over the signatures of Lawrence L. Lewis, district chairman, and David G. Nuzum, training chairman.

The meetings will provide an opportunity for Scouters to learn more about the job of Scouting in a concise manner, said Lewis. The plan will have reference to the job of learning the finer points of Scouting.

Church Leader Will Speak In Frostburg

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Mary L. Flickinger, Arlington, Va., who is active in the women's work of the Congregational-Christian Churches, will be a guest of First Congregational Church, Bowery Street and College Avenue, Sunday.

Mrs. Flickinger will talk to the women Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She will also be guest speaker at the Sunday evening service at 7:30 o'clock, giving the highlights of the General Council meeting of Congregational-Christian Churches in Los Angeles, in June.

Church Basement Dedication Set In Frostburg

Special Services Planned For Event

FROSTBURG—The dedication of the basement of the John Wesley Methodist Church, Park Avenue, will be held Sunday at 8 p. m., when the dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. H. Woods, district superintendent of the Charleston District of the Washington Conference, Methodist Church. Special music will be sung by the church choir.

The other services in connection with the dedication will be as follows: Monday, 8 p. m., an address by Rev. J. T. Tisdale, Keyser, W. Va.; Tuesday, 8 p. m., and address by Rev. James E. Dorsey, pastor of Dickerson African Methodist Episcopal Church of Frostburg.

Wednesday, 8 p. m., an address by Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of First Methodist Church of Frostburg, with special music by the First Methodist Choir. There will be refreshments for sale each evening following the services.

The church and parsonage was recently purchased by the congregation after they sold the former church structure to the State Board of Education. The property was acquired from Salem Humberson and Mrs. Mary E. Perkins.

The ground which the old church occupied at the corner of Oak and Maple streets is to be used as a site for the new library and administration building of Frostburg State Teachers College.

Members of the board of trustees of John Wesley Church include Mrs. Ida Belle Gordon, Mrs. Diana Cole, Charles Taylor, Thomas Taylor, Mrs. Rosie Kelly, Mrs. Onzella Taylor, George Taylor, Mrs. Georgia Hale and Samuel Kelly.

Students Attend New York Seminar

The seminar, which is sponsored by the National Student YMCA and YWCA, opened at which time the students attended sessions of the UN General Assembly.

The group also visited with the U. S. Missions to the UN, having interviews with UN delegates from other countries and an international student party. They also attended one of the New York churches Sunday.

Mrs. Susan Richmond accompanied the group.

Church Hill 4-H Club Studies Home Lighting

MT. SAVAGE — A home lighting demonstration featured the meeting of the Church Hill 4-H Club at the home of Mrs. Mary Deffenbaugh, leader.

Miss Jane Close, demonstrating agent of the Potomac Edison Company's Frostburg office, gave a demonstration of movies and the proper use of lampshades.

The next meeting will be held Friday, November 28, at 3:30 p. m. at Mrs. Deffenbaugh's residence. All members are urged to attend because officers will be elected and a project for the coming year will be determined.

Feted On Birthday

LONACONING — The family of Mrs. John O'Rourke entertained with a birthday party in her honor Wednesday evening at her home, Dudley Terrace. A large birthday cake centered the table. Mrs. O'Rourke received many beautiful gifts.

Miller Testifies In Apple Price Fixing Hearing

FTC Continues Committee Probe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — A Virginia apple processor and a West Virginia apple grower testified today they knew of no price fixing at a 1950 meeting of growers and processors of the Appalachian belt.

Gordon Bowman, president of Bowman Apple Products Co., Inc., Mount Jackson, Va., told Trade Commission Examiner Frank Hier that "when I left that meeting I left without any idea of price."

Similar testimony was given by Henry W. Miller Jr., Paw Paw, W. Va., apple grower, at a hearing on government charges of unfair competition against five processing companies and a trade association of the Virginia-West Virginia-Maryland-Pennsylvania apple belt.

Bowman said he did not recall "any price being mentioned on a dollar-and-cent basis" for raw apples at a grower-processor meeting called Aug. 26, 1950.

He gave the same answer when asked if he remembered discussion of a $3.15 price and if he recalled one processor's suggesting $3.25 as a compromise.

"Do you recall Knouse (M. E. Knouse of Knouse Foods Cooperative, Inc., Peace Glen, Pa.) coming up with a $3.25 suggestion?" a government attorney asked.

"I have no recollection of any statement by Knouse," Bowman replied.

Bowman answered "no" to the question whether he associated "the fact that there was an increase in the announced price in August 1950, over the announced price in August 1949, to any thing that transpired at this Aug. 26 meeting?"

Miller testified there "was never any meeting I left when I had an understanding what prices would be."

The witness said he recalled that his cousin, Carroll R. Miller, talked with him by long distance telephone during the Aug. 26 meeting in Martinsburg, W. Va.

Carroll Miller, who is secretary-manager of Appalachian Apple Service Inc., named in the government complaint, testified yesterday.

Henry Miller said he took part in the growers committee's adopting a resolution suggesting a price of $3.50 in 1950.

Concerning the telephone conversation, Miller said "to the best of my memory Carroll stated some processors felt a $3.50 price was too high."

Asked what Carroll Miller said about a $3.25 price, the witness said his "memory is too vague" concerning that.

"Don't you remember," he was asked, "your cousin saying to you that processors thought the $3.50 price too high," that the processors had reached a point agreeing on a $3.25 price, but "didn't want to go ahead without your approval since your name was fixed to the resolution for $3.50?"

"I don't remember Carroll telling me that the processors had agreed to paying any particular price," Miller replied.

Robert J. Rea, Mount Jackson, Va., fruit grower and member of the Virginia State Apple Commission, testified that so far as his orchard company dealings went there were no changes in apple prices offered by processors in 1950 after the first price announcements.

On cross examination, he said his companies received no allowances for hauling apples in purchases by the processors.

Examiner Hier told counsel today that the testimony offered yesterday by Carroll Miller would have "no weight at all" with him because of what he described as its vague nature. Hier at one point yesterday warned Miller that the witness' "very accurate memory" concerning two exhibits and his failure to recall other events "raises a serious doubt in my mind as to the weight that I should attach to your testimony."

The government in its price fixing charges names in addition to Appalachian Service the processing companies of C. H. Musselman Co., Biglerville, Pa.; Knouse Foods Cooperative, Inc., Peach Glen, Pa.; Bowman Apple Products, Co., Inc., Mount Jackson, Va.; National Fruit Products Co., Winchester, Va., and Shenandoah Valley Apple Cider & Vinegar Corp., Winchester, Va.

Rummage Sale Set

Fire Training Drill Towers Urged For Volunteer Unit

Drill towers for training volunteer firemen were proposed at a meeting of volunteer company officers Wednesday in the Corriganville Fire Hall.

Those attending suggested the towers be built in different parts of the state. It was explained a drill tower is a three-story shell of a building that will have a smoke room, oil tanks to make oil fires, a sprinkling system to show how it operates, ample hydrants, ladders and other facilities that would teach a fireman methods of fighting fires and handling equipment.

This suggestion grew out of a discussion of training problems. The main difficulty with volunteer firemen is getting them interested in learning, the officers noted.

Volunteers cannot be made to train and ordinarily do not find lectures interesting. They mainly want to get out and actually use the equipment, it is claimed. By the use of drill towers, they could learn fire fighting methods in the manner which they like best.

Another problem aired before C. C. Larrimor, instructor for the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland, was acquiring tank trucks for a source of water in rural areas where there are not streams nearby.

Larrimor and the 35 fire company officers also discussed volunteer unit by-laws and organization.

The conference was one of 14 scheduled over the state to have volunteer firemen air their problems before the Fire Extension Service so that solutions may be effected.

After the discussion, a social hour was sponsored by the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company.

Barton Seniors Win First Prize In Play Contest

Janet Wilt, Robert Kirk Also Honored

BARTON — The Senior Class of Barton High School swept honors in the school's annual play contest Tuesday evening in the high school auditorium.

The seniors' production of "Like Father, Like Son," was judged the best play. Two members of the cast, Janet Wilt and Robert Kirk, were named best actress and actor.

The sophomore presentation of "Johnny Goes Haywire," placed second in the contest and the junior class production, "Junior Buys a Car," was third.

Aurora Mowbray and James McKenzie directed the sophomore play. Directors for the junior play were Reginia Derham and Shirley Metz.

Other members of the winning play's cast were Marvin Broadwater, Harry Bly, Mary Lou Llewellyn and Patty Green. The play was directed by Shirley McVicker and William Brown.

Contest judges were Mrs. David Moses, Robert Dawson and Joseph Howell.

Vocal selections were presented between plays by the senior high glee club, directed by Mrs. Doris B. Mitchell.

Keyser Men Explain Circumstances In Case

KEYSER—Glen Alt and Edgar Biggs Jr., charged with having a loaded gun in their car while traveling along a county road, were fined $50 and costs by Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle and not $100 as previously stated.

The two men explained that their gun was a .22 caliber rifle, loaded with .22 BB pellets. They said it could not be used for shooting any game.

The two men, who paid their fines, said that Conservation Officer Claude E. Rice pulled the door of their car open and picked up the gun and brought them to Keyser and preferred charges against them. Both men say that theoretically they are probably guilty of violating a law, but they were not hunting. They said also that the officer took a small lantern from the car.

GEORGE H. FALLON — FRANK B. SMALL Jr. — DeWITT S. HYDE

MARYLAND CONGRESSMEN—Six of Maryland's members of the House of Representatives are shown here. Edward T. Miller, 57, Republican attorney, has won his fourth term in Congress from the First (Eastern Shore) District. James P. S. Devereux, Republican, at 49 is a retired Marine brigadier general of Wake Island fame and a two-term Congressman from the Second District. Edward A. Garmatz, 49-year-old Democrat, has been Third District Congressman since 1947. George H. Fallon, also 49 and a Democrat, has won his fifth term as Representative from Fourth District. Richard E. Lankford, 37, Democrat, has won first term as Fifth District Congressman, as DeWitt S. Hyde, Republican, has done in the Sixth District.

Keyser Kiwanians Learn More About Local Business

KEYSER — The Keyser Kiwanis Club membership was given another opportunity to learn more of the "Business of Keyser," when a movie was shown at the Wednesday night dinner meeting of the club, held at the Dawson Methodist Church, McMullen Highway.

A representative of the Armstrong Cork Company, presented a movie, titled "Beauty By the Yard," which was a tour of the company's large plant at Lancaster, Pa., showing the manufacture of linoleum, mixing of colors and assemblying the products that go into the manufacture of the product and all was shown in an interesting manner, as a visitor to the plant would see the operations.

The plant representative, Donn Daganhardt, is a veteran in the work. He was accompanied by Charles Davidson, Cumberland representative of the company, and C. Boyd Burgess, Keyser, who is the dealer for this area.

The local group was amazed at the manner in which everything in the manufacturing process was handled, in such a smooth and apparently easy fashion. The customary period of questions and answers followed the presentation. The offering was another in the many showings of films and other methods of presentations of business operation in which Keyser merchants have a part. These programs are presented periodically to the membership as a part of the club's "Business of Keyser" program.

Next week's Kiwanis Club meeting will be held at the Waxler Road Church on Wednesday evening.

Friendly Helpers Class Conducts Annual Dinner

BARTON—The Friendly Helpers Bible Class of the Barton Methodist Church held its annual mother-daughter dinner recently at the church.

Mrs. A. B. Shaw, class teacher, spoke on the work the group has done the past year. Mrs. Cecil Metz, assistant teacher, also spoke.

Minister Gives Talk On Thanksgiving

KEYSER—Rev. W. Cecil Shepherd, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, spoke to members of Keyser Rotary Club at luncheon Thursday, on Thanksgiving, saying "there is much that we do in our everyday actions that we should think about and be thankful, but we don't stop to think of them."

Visitors at the meeting were "The Citizens of Tomorrow," Harold Foff and William Franklin, Keyser High School, seniors, and Rotarians Thomas Whelan, Piedmont, and Joseph P. Kuykendall, state soil conservationist, Romney.

There will not be a meeting next Thursday due to the Thanksgiving Day observance.

Old Germans Play Broadway Clowns Here Dec. 3

St. Francis Quint Sought For Nov. 30

Local Pros' Lineup Includes Four Spas; Plan Two Scrimmages

Cumberland's newly organized independent basketball team — The Old Germans — will play the New York Broadway Clowns Wednesday, December 3, at 8:30 p. m. in SS. Peter and Paul gym, Robert E. Pence, manager, announced last night.

The Clowns, a negro aggregation, were one of the best attractions on the Cumberland Spas' schedule last year and defeated the locals before one of the largest crowds of the season on February 24 by the score of 44-36.

Seek Game Here Nov. 30

Pence stated that the Old Germans are dickering with St. Francis College, of Loretto, Pa., for a game here Sunday, November 30, and if that is not booked the contest December 3 will serve as the lid-lifter.

St. Francis teams have played here five times in recent years, winning two games and losing three to local quints.

Four regulars of last year's Spas, namely, Lou Bell, George Geatz, Roger Day and Pence are with the Old Germans. Bob Lookabaugh has been practicing with the team but will not see action if the schedule does not open by December 3 as that's the date he goes into the army.

Other members of the squad are Roy Lester, Allegany football coach; Bill McProuty, assistant football mentor at Fort Hill; Bill Day, Charles "Snap" Morris, Joe Wolfe, Bob Humbertson, Murray Hardinger, Paul McGregor and Donald "Bubbles" Whiteman. Jimmy Clevenger and Wayne Boor of Keyser also may join the team.

Plan Two Scrimmages

The Old Germans have held five practice sessions to date. Today they are slated to scrimmage with Frostburg State Teachers College at 4 p. m. in the Mountain City while on Sunday they'll scrimmage with Potomac State at 2:30 in Keyser.

The Old Germans are the seventh team to represent Cumberland since the Amvets of the 1946-47 season. The Dukes were in action in 1948, 1949 and 1950 and the Spas represented this city in 1951 and 1952. Last season's team won seven and lost four.

Kensler To Play With Washington

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—Ed Kensler, assistant football coach at Washington and Lee University, said today he would play the final three games with the professional Washington Redskins.

Kensler was drafted by the Redskins last year after starring at linebacker with the University of Maryland's Sugar Bowl champions. However, he preferred to coach.

Washington and Lee completes its season Saturday. The university has granted Kensler permission to play with the Redskins.

TV Executives May Buy Pimlico Track

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP) — A new move to buy Pimlico was reported tonight with two television station executives named as the prospective buyers.

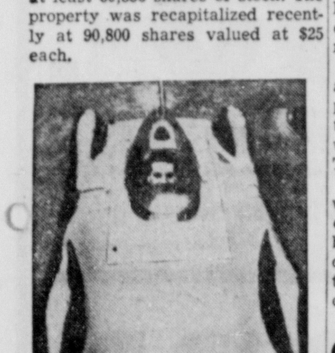
Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, president of the Maryland Jockey Club and top official of the track, described the transaction as a "behind the scenes deal" without his knowledge.

Benjamin and Herman Cohen, operators of Station WAAM, became the latest whose names were linked with possible purchase of the tradition-steeped race course.

Asked about reports of a pending sale, Herman Cohen said:

"No signed agreement is yet in our hands, but a letter has gone out to the stockholders."

He said "we are interested" in at least 60,836 shares of stock. The property was recapitalized recently at 90,800 shares valued at $25 each.



IN THIS "Flying Dish Cover" racing car, John Cooper, co-designer with his father, will attempt to crack 26 speed records. Cooper and a co-driver will lie back in a long seat to keep down the height. Four engines will be fitted in turn in the car to attack four different classes of records. Cooper, seen in New York, expects the car to hit 200 mph. (International)

BRUINS' BIG BOY . . . By Alan Mavet

As You Were

(This is the ninth in a series of sketches with pictures on well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

I'm a well known Allegany County grocer. Before I settled down around the cracker barrel I spent considerable time guarding first base for Cumberland teams. In fact, I was a fixture at the initial hassock for 8½ years. I was born on Christmas Day, my mother recently marked her 92nd birthday and I have five brothers — Bernard, Gregory, Michael, Leo and Bill. I made my debut with the Colts at South End Park in 1922 and played continuously through the first half of the 1930 season. In 1928 I succeeded Gus Thompson as playing manager of the Dobbins and I also piloted the club through the following season in the Middle Atlantic League. For three straight years, 1926, 1927 and 1928, I led the first sackers of the league in fielding with averages of 990, .993 and .994, proving that the longer I played the better I got. I was a right handed thrower but a left-handed hitter and my lifetime batting average was well over the .300 mark. My middle name is Jerome. Who are I?

John J. Byrnes is the name and I'm still the Eckhart grocer. I played for the Frostburg Demons before joining the Colts in 1922. The photo was taken in 1926.

Coast Game Is Sellout

100,000 To Witness Southern Cal, UCLA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (AP)—The "sell-out" sign was officially posted today for the Southern California-UCLA football game Saturday in Memorial Coliseum and the rival coast conference institutions could begin counting the proceeds of more than 100,000 tickets which cost $5 apiece.

As news of the sell-out was published, the scalping fraternity shifted into high gear—with one foot resting lightly on the clutch.

The reason: Many of these characters are holding on to their own personal tickets. They don't want to miss the game, either. Otherwise, they were getting $25 and up. The up was for midfield sections.

Thousands more in this area, as well as millions about the nation, could get consolation, however. The battle goes on the air as the "Game of the Week" television offering by the NCAA over the National Broadcasting Co. system.

Central Girls Meet, Play Altoona Dec. 7

The Central Lunch girls' basketball team will hold a meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Canada Hose House, North Mechanic street.

All girls interested in playing are asked to be present.

Central will play Altoona here Sunday, December 7.

Among the players on the Central roster are Becky Lechliter, Jean Hale, Elsie McKee, Donna Decker and May Smith.

Eldred Rinehart Will Head State Race Commission

Will Succeed Small When Latter Resigns

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 20 (AP) — D. Eldred Rinehart, titular chief of Maryland's Republican organization and a prosperous Washington County farmer, will be the next chairman of the State Racing Commission.

Gov. McKeldin confirmed today he intends to elevate Rinehart to the post when Frank Small Jr. resigns.

Small was elected to Congress this month and begins his two-year term in Washington next January. He won a close race in the Fifth Southern Maryland District.

Small's departure means McKeldin also may name another Republican to the commission. He said he had made up his mind on an appointment but couldn't yet divulge the name.

Served For 15 Months

Rinehart, 48, has been a member of the three-man commission for 15 months.

He was McKeldin's favorite — and the eventual choice—as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee at the GOP convention last spring. When membership on the national committee was broadened last summer, Rinehart's state position also gave him a place in that party ruling group.

As chairman, he will draw $4,000 a year, $1,000 more than the pay for an associate member.

He also moves into a hot spot in state administration. The next session of the General Assembly, beginning in January, is certain to take up racing legislation. Rinehart will be the man to answer most of the questions.

A special committee organized at the prompting of the 1952 Legislature recently criticized the commission as it is now organized and as it has conducted business in the past.

"Weak and lax" leadership was charged. Reorganization with a well-paid, full-time chairman to handle the state's end of racing affairs was recommended. So were more racing days.

Opposed Additional Dates

The commission came back with a slap at the committee's qualifications and opposed its suggestion of additional racing dates.

Rinehart joined in the commission's reply with Small and H. Courtenay Jenifer, the third member. Jenifer, a Democrat, has another year to go on the commission. Whoever completes Small's term will serve until 1955.

Oklahoma Is Out Of Bowl Picture

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 20 (AP)—Positive action by the University of Oklahoma Board of Regents today eliminated the Oklahoma Sooners from the national football bowl picture.

The regents, thrown into a special meeting by action of the players yesterday, adopted a motion which said simply: "Oklahoma belongs to the Big Seven Conference and has followed its rules in the past and should follow them in the future." The conference has banned post season games by its members.

There was no mention of a bowl in the motion but a reported Orange Bowl bid was discussed informally at length by board members, a spokesman said.

Sauer Voted MVP Award In Senior Loop

Wins By 15 Ballots Over Roberts, Black 3rd And Musial 5th

By JACK HAND

Hank Sauer

The long ball won for Hammerin' Hank whose total of 37 home runs and 121 runs batted in offset his .270 batting average. Despite a disastrous September slump, Sauer's slugging feats were judged more valuable to the Cubs than Roberts' job of winning 28 games for the Phils and Black's brilliant relief work for the pennant-winning Dodgers.

It was the first time since 1938 that the most valuable players in both leagues came from teams that did not win the pennant. Bobby Shantz of the Philadelphia A's was named the American's MVP winner last week.

It was a tight fit among the three leaders in the National in both first place votes from the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association and the point total.

Wins By 15 Points

Sauer eked out a 15-point margin with 226 points, to Roberts' 211 and Black's 208. Points were distributed on the basis of 14 for first place, nine for second and so on.

Sauer hit his season peaks in the All-Star game July 8 when he hit a two-run homer to win the game and June 11 when he hit three homers off Curt Simmons.

Roberts was the first 28-game winner in the National since Dizzy Dean in 1935. He threw 30 complete games, appeared in 39 games and allowed only 45 walks in 330 innings while striking out 108 men.

Black, brilliant Negro rookie, finished with a 15-4 record for the Dodgers, working in 56 games for a low earned run mark of 2.15.

Pitchers held three of the first four places in the balloting with New York's relief ace, Hoyt Wilhelm 15-3 drawing 133 points for fourth.

Musial Is Fifth

Stan Musial of St. Louis, winner in 1943-46-48 was the only other player to top 100 points. Stan drew 127 points for his feat of winning his sixth batting title with a .336 average.

Enos Slaughter, last of the old Gas House Gang at St. Louis, placed sixth with 92 points on his fine "comeback" season. The country boy wound up with a .300 average and 101 runs batted in.

Sedgman To Oppose McGregor In Finals

SYDNEY, Nov. 20 (AP) — Frank Sedgman turned up with a blistered right hand today while sweeping into the finals of the New South Wales tennis tournament with a straight-set victory over a young fellow Australian, Ken Rosewall.

The blister didn't seem to cause the world's No. 1 ranking amateur much trouble, however, as he polished off Rosewall 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

Sedgman will meet Ken McGregor, his Australian Davis Cup teammate, for the championship tomorrow. McGregor won over Mervyn Rose 6-2, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

America's lone remaining hopes in the tournament, Maureen Connolly and Julie Simpson, reached the finals of the women's doubles by downing Dorn Fogerty and Gwenyth Bryant of Australia 6-1, 6-2.

Hunters Are Urged Not To Tresspass On Propagation Area

Many hunters have requested information concerning the new propagation area along the Eastman and Mason roads, near this city, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Early in September, L. C. Rexroad, game breeder of this city, released approximately 200 young ringneck pheasants along the farms of these roads and Minke says that if most of these birds can be carried over during the winter good hunting is assured in these areas within a few years. Already many of these birds have been scattered over the surrounding territory.

Farmers and residents living there are cooperating with this project and all hunters are likewise asked to cooperate by refraining from hunting or trespassing on these properties which are marked with the State Propagation Area posters.

A violation for hunting or trespassing on any State Propagation Area carries a penalty of $50,

Bowie Racing Meet Is Reset For Saturday

Commission Gives Go-Ahead Signal

BOWIE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The footing still is squishy on Bowie's new racing strip but the Maryland Racing Commission and the jockeys today gave their go-ahead for the track to start running again Saturday.

Bowie's fall meeting was interrupted in its first day last Monday. Some of the jockeys refused to accept mounts and there was a spill in the mire as the horses pulled up after the second race.

Larry MacPhail, former baseball magnate who heads the syndicate which bought Bowie last winter, had spent thousands putting in a new racing surface.

There was little rain in October and early November to settle it. When a good soaker came along last Saturday, it turned into a quagmire. The jockeys complained the bottom had dropped out in spots.

Today's decision to go ahead Saturday came after a close inspection by two members of the racing commission, the commission's chief steward, Sterling Young and Jimmy Lynch of the Jockeys Guild, and such trainers as the veteran Hirsch Jacobs.

Young and Sterling found the track wasn't dangerous and told the riders to go ahead and make up their own minds about taking mounts. The jockeys indicated they would ride.

Chairman Frank Small of the racing commission said he was convinced the track would be all right tomorrow but thought it better to wait until Saturday to be sure.

Jacobs said 95 per cent of the horsemen were ready to go.

Four lost days will be tacked on at the end of the meeting, and Bowie will run through Dec. 11 instead of winding up Maryland's racing year on Dec. 6.

Bowie warned fans to come by train Saturday. New roads and parking lots built in MacPhail's two million dollar overhaul program are seas of mud.

Cities Service Games Are Marked By Upsets

Upsets prevailed in the Cities Service Dux League Wednesday night as both top teams suffered two losses on the Savoy lanes.

The First National Bank, tied for first place, lost two games to the second place Baltimore Pike Fire Company. McIntyre's, who own the other half of the No. 1 spot, also dropped a pair to Cement Products, while the C. & A. Gas Company pushed Queen City Dairy deeper into last place by losing only one game.

The night also brought about some high scores. John Bender of McIntyre's clipped a 222 game and 590 set; Tom McGeady, First National Bank, downed 212 in a single game and a 574 set; Wonn, Baltimore Pike Fire Company, 205-551; H. Bland, C. & A. Gas Company, 209-559; Often, Queen City Dairy, 198-507 and J. Becker, Cement Products, 212-477. The standings:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
First National Bank	18	12	.600
McIntyre's	18	12	.600

He's Suspended

FORMER Basketball Coach Nat Holman (above) of City College of New York and two other officials have been suspended by the college as a result of charges of unbecoming conduct brought by a committee of the board of higher education. The charges grew out of the 1951 basketball "fix" scandals, in which several City College players were involved. The others suspended were Professor Frank S. Lloyd, chairman of the faculty athletic committee, and Assistant Coach Harry Sand. (International)

Bracco Leads On First Day Of Road Race

Italian Sets Pace, Behra Cracks Up

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20 (AP) — Giavanni Bracco of Italy gunned his Ferrari into the lead after three laps of the Pan American Road Race today as the first day pace-setter, France's Jean Behra, smashed up on a treacherous curve 50 miles from Puebla.

At the same time, Chuck Stevenson of Lynnwood, Calif., driving a Lincoln, took command at the same stage in the stock car race, composed principally of Americans. His elapsed time was 8:42.22.

An American — John Fitch of Stamford, Conn.—remained in the thick of contention for the sports car prize in a contest with the world's greatest drivers. Fitch, driving a Mercedes Benz, was third behind Bracco and Germany's Karl Kling after 671 miles of the 1,934-mile course over curving mountain roads.

As Bracco roared into Mexico City, he had an elapsed time for the 671 miles of 7 hours, 44 minutes and 31 seconds. He had trailed Behra in the first leg yesterday between Tuxtla and Oaxaca but moved ahead on today's two laps —the 260 miles from Oaxaca to Puebla and the 81 from Puebla to Mexico City.

A series of accidents and one casualty marred the day's daring runs over the mountain trails. A Mexican engineer, Santos Letona Diaz, was killed when his sports car rammed a bridge between Puebla and Mexico City.

The next most serious was that of Behra, whose Gordini went into a spill on a curve near Molinos, 50 miles from the second lap finish line at Puebla. He was leading at the time.

An ambulance took the Frenchman to a Puebla hospital where he was reported to have a concussion but not to be seriously hurt.

7th Title For Clippers

By C. V. BURNS

FORT HILL and Allegany will split close to $6,000 in their Thanksgiving Day football game if attendance hits the 10,000 mark.

Last year the schools' share was an all-time high approaching $3,000 each. The revenue topped that of 1948 when a record crowd witnessed the game because the federal tax on admissions had been removed prior to the 1951 contest.

Next week with additional seats available a crowd of 10,000 persons can be accommodated.

Since the classic was inaugurated in 1928 it is estimated that the schools have averaged $2,500 each annually as their share.

JIMMY (OLD EXPORT) STAFFORD, who played football at Potomac State when George Parrish was head coach, reports that "Big George" became a grandfather the other day.

Parrish's daughter, Patricia, who is now Mrs. Wally Carey, gave birth to a boy. "Pat" is a graduate of Potomac State.

The Careys reside at Charleston W. Va.

THE KIWANIS CLUB of Grafton will sponsor a special "Grafton Bear" train to Parkersburg when Rand McKinney's undefeated eleven meets Big Creek of War for the West Virginia Class A football championship tomorrow.

Eight hundred are expected to make the trip at the low rate of $3 each. Grafton's 94-piece band will be aboard when the special pulls out of Grafton Saturday at 9:30 a. m.

HONEY BUNCH, Hal's Play and Frigate, owned by Louis Waingold, this city, are at Charles Town, W. Va., for the racing meet that opens November 29. Norman "Junie" Corbin trains this trio of thoroughbreds.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS) — Jackie Robinson has become a man of many parts.

The star second baseman of the Dodgers was once a great football and basketball player. He now is a golfer who shoots consistently in the 70's.

And any day now he will open a new clothing store in the Hariem section of New York.

In addition, he is to direct a music foundation for the National Broadcasting Company, an organization devoted to bringing music to inmates of hospitals and other welfare outfits.

We caught him on the fly between assignments—oh, yes, he also broadcasts and telecasts—to get a line on Dodger prospects to win the National League pennant again next year.

"Don't see how we can miss," said Jackie.

"The other clubs got to come to us. We don't need to improve much but they must improve a lot.

"The Dodgers actually don't need a thing. Just look at what we have. I think you'll agree we didn't have the worst infield in baseball last year.

"Gil Hodges may have had a poor world series but he had a good regular season and he figures to have an even better one next year.

"You know how good Peewee Reese is at short and Billy Cox at third. Just the best that's all. And I feel I still have a little good baseball left in my system.

"The outfield? Well, you saw the sensational plays those boys pulled off in the world series. They have been doing that all year. Only thing nobody noticed much because everybody takes it for granted that Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Andy Pafko can go get 'em.

"And don't overlook George Shuba. A great hitter. He's had an operation to fix up his knee. I don't know what plans the club has for him but if the Dodgers want to make a deal they certainly could get a pretty fair pitcher for him."

Jackie scoffs at the old story that the Dodgers have no pitchers. And he says: "Somebody must have been pitching all those winning games for us."

He also thinks the fans who think Joe Black is nothing but a great relief pitcher (nothing but?) are mistaken.

"I'm sure Joe would be just as effective starting every four days as he was in relief. As a matter of fact, with that rubber arm of his, he probably could start and relieve if he had to."

He does not agree with the many who think the Giants' pitching staff is all shot and figures they will be just as tough as ever. "It isn't pitching they need as much as infield and outfield help," he said. "They certainly could use a third baseman."

And who does Jackie think will be runner-up next year.

He laughed. "That all depends on which gets most help. The Giants should be good again and the Phils certainly were going great after they got Curt Simmons back from the army.

"I think it will be a close hard race. But I think we'll win because we've got ours; they got theirs to get."

Accept Bowl Bid

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 20 (AP) — San Diego Naval Training Center, defeated only by Southern California, today accepted an invitation to play in the Salad Bowl football game here Jan. 1.

Thomas Edens Jr., an official of the sponsoring Kiwanis Club, said the sponsors had not decided if a collegiate or service opponent will be chosen for the Bluejackets.

Famechon, Bassett To Fight In Paris

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The National Boxing Association said today Ray Famechon, France, and Percy Bassett, Philadelphia, have signed to meet for the "interim" world's featherweight championship.

The bout will be held Dec. 15 in Paris.

The NBA said it will continue to recognize Sandy Saddler, now in the Army, as world champion "but the winner of the Famechon-Bassett bout will stand ready to box Saddler as soon as the latter leaves the service."

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

who had been handling publicity for the Charles Town race track until last week, has severed relations with the West Virginia association, effective at once. No reason is given. The name of his successor has not been announced as yet.

Greg was former public relations man at Fairgo and has been connected with the Charles Town track for many years, serving on a number of occasions as assistant secretary.

ONE OF Western Pennsylvania's leading high school grid coaches died last week end in Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia, after a brief illness. He was Ken Bashore who was head coach at Altoona High School from 1939 to 1950. Ken turned out many powerful teams at the Pennsy school over a 12-year period.

HOLLY MIMS, Negro middleweight of Washington, D. C., popped back into the spotlight Tuesday night when he whipped Lester Felton of Detroit in a 10-rounder at Miami Beach, Fla.

Mims appeared in "Vic" Ricker's last show here (April 25, 1949) and decisioned Marion Klingensmith, the "Fighting Cop" of Brownsville, Pa.

Two years ago, Mims provided a big upset in Baltimore when he whipped Johnny Bratton. Holly was a 4-1 underdog in that one.

PATTERSON PARK'S Clippers wound up the grid season with an 8-0 record by walloping Forest Park High, 39-6.

Coach Irv Biasi's teams have gone through 25 games without a defeat and have gone undefeated an untied three times since the 1946 season. They've won the Maryland Scholastic Association championship six times in seven years.

Other wins on the Clippers' record this season were: Allegany (Cumberland) 26-0, Allentown (Pa.) 12-6, Baltimore Poly 27-6, Baltimore City College 40-14, Southern High (Baltimore) 38-6, Mt. St. Joseph 38-0 and Hershey (Pa.) 40-12.

NATE LEWIS, 77, who died in Chicago the other day, managed some of the world's outstanding fighters of bygone days. His best bets included George (K. O.) Brown, Pal Moore, Charley White, Sailor Friedman and Jock Malone.

WHEN THE West Virginia University football team of 1922 held its second reunion at Morgantown last week the place cards for the dinner were inscribed on pieces of the Pittsburgh goal post brought back by exhilarant West Virginia fans following the Mountaineers' first triumph over the Panthers in five years.

FOOTBALL reporters are still chuckling over the cutie pulled by Villanova's back, Gene Filipski, in the recent game with Boston College.

Gene got loose for substantial yardage but eventually was hemmed by the 12th tackler—the sideline.

He stopped suddenly and yelled to the converging tacklers:

"I'm out of bounds, don't hit me!"

The defenders relaxed, whereupon Filipski bolted forward and made an additional 20 yards.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20—(INS)—I am sorry that a battle is looming between John Wayne and Papa Yates at Republic, over the rights to "The Alamo," which John plans as his next picture. I am sorry because theirs was such a wonderful association for so long.

I don't know who's right, and I have no intention of going into the merits of the case. Papa Yates says "The Alamo" belongs to Republic because it was developed while John was under contract. But John says arrangements were made before he ever started it to make it as an independent venture.

He's leaving for Mexico next week to set up production plans and he'll make the entire picture in Mexico now that he has split with Republic.

When Rita Hayworth returns from gallivanting Europe with Prince Jose Maria de Villapadierna, she'll have Curtis Bernhardt as her director.

Columbia has just signed Bernhardt to direct Rita in "Miss Sadie Thompson." Bernhardt, who made some of the best of the Bette Davis, Jane Wyman and Joan Crawford pictures, has signed a contract with Columbia for two a year.

And, you can put down in your little black book that "Pal Joey" will not be a Rita Hayworth vehicle. Jerry Wald has another actress in mind.

When Louis Hayward came to Hollywood he had just won a prize for a performance he gave on the Broadway stage. He has always wanted to return to the stage, but he has been so busy with pictures he hasn't had time.

Now he has made a lot of money through participation in profits from a series of swashbuckling films here and in Europe, so he feels he can take time out for a play. He will have the lead in "Dial 'M' For Murder," with the Chicago company.

Maurice Evans, who plays the role in New York and who is part owner of the production, requested Hayward personally. The play goes into production in Chicago next month.

Ava Gardner will not be alone the 18 months she is in Europe. Eileen Thomas, who was secretary to Mary Martin all the time Mary was in "South Pacific" in London, has joined Ava in Africa as her secretary and companion.

Eileen has had much experience with stars. Before she was with Mary Martin, she was secretary to Tyrone Power and Linda Christian, and she knows all the ropes.

Meanwhile, Frank Sinatra is testing at Columbia for "From Here To Eternity." No decision will be made until Harry Cohn returns from New York.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Finally had a chance to see Darvas and Julia, the sensational dancers at the Mocambo. Julia apparently hasn't a bone in her body, and is uncanny in the way she takes falls. I have never seen anything like this pair in my life.

Gerald Mayer says she ran into a friend from New York who just had a big fight with his wife, so he introduced her as "my bitter half."

Claude Binyon is planning a fiendish Christmas revenge on Fred MacMurray. Last year Fred gave Claude's 12-year-old daughter an accordion. This year Fred's kids will get a set of drums, a bugle, and a toy machine gun. Murders have been committed for less!

Sympathy goes to Mrs. Paul Heinried in the loss of her 82-year-old father, Gustav Gluck, who was once head of the Imperial Art Gallery in Vienna. Gluck had just become an American citizen and was very proud of it.

James Brown, movie actor, takes over the disc jockey job at the King's Restaurant.

Can this be true? Warners are thinking of changing "The Man Who Came To Dinner" to "The Woman Who Came To Dinner" and using Tallulah Bankhead in the title role.

Judy Balaban, pretty daughter of Barney Balaban, and Jerry Gershwin, MCA agent, spend a lot of time on the long distance telephone.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Capitol Rotunda

been engaged to complete the frieze. Cox received lessons in Italy from some of the surviving practitioners of the great school of fresco painting, stemming from Raphael, the same in which Brumidi received his training.

The scaffolding has been put up and Cox is now making the cartoons, the initial step in the task of painting in monochrome to imitate sculpture in relief. This was the method used by Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel in Rome and by Brumidi and now by Cox. Essentially, it is painting on wet plaster.

In the unfinished 31 feet 2 inches of space, Cox will paint the three scenes as directed by Congress. David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, anticipated that the actual painting would get underway before Nov. 1.

Cox's sketches of the three events he will depict have been approved by the necessary authority, the Joint Congressional Committee on the Library.

Here, in Cox's words is a description of his three scenes and what motivated him in selecting them.

"Beginning at the left, the Civil war, or rather the making of peace after the war, is represented simply as possible by the symbols of a Confederate and a Union soldier shaking hands, marking the reunion of the two halves of the country. Behind the Confederate soldier is a cotton plant and behind the Union man a northern pine tree, to indicate locale.

"In reading and studying books and pictures of the spanish conflict of 1898, it seemed * * * the real cause of our quick victory was the much better fighting and particularly shooting efficiency of our Navy.

"Being obliged to chose one incident, I have therefore shown a gun crew preparing to shoot in one of the two great naval battles of the war . . .

"Passing to the right, one comes to a group of the precursors to the invention of practical flying. I have put in Leonardo da Vinci, and two figures representing American precursors to the Wrights. Each has in his hand a miniature model of his flying machine.

"The remaining space is filled with a symbolical representation of the first flight at Kitty Hawk, December 17, 1903, Orville Wright in the plane which has just left the ground, and Wilbur, having run along to steady the wing had just let go. To localize this great achievement as an American flight, an eagle flies to meet them with a laurel branch in its claws.

"The eagle has been carefully designed to fit closely on the group next to the right, that of Liberty and her attendants; is really intended to make part of it, so that the frieze ends as it begins, with the favorite personifications of the American spirit."

Brumidi painted the following six scenes: Landing of Columbus, 1492; Entry of Cortez into Mexico, 1521; Pizarro's Conquest of Peru, 1533; Midnight Burial of DeSoto, 1541; Pocahontas saving John Smith, 1606; Landing of the Pilgrims, 1620.

He had a seventh scene, Penn's Treaty with the Indians, 1682, more than half completed when he died. Costaggini finished that, plus the Settlement of New England, Oglethorpe and the Indians, and the Reading of the Declaration of Independence.

TOO YOUNG to realize his plight, 2-year-old Michael Francis Jones is back home in Aberdeen, Md., after losing both legs under a train Oct. 10. His constant companion is Blackie, 6 months old pup. Michael gets about on his stumps, which aren't even sore. Neighbors established a fund for him which totals around $5,000. Two Aberdeen football teams are to play a benefit game for him Nov. 23. (International)

Rubber flooring is an ideal choice for the children's playroom. A damp mop whisks away ordinary soil. For extra stubborn stains such as paint, nail polish or iodine, rub lightly with fine steel wool and the spots will disappear. A light rewaxing with a water emulsion floor wax will bring out the original gloss and the rubber flooring will look as good as new.

"PLYMOUTH ADVENTURE"
Color by TECHNICOLOR CERTAIN SECRETS...
concerning the fateful voyage of the Mayflower were locked in historic archives for many years. Now, M-G-M presents the unknown drama of the "Plymouth Adventure"!
THE BEST SELLER... was eagerly sought after by Hollywood. M-G-M was chosen to bring the book to the screen because of its proud record of having produced "Quo Vadis" and "Ivanhoe"!
FOR REALISM...
in filming "Plymouth Adventure," a full-scale replica of the Mayflower was constructed. It required months to reproduce with absolute authenticity this famous ship of destiny!
THE DRAMATIC VOYAGE
depicted in "Plymouth Adventure" actually re-lives the original journey. It took 135 men and women 96 days to cross the ocean. The same number of players spent almost exactly that time together... to make this great sea adventure!
AN INSPIRED CAST... of players bring "Plymouth Adventure" to life. Among the stars seen in famous roles are Spencer Tracy as Captain Jones, Gene Tierney as Dorothy Bradford, Van Johnson as John Alden and Leo Genn (of "Quo Vadis" fame) as William Bradford.

Ski Club To Elect New Officers Sunday

Officers will be elected at a meeting of the Western Maryland Ski Club Sunday at 4 p. m. in the home of W. Eric Gibbs at Roberts Place on McMullen Highway.

George D. Hankins, president, said the club will complete plans for the 1952-53 season. A 22-minute color film entitled "Ski Tips" and narrated by Lowell Thomas will be shown.

Hankins said the organization is for any resident of the tri-state area who is interested in skiing.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WE ALL LIKE TO BID

PRACTICALLY everybody will admit that he "likes to bid." To sit there, and let the action proceed without taking any part in it, is more or less irksome to anyone. That's why you so often see otherwise sound players stick their necks out by inserting doubtful overcalls or attempting doubles of the opponents at low levels, when they really lack sufficient cards for the action. The pleasure of doing that can be an expensive luxury, however, if the opponents use the right weapons to punish such temerity.

West hardly expected to have his double of 3-Hearts left in. He made it merely because it gave him an active part in the proceedings and he felt it would be without risk. When he held six trumps, he hardly expected the opponents to play the deal in that declaration. South's intention, with his immense hand, was to rebid his spades if North called a non-committal 3-No Trumps over the 3-Hearts, since he felt that there was a fine chance of a slam if North had any suit-length at all in his hand.

When West doubled the 3-Hearts surprisingly, South was happy to change plans. He felt sure of losing no tricks on the side, and was confident he could make the 3-Hearts plus some overtricks. So, instead of any more bidding, he redoubled. West, having no place to go, had to pass that and hope for the best. The best was pretty bad.

After opening the club Q to the K, West saw South score two tops in diamonds, two in spades and the club A, then lead the spade 6. West ruffed with his heart Q and returned the heart 2. South got that with the J, then ruffed the spade 7 with the heart 10. He returned with a ruff of the club 8 with the heart 8, laid down the heart A and K, then gave West a ruff of the final spade. Consequently West took only two tricks with all of those trumps. South not only made the redoubled contract, but two extra tricks, for a score overwhelmingly more than any he could have made without the aid of the double. Figure it out for yourself. It will give you a lot more fun than West got out of his double.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

After West opens this deal with 1-Heart, what action should ensue in a rubber game?

The most universally needed permit for international travel is not a passport but proof of a recent smallpox vaccination. Even countries which require no passport or visa ask for smallpox certificates.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is LONGFELLOW
AXYDLBAAXR

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BROTHERS IN NAVY—Richard Thrasher, 18, seen at the right above, and his brother, Elroy Thrasher, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lee Thrasher, 30 Pennsylvania Avenue, recently spent a 14-day leave at home. Both are seaman apprentices and graduates of Fort Hill High School, Class of 1952. Elroy is stationed at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va., while Richard is stationed at New London, Conn. They both enlisted in the Navy, June 16, 1952. Another brother, Charles Thrasher, now in Korea, enlisted in the U. S. Navy, January 14 of this year.

Pvt. Charles A. Rexroad, 23, son of Mrs. Mary G. Rexroad, Star Route, Flintstone, has completed basic training with the Third Armored Division at Fort Knox, Ky. Entering the Army March 5, he attended classes and had practical work in combat skills.

Ronald L. Baird, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Baird, Bowling Green, was assigned to the transport USS Botetourt after completing boot training at Bainbridge. After returning from a recent cruise to Cuba, he was assigned to assist in transporting troops to Germany. "Ronnie" graduated from Cresaptown High School in 1950 and entered the Navy last September.

Wayne Allen Perdew, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Perdew, Artemas, Pa. Star Route, is taking basic training, at Camp Breckenridge, Ky. A graduate of Flintstone High School, he has spent most of his time entertaining by radio and television. Pvt. Perdew expects to continue his music career following discharge from the U. S. Army.

Pvt. John R. Radcliff, brother of Mrs. Thomas Bryant, 225 Maple Street, is nearing completion of a 16-week training cycle with the Sixth Armored Division at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He will be sent either to specialist schools or to another unit as a replacement.

Undergoing a two-week Naval Reserve training program with the construction battalion at Great Lakes, Ill., is Joseph E. Evans, surveyor second class, Construction Battalion, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Evans, Frostburg. Evans is a member of Naval Reserve Unit, Cumberland 5-7, which meets at McKaigs Hill.

Eugene M. Light, city, was recently promoted to captain while serving in Korea with the Third Infantry Division. Captain Light is a liaison officer for the 15th Infantry Regiment, a part of the Third Division. A World War II veteran, he has been in Korea for more than six months.

Market Undergoes Slight Reaction Following Advance

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Stock Market went through a mild reaction phase today after a strong three-day advance.

The list was pretty thoroughly mixed with a downside leaning evident in just about all major divisions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $109.80 with the industrial average down 30 cents, the railroads up 10 cents, and the utilities down 20 cents.

The motors had some good gainers with General Motors up ¼ at 64 and Reo Motors up 1⅛ at 24⅜. Chrysler lost 1 at 85⅜.

Half of the day's ten most active issues were railroads. At the top of the list was New York Central up ⅜ at 20¼ and it was followed by Pennsylvania Railroad up ⅜ at 20⅛, Baltimore & Ohio unchanged at 24, United Corp. off ⅛ at 5⅛, and Republic Aviation off ⅞ at 21⅛.

Northern Pacific gained 2 points at 69⅛, the day's eighth most active issue, and among other gainers were American Smelting up ½ at 41½, Du Pont ⅝ at 93⅛, Servel ¾ at 11⅜, Goodyear ⅜ at 46¾, and U. S. Tobacco up ¼ at 19⅞.

Going lower were Seaboard Railroad off 1 at 106, Union Pacific 1½ at 113, Standard Oil (NJ) ½ at 75¼, American Telephone ⅛ at 157½, Union Carbide ⅜ at 65⅞, Westinghouse Electric ⅝ at 45½, American Tobacco ⅞ at 63⅛, Bethlehem Steel ½ at 50¾, Douglas Aircraft ½ at 60, Lockheed ⅜ at 21¼, Philco ⅝ at 35⅜, and Radio Corp. ⅜ at 28⅞.

Betty Whitten, R.F.D. No. 1, Box 325, Frostburg, Maryland, Complainant, vs. Jimmy Junior Whitten, c/o Mrs. Ettie Judge, 1131 S. Sheridan Ave., Ottumwa, Iowa, Respondent, No. 22977 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant, Betty Whitten, from the Respondent, Jimmy Junior Whitten.

The Bill of Complaint states that the Complainant is an adult resident of Allegany County where she has resided for more than one year prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint; that the parties were married on December 8, 1944 by a duly ordained minister in Elkton, Cecil County, Maryland; and thereafter, the parties lived in various states, and although the conduct of the Complainant was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said Respondent did, without any just cause or reason, abandon and desert her on or about March 12, 1948, and that such abandonment has continued interruptedly for at least eighteen months and is deliberate and final; and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that two children were born of said marriage, Joe Junior Whitten, May 9, 1946, and Charles Wesley Whitten, October 26, 1947, who are now in the custody of the Complainant. The Bill further recites that the Respondent is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and his last known address appears in the heading of the suit.

It is thereupon, this 20th day of November, 1952, by the Circuit Court of Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the Complainant cause a copy of this Order to be published in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of December, 1952, giving notice to the said absent Respondent of the purpose of this suit and warning him to appear in this Court on or before the 8th day of January, 1953, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree shall not be passed as prayed.

JOSEPH E. BODEN
Clerk of the Circuit Court

LAVALE SANITARY COMMISSION
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
JUNE 30, 1952

(1) All expenses, including interest prior to October 1, 1950, date on which revenue producing operations began, have been capitalized and are reflected in the account, "Structures and Improvements."
(2) The inventory of materials and supplies, which is valued at cost, was furnished us by the Secretary-Treasurer of the Commission and accepted by us without independent verification.
(3) As of the balance sheet date all matured bonds and bond interest coupons had been paid by the fiscal agent and returned to the Commission. Accrued interest as reflected in the balance sheet represents interest on bonded debt for the period February 1, 1952 to June 30, 1952.

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 380C of Chapter 13 of the Laws of Maryland, Extraordinary Session of 1947, I hereby certify that the above is a true, full and itemized account of the receipts and disbursements of the LaVale Sanitary Commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1952, as prepared by James P. Rogers, certified public accountant.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Irene F. Brown vs. Franklin Anderson Brown No. 22948 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII of the Plaintiff from the Defendant.

The bill states that the parties hereto were married on September 7, 1941, in Cumberland, Maryland; that three children were born of said marriage, namely, Irene E. Brown on July 12, 1942, Margaret M. Brown, born October 14, 1943, and Barbara A. Brown born September 7, 1948; all of whom reside with the Complainant; that the Defendant on or about April 1st, 1951, without just cause or reason deserted and abandoned the Complainant and has declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such desertion and abandonment has been continuous and uninterrupted for more than 18 months and is deliberate and final, without any reasonable hope of reconcillation; that the Complainant is a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, and that the Defendant is a non-resident of said State, his last known address being c/o Mrs. J. D. Brown, Jonesville, S. C.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 30th day of October, 1952, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the Complainant by causing a copy of this Order to be published in some newspaper, once in each of four successive weeks, before the 1st day of December, 1952, giving notice to the absent Defendant of the object and purpose of this suit and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 17th day of December, 1952, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Police Believe Killer Suspect Ended Own Life

Leads Followed Without Success

A fruitless search for Boyd Wise, alleged killer of a Davis, W. Va. couple, and bits of information gathered from friends and relatives have led police to believe Wise has committed suicide and his body is somewhere in the wild country surrounding that area.

Nobody has seen the suspected murderer since he fatally shot Antonio Damiano and Mrs. Lucille (Sowers) Damiano in front of a Davis doctor's office Tuesday night.

Relatives Quizzed

Capt. B. E. Wright, of the Elkins, W. Va. detachment of state police, said Wise's immediate family and neighbors were questioned yesterday, and there is a faint indication that Wise has committed suicide.

Until yesterday, nobody had offered any clues to the mystery that has baffled authorities for three days. However, yesterday police received several calls from neighbors and friends of Wise, offering bit information and leads which were followed without success.

Wright added that Wise's wife and children last saw the suspect about three hours before the killing.

According to information gathered from relatives and neighbors, Wright pointed out, indication leads to the fact that Wise had planned the shooting and then intended to kill himself.

Mrs. Wise and close friends told authorities Wise had been acting peculiar and from some of the things he said they surmise the suicide theory is most evident.

Search Continued

Sheriff D. E. Crosten, of Parsons, and Trooper G. S. Phillips, of the Thomas, W. Va. detachment, continued their investigation late last night. Men were searching the rugged country in the area despite steady rain.

Wright explained that if Wise had committed suicide, it will be a hard job to find his body. In that mountainous area of thousands of acres near Beaver Creek, Wright declared a man could be 10 feet from his body and not find him.

He described the rugged section as scattered with huge boulders, light undergrowth, deep water holes and strip mining excavations.

Authorities meanwhile have only a vague understanding why Wise should kill the Davis merchant and his wife. The only thing they have to go on is that Mrs. Damiano and Wise were said to be enemies and had bad blood between them.

In general, Wright said, police are doing all they can to untangle the mess. The opinion persists among authorities and residents that he has committed suicide.

Cigaret Tossed Into Mail Box; No Letters Lost

Someone tossed a cigaret or a match into a small relay box at Maryland Avenue and Emily Street yesterday afternoon and caused a mail sack to be burned before firemen could arrive.

East Side firemen, who answered the call at 3:15 p. m., said they weren't sure whether a vandal had intentionally started the fire or whether an absent-minded passerby had mistaken the relay box for a trash can. Cigarets sometimes have started fires in trash cans on downtown streets.

W. Russell Thayer, superintendent of mails, said no mail was destroyed. Thayer said the letter carrier on the route already had picked up his mail, delivered it and returned the sack to the box.

Revival Continues At Second Baptist

Revival services at Second Baptist Church will continue through Sunday, with services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Rev. H. M. Lieghty, superintendent of Baltimore City Missions, is the evangelist. He will speak on "The Matchless Christ" at 11 a. m. and on "Christ is coming again" at the evening service.

He will speak Friday at 7:30 p. m. on "Where do you go from here?" Saturday night will be the Young People's service and he will speak on "Life's greatest decision."

GEORGE GIATRAS

Confectioner, 50 Years In U. S., Visits Native Greece

By BERNARD SITTER
News Staff Writer

Anyone who has any misgivings about life in the U. S. today might drop in at a little Bedford Street confectionery and ask for George.

George, whose last name is Giatras, feels he ought to know. He recently spent five weeks in Greece, the land of his boyhood, and he couldn't help making a lot of comparisons.

After seeing Greece, says George, he's even more certain of his opinion of the U. S. "It's God's country," he says.

When Giatras left his homeland in 1902 as a ten-year-old boy, the country was poor and backward. Farming, the principal occupation in most of the nation, was a difficult life. Soil was not especially fertile, and there was little rain.

There were great economic contrasts. There were the rich and there were the poor, but there was no middle class. Paved roads were almost unheard of, and there was no such thing as modern farm machinery.

Goes Back To Birthplace

When Giatras arrived in the U. S. he went to Johnstown, Pa., to live with an uncle. Later he came to Cumberland and opened George's Confectionery, which he has operated for the past 30 years.

After 50 years in the New World, Giatras was anxious to visit his birthplace and to see his brothers and sisters, most of whom he hadn't seen since boyhood.

So George and his daughter, Helen, packed up and boarded the Nea Hellas (New Greece) liner, with their ultimate destination Dafnie, Sparta, where Giatras was born.

They expected to find the new Greece modern and progressive, if not thriving. But instead they found that 30 years of wars and internal disorder had left the nation in worse shape than they had expected.

Donkeys, Not Cars

Donkey transportaiton is still in vogue in Dafnie and in countless other little towns. There is no such thing as plumbing in the rural districts, and every householder digs his own well.

To one who had spent half a century in the United States, conditions seemed even worse than in 1902. There are few threshing machines on the farms, there is little lumber in Greece (most is imported from Sweden), and there are no herds of dairy cattle.

A new trouble has been added to the Greek's usual burdens. Postwar inflation has skyrocketed the prices of practically everything out of all proportion to wages.

A shirt which would sell for $3 in the U. S. brings $12 to $14 in Athens, a 1941 automobile costs $7,500, plus a monthly federal tax of $90 to $100 for the privilege of driving, and a box of a dozen aspirins costs 70 cents.

Glad To Be Home

Wages, in comparison to prices, are extremely low. Laborers earn $1.50 to $2 a day. Those fortunate enough to have government jobs make up to $60 a month, but rents are $18 to $20 a month.

Giatras did find some improvements in postwar Greece. Farmers now are beginning to raise rice with some success, thanks to help given them by ECA advisors. There is more farm machinery than there used to be, but most farms still are depending on outdated methods.

And although Athens is gripped by inflation, it's much better off than most of the country, according to Giatras, who found it to be a modern city with an ideal warm, dry climate.

Glad to be back behind the counter at his store ("where I belong") Giatras summed up his impressions of Greece in the words of the tourist who has just visited any place and is glad to be back home.

"It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't live there for the world."

Outlet Short-Circuits

East Side firemen were called to a first-floor apartment at 218 Columbia Street early yesterday morning when a short-circuit in an electrical outlet caused a small blaze.

Firemen said an occupant of the building threw water into the fire but escaped injury. Firemen had to cut the wires leading to the outlet to right the damage, which was confined to the receptacle.

Zoning Board Approves Two Applications

The Board of Zoning Appeals last night approved two applications for building permits here.

Mrs. Mildred G. Houck, 709 Frederick Street, received permission to enclose a ground floor porch of her home as a bedroom for her invalid mother.

The application was first disapproved because the code allows only 96 square feet to be enclosed, and the 7x20-foot room would total 140 feet.

John D. Bennett, 415 South Street, received permission to build a five-car garage at the rear of his home.

He told the board he planned to use three stalls for automobiles and the other two as a hobby shop for his own use.

Bennett added there are four apartments in his home and that tenants have been obliged to park their cars on the streets, since garage space was not available.

The code allows only three garages to be built in one unit in residential areas.

Still tabled is the board's action on the appeal of Clarence Litzenburg to build a warehouse on property on Polk Street.

The city is interested in the property, which will be needed if Sanders Street is to be extended.

Scrap Metal Worth $150 Is Stolen

Thieves broke into a River Avenue scrap metal shed sometime over Wednesday night and stole an estimated $150 worth of metal, the proprietor told City Police yesterday.

David Miller, operator of the salvage yard at 1415 River Avenue, said the burglars took three-quarters of a barrel of copper scraps, a quantity of insulated copper wire, 12 gas heater coils, three or four used auto batteries and two large balls of scrap lead.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said entrance was gained through a hole in the roof of the shed. The culprits then unlocked a door from the inside and loaded the stolen metal into a truck or car.

Local Soldier Aboard Navy Transport

Pfc. James F. Rank, 423 Furnace Street, is among 27 Marylanders aboard the Navy Transport Marine Adder scheduled to reach Seattle today after military service in the Far East.

Others from Western Maryland among the 2,810 passengers are Sfc. Edward L. Shives, Hancock; Sgt. David B. Stouffer, RFD 4, Hagerstown, and Sgt. Fred A. Bowers, 17 Rosemont Avenue, Frederick.

McKaig Lodge Will Honor Veteran Members Nov. 26

Marion "Jerry" Hoffman, 705 Hill Top Drive, retired Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yardmaster here, will receive a pin for 50 years of continuous membership in William M. McKaig Lodge No. 440, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, at 7 p. m. Wednesday, November 26, at the Woodmen of the World Home, 144 Union Street.

E. W. Law, president of the lodge, said that Hoffman heads the list of 21 lodge members who will be awarded pins for long membership Wednesday night.

The president also stated that various issues pertaining to B&O yardmen of the local yard will be discussed. These matters are of considerable importance and affect all members, Law added.

Others who will receive continuous membership pins:

Robert C. Arnold and Allen H. Stewart, 45 years; Arthur S. Rowe, 40 years; John A. Stapleton, 30 years; Jerome S. Perdew, Harvey L. Holler, Edward J. Moran, James Nelson, Henry H. Lee, John P. Gordon and Theodore J. Brant, 25 years; Daniel M. Dawson, 15 years; Raymond V. Stallings, Adam F. Zais, Alwin W. Pittman, Robert C. Chinault, Richard E. Stuby, Oliver S. Bosley, William J. Ray and Berlin D. Towler, 10 years.

Refreshments will be served after the presentations.

Reforestation Need Stressed By Fire Wave

Buckingham Cites Trees Importance

Now that the wave of forest fires across the nation has subsided, State Forester H. C. Buckingham believes all woodland owners should give serious thought to the importance of reforestation to replace lost trees.

Buckingham was in Cumberland yesterday compiling data about the equipment needs for employes of the State Department of Forests and Parks in the Western Maryland counties.

State Fortunate

The state forester stressed that Maryland was fortunate in having only about 700 acres of loss by forest fires in the past six weeks. He especially praised the work of forest fire control supervisors, such as Brook Bodkin in this county, who constantly were on the job to see that forest fires did not get out of control.

In pointing to Maryland's forest fire record this fall, Buckingham compared it with neighboring states. In West Virginia, conservation authorities estimate that 500,000 acres of woodland was lost in the recent fires. Virginia lists $1,000,000 loss in the destruction of 47,000 acres of forest land.

Buckingham said that reforestation serves two notable purposes. The more trees there are the more wood is available for timber as a source of income for the woodland owner. Adequate forests also serve as soil conservation agents and in that respect minimize the dangers from floods.

1,500,000 Trees

District Forester William H. Johnson has been allotted 1,500,000 young trees from the state nursery at Harmans in Anne Arundel County for distribution to woodland owners in the four Western Maryland counties.

Buckingham stressed that these trees should be planted properly so they can grow and still be thinned regularly to serve as a source of income. His department recommends that white pines, red pines, spruce and larch be planted in Allegany and Garrett Counties, beginning about March 1.

From young trees planted next spring, the land owner can expect to derive some income in about 10 years when the first trees are thinned out. This thinning process can be continued about every 10 years thereafter, he advises.

Buckingham advised land owners to apply now to the district forester's office in the Court House so they can have trees for spring planting.

Auxiliary Unit Has Installation

Officers of the Auxiliary Unit of Fulton Myers Post No. 153, American Legion, were installed Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Mae E. Washington, 16 North Paw Paw Way.

The new officers were installed by Mrs. Mary B. Ashcraft, Baltimore, department vice president at large, at a turkey dinner meeting.

Installed were Mrs. Vivian Wilson, president; Mrs. Hilda Stephens, first vice president; Mrs. Opal John Jones, second vice president; Mrs. Ella Elizabeth Beckwith, recording secretary.

Mrs. Rosa Kelly, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mae Washington, treasurer; Mrs. Anna Erwin, chaplain; Mrs. Bessie Taylor, historian; Mrs. Monzel Trimble, sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Mary Trent and Helen Woods, color bearers.

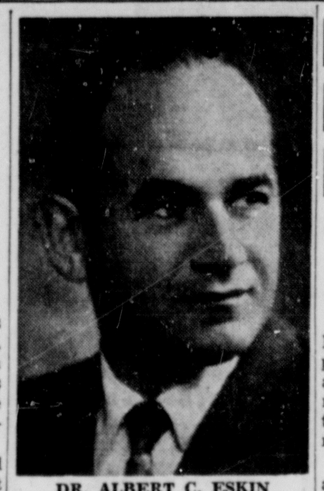
Two new members were admitted to the auxiliary. They are Mrs. Helen Broome Harris and Mrs. Mary Broome Thompson.

Arthritis Clinic Scheduled Dec. 5

Another arthritis clinic in Allegany County will be held Friday, December 5, under auspices of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society.

Dr. Leon A. Kochman, a native of Cumberland who now resides in Baltimore, will again conduct the bi-monthly clinic. His schedule calls for him to be at the Allegany County League for Crippled Children's Building from 9 a. m. until noon.

The specialist also will be available for private consultation at Memorial Hospital by appointment from 1 until 5 p. m.



DR. ALBERT C. ESKIN

Dr. A. C. Eskin Heads Jewish Fund Campaign

Dr. Albert C. Eskin has been appointed by the Jewish Welfare Fund of Western Maryland as general chairman of the local United Jewish Appeal campaign.

The drive will get underway with a "kick-off" dinner at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Sunday evening, November 30, at 6:30 o'clock.

Dr. Eskin, a former vice president of the Maryland State Dental Association, served as alumni editor of the University of Maryland Dental School Journal for several years and is a member of the National Association of Dental Editors.

He served in the United States Army for four and one-half years with the rank of lieutenant colonel and was attached to the 3rd and 9th Armies in the European Theater from Normandy to the Elbe.

Dr. Eskin is a member of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion; Western Maryland Lodge, B'nai B'rith; the Cumberland Moose Lodge and B'er Chayim Congregation.

Tri-State Area Gets First Big Rain In Months

The Tri-State District received its first soaking rain for over a month yesterday and Wednesday as 1.76 inches washed the area.

It was the first soaking rain since October 10 and 11 when .29 of an inch fell. For the first 18 days of this month only .22 of an inch of rain fell in the district.

Last month there was 1.55 inches. Louis A. Koffman, of the local office of the Surface Water Branch, U. S. Geological Survey, reported no noticeable change in river height. He said the steady rain is being swallowed by the parched earth. Yesterday Wills Creek showed a rise of one-tenth of a foot.

However, Koffman added, streams will begin showing effects of the current downpour if rain continues through the week.

The Weather Bureau noted that the normal rainfall for November is the lowest of the 12 months—2.18 inches. The 30-day forecast released last week predicted an above average precipitation for that period.

Elsewhere in Maryland wind-driven rains swept across the state providing the first good soaking in months.

The Weather Bureau said "strong southeast winds piled the waters of the Chesapeake Bay into its upper reaches and last evening's high tide ranged from one to two feet above normal." The bureau said it had issued precautionary warnings to persons in low-lying areas.

From an agricultural standpoint the weather bureau said it was a "million dollar rain" that began falling Wednesday. It helped to replenish ground water lost during the recent dry spell and has provided a timely dousing for winter grains.

The average rainfall over Maryland when the storm ends is expected to be more than two inches. The rains were statewide, the weather bureau reported and were "the first of good intensity and duration in at least three months."

Winds of 25 to 30 miles an hour drove the rain. Some low-lying highway areas were flooded yesterday the bureau said. One area inundated, the bureau said, was at Peace Cross on the Washington Boulevard.

Small craft warnings were ordered up along the lower Potomac River and the Chesapeake Bay. Southeast storm warnings were up south of Block Island to the Virginia Capes and small craft warnings were ordered south of Virginia Capes to Hatteras and over inland waters.

The forecast for Maryland today is partly cloudy and cooler.

Smith Paroled In Assault Case

A West Side man was handed a suspended House of Correction sentence in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday when he entered a plea of guilty to an assault charge filed by a young woman.

Joseph Leo Smith, 100-block South Smallwood Street, received a suspended one-year sentence and was placed on a two-year parole by Magistrate J. Milton Dick.

Smith was charged with assaulting Miss Virginia Flanagan, 200-block Spruce Street, as the 21-year-old woman walked toward her home early Sunday morning.

PSC Refuses To Postpone C & A Rate Hearings

Finan And Getty To Fight Increase

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP) — A People's Counsel motion to postpone attempts of the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Co. to win a rate increase was turned down by the Maryland Public Service Commission today.

People's Counsel Joseph Allen asked the commission to postpone the hearings until next March, at which time the company had said its reproduction cost studies would be completed.

Joining Allen in the motion were City Attorney Thomas B. Finan of Cumberland, representing the Mayor and City Council, and Gorman Getty, attorney to the Allegany County Commissioners.

The gas company is asking only temporary rate increases, the first in 25 years, in its appeal to the commission.

The commission overruled the motion with the statement that it could not deny the company a hearing for temporary relief.

Company Counsel William L. Marbury said the proposed increases average 38 per cent overall and would raise monthly bills of 58 per cent of the customers by from 50 cents to $1.55. Space heating customers would bear the major portion of the boost.

Marbury said the company's plant facilities have been increased by 198 per cent since 1946, but gross revenues have gone up only 118 per cent.

The company claims only a 1.62 per cent rate of return under its present rate structure. The proposed temporary rates would raise Maryland gross revenues by an estimated $698,000.

The company's vice president, Charles A. Massa, took the stand today and under direct examination by Marbury cited higher taxes, prices of supplies, labor and gas from the independent producers in West Virginia among spiraling expenses.

Marbury, in his opening statement, told the commission the company has paid out $370,000 per year in wage increases, and Massa added from the witness stand that the company has asked the Wage Stabilization Board to approve further increases as a result of a newly negotiated contract with the union representing the company's workers.

He said the increase under consideration would cost the company appproximately $60,000 per year more. The hearing continues tomorrow.

North End Playground Program Begins Today

Movies will be shown at North End Playground today at 7 p. m. by the City Recreation Department.

The movies will be shown there each Friday night as the beginning of a winter recreation program, according to Robert E. Pence, recreation director.

Other activities planned at North End, and at other rec centers during the winter are activities for all age groups, including dances, movies, monthly family nights and hobby meetings.

Pence said the difficulty in working out a winter program is to find meeting places which can be heated. Many of the buildings on playgrounds have no heating facilities.

FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE—Vernon A. Crable, trustee of Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is shown turning over to George E. Speis, commander, two wheel chairs which are the first in a community service program planned by the post. The chairs were purchased by the organization and will be loaned to patients who have need of them. The post plans to enlarge its community service program as funds become available.

County Safety Week Extends To Hyndman

Lions Club Hears Talk By Walker

Allegany County's fourth annual Safety program extended across across the Mason-Dixon Line last night when the Hyndman Lions Club heard the promotion emphasized.

Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council and chairman of the Safety Week committee, gave a brief talk on the importance of setting a good example.

"Setting A Good Example," is the theme of the Safety Week, Walker noted. In citing its importance he remarked that the young teenager who is just learning to drive follows the example that has been set for him by his parents.

Walker told the Hyndman Lions that teamwork is important for a successful safety campaign. He observed that they needed no one to tell them about the essentials of teamwork. He cited that it was teamwork which rebuilt the burned out portion of Hyndman after the Christmas, 1949, fire and which has brought about a new community spirit there.

The safety man listed several reasons why Hyndman should be drawn into Allegany County's Safety Week. Many residents of the Pennsylvania town work in this county and many others come here for shopping and in so doing use the highways and streets of the county.

Last night's program concluded with several traffic safety films. It was arranged by Paul Wise, safety chairman of the Lions Club. J. W. Owens, club president, reported that attendance for the safety meeting was almost 100 per cent of the club's membership. Casper Hyre, club program chairman, said that safety programs are a regular part of the educational activities of the club.

Traffic Expert To Brief City On Parking Area

Keenan Conference Is Planned Tuesday

An experienced parking engineer will brief the Mayor and Council and interested parties on off-street parking facilities at a meeting here next Tuesday.

The meeting of E. T. Keenan, the parking engineer, with the city delegation will be held at 1:15 p. m. in the office of Mayor Roy W. Eves.

Keenan's visit here was arranged by the firm of Parsons, Brincherhoff, Hall and McDonald, New York investment bankers.

The session will be the outgrowth of a meeting held here several weeks ago when a representative of the banking firm briefed city officials on methods of financing a parking authority.

At that time, it was suggested that a parking engineer might be able to give the city expert advice on the problem.

Keenan has made studies of the parking problems of a number of cities in the East and recently helped establish the parking authority at Wilmington, Del.

The idea of a municipal parking center has been discussed here for a number of years and the city already has authority from the General Assembly to establish a parking authority.

There has been considerable controversy, however, whether the center should be a municipal or private enterprise venture.

The Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is at present engaged in a trial period of the Park and Shop plan, under which merchants validate tickets of shoppers who leave cars in member parking lots.

Former Cumberlander Invents New Type High-Speed Camera For Scientific Use

A former Cumberland resident and graduate of Fort Hill High School has invented a camera which records high speeds on film.

Eugene T. Fleischhauer, mechanical engineer for Experimental, Inc., a Richmond, Va., company, made the high-speed camera from an ordinary kitchen pressure cooker and the camera can be used to measure the speed of any movable object.

Fleischhauer, former employe of William M. Weatherholt's engraving plant and brother of John G. Fleischhauer, 1213 Virginia Avenue invented his camera in a moment of need while working on an experiment for the Richmond concern.

Rebuilt Pressure Cooker

Several months ago, Fleischhauer was working on special seals to keep liquids and gases confined in a chamber under extremely high pressure.

Desiring to photograph the action of the confined materials against his sealing compounds, he discovered he couldn't buy a suitable camera anywhere. So he made his own camera.

Fleischhauer used the pressure cooker for the camera case to keep down costs. He removed the handles and recut the top to make it light-proof. Then he made a roller to pull film through the camera at the rate of 33⅓ feet per second.

Adding an inexpensive enlarging lens, gears, ball bearings and assorted parts available at his Richmond plant he was able to complete the job.

Possible Sports Uses

Instead of making the usual type picture, the camera records a line on the film. Changes in the position of the line indicate the change in speed of any object being photographed.

Speaking of the uses his camera can be obtained for, Fleischhauer noted it could measure the ability of a baseball player to hit home-runs or to test the ability of a football kicker or a tennis player. It also can determine how fast a brake will bring a moving object to a stop or it can measure the recoil of a pistol or rifle.

Explaining how a baseball player's ability to hit homers could be obtained, Fleischhauer said the camera would record the speed of the ball before and after it was hit with the bat, thus measuring the ability of a man to drive a ball far.

Lived Here Several Years

The Fleischhauer family, natives of Richmond, moved to Cumberland in July 1935. The father, William H. Fleischhauer, was a government meat inspector until his death in 1944.

Following the father's death Mrs. Fleischhauer moved back to Richmond with Gene going along. Brother John remained in Cumberland and is employed at the Post Office.

The clever inventor was born January 17, 1920 and was graduated from Fort Hill High School in 1938. He served in the Marine Corps from December 1938, to April 1940, and in the merchant marine from February 1941 to October 1941.

Amcelle Plant Joins Drive For Sale Of Savings Bonds

The Amcelle plant of Celanese Corporation of America is participating in a special drive this week to expand the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds.

According to L. L. Helmer, plant manager, this period has been set aside to acquaint Celanese employes with new features embodied in the "E" Bonds sold under the Payroll Savings Plan through which Amcelle plant personnel find it convenient to purchase Defense Bonds.

A sizable number of Celanese employes have long made a habit of purchasing savings bonds through payroll deductions and Helmer said this new effort will stimulate many to increase their bond purchases.

An employe performs a patriotic duty and at the same time helps himself when he buys a U. S. Savings Bond, Helmer said.

The special payroll plan bond drive is also being put on at other Celanese plants throughout the United States.

In a recent letter to plant managers, Edward R. Allan, Celanese vice president of industrial relations, asserted "the National Defense Effort needs the support of all of us. Systematic savings provide that "nest egg" we all find useful in the future. And one of the best ways to acomplish this is through the Treasury Department's Payroll Savings Plan."

Weather

Steady, drizzling rains which sometimes reached downpour proportions seemed to be slacking a little last night after drenching the parched soil with 1.76 inches of water between 1 p.m. Wednesday and 6 p.m. yesterday. Today is expected to be cloudy and cooler. Yesterday's high temperature was 52, the low, 47, and at 6 p.m. humidity was 97 per cent.
